Filthy Activities' American Legion Attacks UCI

Orange County's 20th District officers of the American Legion recently attacked UCI for permitting on campus what they allege to be "filthy and un-American activities." An eight-point resolution which stems from the May 6 performance of the San Francisco Mime Troupe at UCI was signed by Fred Beck, commandant of the district.

The resolution calls upon the voters to take action at the polls November 8 by questioning candidates about their viewpoint on the matter. It continues by condemning "such and all performances of this type or kind as was demonstrated by the Mime troupe." Sponsored by the Students for a Democratic Society, the performance was said to contain a great number of "barracks room" words, an affidavit written by Mrs. James Kneip and attached to the resolution charged that it was "an incredibly obscene performance by a professional troupe before a mixed audience."

The following question was suggested in the resolution by the Legion as a means of determining the viewpoint of the candidates for state assembly and senate:

"Will you or won't you promise to reduce sharply legislative appropriations for obscenity or state colleges which permits flagrant obscenity?"

Aldrich Says Proposition 2 Vital To UCI Expansion

"Voter approval of Proposition 2 on the November 8 ballot is imperative to the continued expansion of enrollment at UCI," Chancellor Aldrich declared today.

This fall's quarter's enrollment of 2,590 students finds the campus' initial set of buildings filled to capacity. The number of new students to be admitted in the future depends largely upon vacancies created by graduation and other departures. A significant enrollment increase is projected for 1968, said Chancellor Aldrich, if the voters approve Proposition 2.

Proposition 2, the statewide higher education bond issue, will provide $230 million for the University of California and the State colleges. The nearly $30 million of the proposition going to UCI will provide a physical sciences building including a nuclear reactor and other laboratory equipment in 1968; engineering, library and administration building and the fine arts village in 1969. These additions will allow enrollment growth to about 6,000 by 1970, Aldrich said.

Meanwhile, students applying for admission to the fall quarter 1967 are being informed of the possibility they may be requested to redirect their applications to another campus of the University. The Chancellor pointed out that the initial buildings of UCI were financed largely from state construction bond measures similar to Proposition 2 which were approved by voters in 1962 and 1964.

Proposition 2 has been heartily endorsed by Irvine Bowl and the governing institute Ronald Reagan. Reagan has also announced plans for an all-scale investigation of the University in order to assure voter confidence in tuition charges in the State Universities and Colleges. But he recognizes, as does Governor Brown the urgency involved in accommodating the rapidly increasing student community.

Both houses of the State Legislature have unanimously adopted Proposition 2, although State Senator John Schmitz, Republican of Orange County, (an area to gain $38 million from the proposition), stands as one of its staunchest obstacles. Schmitz cites as one of his objections that "there is no provision for expenditures to assist the junior colleges, although they have in general proved more efficient than many universities and state colleges to the moral anarchy now threatening campuses in the nation. However, at their own request, provision for junior colleges was withdrawn from Proposition 2.

The Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities, the California Taxpayers Association, business and labor groups, and educational organizations have also given the Proposition strong endorsement.

New LSD Regulations Go Into Effect Today

State laws went into effect today prohibiting possession of the hallucinatory drug LSD-25. Under the law, anyone convicted of possession would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

The law passed the legislature early last summer and it was scheduled to go into effect October 6. The new legislation seemed to result from what critics called indiscriminate use of the drug by teenagers and college students.

Until today the drug was controlled solely by federal laws which prohibited only the manufacture and sale of LSD. The federal laws will still apply to the state regulations.

Although some arrests have already been made under the federal laws, there is some feeling that police will encounter difficulty in enforcing the possession law. Because the chemical is odorless, colorless and tasteless, it can be hidden almost anywhere without detection.

Medical School Wins Approval

County supervisors recently approved a resolution for a University of California College of Medicine in Orange County.

University of California President Clark Kerr and the Board of Regents enthusiastically recommended the consideration of a location "at or near the Orange County General Hospital." The resolution said, "The Board recognizes the favorable impact such a move will have on medicine and other health sciences, as well as on the academic and cultural aspects of Orange County."

"The fate of a Costa Mesa High English teacher, who was suspended following a classroom lecture in which he alleged on the horn of an American flag will be decided tonight at a special closed meeting of the Newport - Mesa Unified School District Board. The teacher's job may well hang in the balance.

