

Report of The Commission on Church Architecture to the 228th Annual Diocesan Convention

The Commission on Church Architecture's work is first to review building project preliminary sketches of a church that is receiving financial aid from the Diocese and then decide whether to approve the request. Secondly, it gives counsel and advice to all churches who wish to show building project preliminary sketches to the Commission for feedback. Third, it gives counsel and advice to any parish with regards to furnishings and stained glass windows. The Commission meets on an "as needed basis." In 2011 we had no meetings as there were no requests for the Commission's assistance.