The Board was unable to reach a decision following Tuesday night's public meeting on the Costa Mesa High School campus. Prior to the public meeting the Board met with William Donald Miller, and with the school's principal, John McGowan, in a private executive session. Public and student reaction makes it difficult to dismiss calls for immediate reinstatement at the open session. Mr. Miller's teaching ability, however, was not in question as a number of students, former students, and parents praised his eighth year teaching career.

The flag incident began Wednesday, September 28, as Mr. Miller stepped on the hem of an American flag before 84 of his Senior English students. The basic theme of his lecture was that people all too often confuse the actual concept itself.

"I did this to show my students what I consider my patriotism by the way in which I used a symbol, which in this case was the flag," Mr. Miller pointed out. "I think that my actual use of the flag showed poor judgement. I failed to see the tremendous emotional involvement this symbol possesses."

"I fervently hope that the citizens of this community will recognize that this was a positive attempt to provide education."

Mr. Miller pointed to the fact that the state educational code permits flagrant display of the flag. Whether any actual law has been broken is still in question, and the Board has agreed to take the matter to the courts to see if legal action could be taken against the instructor.

Faculty Expands; 97 New Members

Ninety-seven new members had been added to the faculty as classes convened at UCI Monday.

The common characteristic of the new faculty members is youth. The average age of new faculty members is 29, four years younger than the average age last year of 37. The entire faculty is 488 members, including 88 new faculty.

Eight new faculty members enter with the rank of full professor. They are 15 professors, 59 assistant professors and 104 instructors. Sixty-eight of the new faculty have the doctorate and 16 others are nearing completion of work for the degree. Many of these faculty will be teaching classes.

In all, 26 students interested in the program will be attending classes.

UCICA Tutoring Begins Monday

UCI's Community Action Tutoring Group (UCICA) will begin its fall tutoring program with a training session for prospective tutors October 10. The group, under the direction of Dr. Allen Miller, advisor, and Regis Co-new member of the Board of Directors, will continue the tradition of voluntary and occasional tutoring of primary school总部 head of the UCICA headquarters which are located in the University Interfaith Center above the book store. Further information is available by calling the office at 833-0373.

The UC Nonacademic Advisory Council is sponsoring a fund raising campaign at Irvine for Christy Christensen, a 19-year-old coed who is in immediate danger of death from a kidney disease. Christy, the daughter of Mrs. Betty Blakney of the UCI accounting office, suffers from a type of Nephritis which results in the permanent, complete failure of the kidney.

Jack McGeevy, head of the Fund at Irvine, stated that campus response "has been terrific." Many organizations have sponsored activities to raise donations for Christy's treatment; a minimum of $50,000 in contributions will be needed.

Christy is now receiving temporary treatment for the incurable illness, which she had since the age of 11. Should extended, permanent medication be possible, she will undergo "hemo- dialysis," a treatment on an artificial kidney machine, which dialyzes the blood. Because Christy's own kidney is incapable of removing normal body toxins, her blood will be circulated out of her body through a purifying machine in this machine and back into her system. A "shunt" will be implanted permanently into her arm or leg as a "hook-up" system for the machine. Treatment can be performed at Mount Sinai Hospital, where Christy has been since August 27.

The UCI campaign is only part of a larger movement going on within the community and the entire Orange County area. Civic groups such as the Lions' Club are participating; both Woodrow High and Orange Coast College, where Christy has attended school, are making donations; and a trust fund has been established at the Crocker Citizens Bank in Santa Ana for private contributions. Donations may be made until October 10 to the UCI Christy Christensen Fund, c/o Nonacademic Advisory Council, UCI, Irvine 4000.

Kerr Cites Differences In 'Reform-Minded' Students

There is an important difference between Berkeley students bent on reform and "bohemian, beatniks and revolutionaries," who make the campus their headquarters, UC President Clark Kerr reported last week.

Reform-minded students at Berkeley, themselves a minority, seek to be constructive, relying on facts instead of slogans, reasons instead of emotion. They may have outstanding futures, said Dr. Kerr, "because they are able to work within the system." But, he said, "it is important to realize that as many as 2000 students live in the Berkeley-area campus community." Most of these, he added, are devoted to nonconformity as a way of life, are often extremely irresponsible, and are often mistakenly identified as Berkeley students.

Kerr pointed out that Berkeley students continue to distinguish themselves with academic honors. Undergraduates, he said, include a high proportion of National Merit Scholarship winners and the graduate students rank high in national competitions for National Science Foundation fellowships. Woodrow Wilson fellowships, Fullbright awards, National Defense foreign language fellowships, and United States Public Health Service pre-doctoral fellowships.

Kerr said students at all the U.C. campuses are taking part in a large number of community volunteer projects. Thousands work as tutors and teachers' aides in the public schools and in special schools for the retarded and handicapped, he said.

ANNOUNC
Fresh off of a 14-2 shellacking of the University of Arizona, Coach Al Irwin's water poloists inched closer to their narrow victory last Wednesday. " Led by Mike Putnam, national 100 freestyle jaycee champion, Long Beach is a strong, fast breaking team," in seeking to improve on his 1-4 record and number four national rating last year, Irwin said the team's only major drawback, "but we're working hard and continually improving. We'll be in the top eight teams again this year."

Though the competition was stepped up considerably in this year's varsity schedule, the number one, two and three national teams are chosen for NCAA Playoffs. Besides the initial contest, the Southern League's West Regional finalist is in the Chapman National Tournament, a contest with W estem Regional finalist UCI's Basketballers. Which isn't quite as farfetched as it sounds: Irvine is a member of the college division of the NCAA; in basketball, UCI competes in the eight or West Coast District, from which four teams are chosen for the national playoff competition. Besides the winner of the NCAA and Far Western League, two independents are also qualified. Said Rogers flately, "We will be one of the two independents."

The basis of his look for improvement over his 15-11 record last year is experience. "Every play from our original team is back," Rogers observed. "Our freshman team was 19-5 and several of these boys will be bidding for starting positions, though as of right now my starters are Mark Nelson at center, Dale Finney and Eden McBride, forwards; and Scott McGowan and Tom Bryan at guards." All are returning varsity lettermen except Smith, a sophomore who filled the vacancy caused by injury to Randy Howatt. Howatt will be ready for the next Irvine encounter at Pomona on Saturday and may even see limited action tonight.

Bidding for varsity positions after contributing heavily to Dick Davis's rampaging frosh team last year are, sophomore Charlie Beisel, Eric Carlson, Jim Farley, Dave Finney, and Nick Smeds; Fred Kern, a 6'6, 200 pounder from Mt. San Antonio College who was named off the All Eastern Conference second-team last season, will give an added boost on the front line. In all, 15 or 16 of the Anteaters' chances are of making the NCAA competition will be seen early in the season; the 25-game schedule opens at home with a December 11 debut with Western Regional Gauntlet Seattle Pacifi co in the Chapman Kiwanis Tourney, and home games against Cal State Fullerton, Pomona on October 6, 1966 at 7:00 p.m. tonight in UCI's gym.

Davis Sets Meeting For Golf Prospects

Prospective golfers interested in intercollegiate should attend the meeting held under the direction of golf coach Dick Davis at 4:00 p.m. Thursday, October 13 in the campus hall classroom.

Last year's team of six golfers covered the spectrum of scores, ranging from par to the mid-90's. "Any boy shooting in the 80's is certainly encouraged to come out," said last year's golf coach, Dan Rogers, who will assist Davis with this year team. As planned by Davis, the team of six and the additional five or six squad members will practice daily at various courses in the area. There is, of course, no green fees for team and squad members.
Irwin Named To Fill Newly Formed Post

Appointment of Al Irwin as Assistant Director of Athletics at UCI was announced by Wayne Crawford, Irvine Director of Athletics.

Al Irwin . . . Assistant Director of Athletics

Entries for men's intramural sports competition are due Tuesday, October 11 in the recreation sports office, Campus Hall. Included in the fall sports schedule are men's flag football and volleyball, women's volleyball, and co-ed badminton.

Interested dorm students are urged to contact their residence hall sports manager or the recreation sports office, while off-campus students, either individually or collectively, should likewise leave their names at the sports office.

According to P.E. instructor Linda Dempsey, women interested in entering teams in volleyball competition should have a representative at the sports manager's meeting today at 4:00 p.m. in the recreation sports office, the men's meeting was held yesterday.

Not only will teams be competing for the league championship, but they will also be earning points towards the All-UCI Intramural Sports Trophy, won last year by Arroyo. By scoring heavily for mere participation as well as achievement, and by severe scoring penalties for forfeitures of games, the points system is designed to stimulate initial and continued competitive participation among the many UCI campus groups and affiliates.

The winner of the award receives an engraved replica of the AB-UCI Trophy, which resides permanently in the Campus Hall trophy case and is also engraved. Also remaining permanent in the Campus Hall trophy case, and engraved with the respective campus champion, are the permanent trophies established for each sport within the intramural program.

Besides the trophies, winners of the volleyball and badminton competition will earn the right to represent UCI at the all-university Intramural Sports Weekend.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Way back in 1953 I started writing this column about college life. Today, a full 11 years later, I am still writing this column, for my interest in undergraduates is as keen and insatiable as ever. This is called "carrot development." But where else can a writer find a subject as fascinating as the American college campus? Where else are minds and bodies so roiled, psyches so unglued? Now, for example, that brand new school year has just begun, you've already encountered the following difficulties:

1. You hate your teachers.
2. You hate your courses.
3. You hate your room-mates.
4. You have no time to study.
5. You have no place to study.

Friends, let us, without despair, examine your problems one by one.

1. You hate your teachers. For shame, friends! Try looking at things their way. Take your English teacher, for instance. Here's a man who is one of the world's authorities on Robert Browning, yet he wears $30 tweeds and a pre-war necktie while his brother Sam, a high school dropout, earns $70 thou a year in aluminum siding. Is it so hard to understand why he writes "po" on top of your themes and "Eeeyich!" in the margin? Instead of hating him, should you not admire his dedication to scholarship, his disdain for the blandishments of commerce? Of course you should. You may flunk, but Pippa passes.

2. You hate your courses. You say, for example, that you didn't see the use of studying Macbeth when you are majoring in veterinary medicine. You're wrong, friends. Remember, sometime, when you are running a business, you'll be mighty glad you learned "Ost, damned Spot!"

3. You hate your room-mates. This, unaccountably, is a big problem—in fact, the second biggest problem on American campuses. (The first biggest, of course, is on which side of your mortar board do you dangle the tassel at Commencement?) But there is an answer to the room-mates problem: keep changing room-mates. The optimum interval, I have found, is every four hours.

4. You have no time to study. Friends, I'm glad to report there is a simple way to find extra time in your busy schedule. All you have to do is buy some Personna Stainless Steel Blades. Then you won't be wasting precious time hacking away with inferior blades, blunting your face again and again in a tedious, fuddled effort to winnow your whickers. Personna shaves you quickly and satisfactorily; Everybody,amid, carefully, bristlessly, gracefully, tugged, neatly, scruffily, catchlessly, matcheside. Furthermore, Personna Blades last and last. THE BREACH

Way back in 1953 I started writing this column about college life. Today, a full 11 years later, I am still writing this column, for my interest in undergraduates is as keen and insatiable as ever. This is called "carrot development." But where else can a writer find a subject as fascinating as the American college campus? Where else are minds and bodies so roiled, psyches so unglued? Now, for example, that brand new school year has just begun, you've already encountered the following difficulties:

1. You hate your teachers.
2. You hate your courses.
3. You hate your room-mates.
4. You have no time to study.
5. You have no place to study.

Friends, let us, without despair, examine your problems one by one.

1. You hate your teachers. For shame, friends! Try looking at things their way. Take your English teacher, for instance. Here's a man who is one of the world's authorities on Robert Browning, yet he wears $30 tweeds and a pre-war necktie while his brother Sam, a high school dropout, earns $70 thou a year in aluminum siding. Is it so hard to understand why he writes "po" on top of your themes and "Eeeyich!" in the margin? Instead of hating him, should you not admire his dedication to scholarship, his disdain for the blandishments of commerce? Of course you should. You may flunk, but Pippa passes.

2. You hate your courses. You say, for example, that you didn't see the use of studying Macbeth when you are majoring in veterinary medicine. You're wrong, friends. Remember, sometime, when you are running a business, you'll be mighty glad you learned "Ost, damned Spot!"

3. You hate your room-mates. This, unaccountably, is a big problem—in fact, the second biggest problem on American campuses. (The first biggest, of course, is on which side of your mortar board do you dangle the tassel at Commencement?) But there is an answer to the room-mates problem: keep changing room-mates. The optimum interval, I have found, is every four hours.

4. You have no time to study. Friends, I'm glad to report there is a simple way to find extra time in your busy schedule. All you have to do is buy some Personna Stainless Steel Blades. Then you won't be wasting precious time hacking away with inferior blades, blunting your face again and again in a tedious, fuddled effort to winnow your whickers. Personna shaves you quickly and satisfactorily; Everybody,amid, carefully, bristlessly, gracefully, tugged, neatly, scruffily, catchlessly, matcheside. Furthermore, Personna Blades last and last.
