

Are We Alone In The Universe?

Important Messages from the Pleiadians Relayed Through Two Human Ambassadors

— BY PIA ORLEANE, PH.D.
& CULLEN SMITH —

If we were alone in the universe, wouldn't it be a staggering waste of space? Certainly it is possible that a myriad of Earth-like planets are scattered across the cosmos supporting intelligent, sentient beings. Discoveries made through the Kepler Space Telescope indicate that about one in five bodies orbiting stars that are similar to our sun could be Earth-like in size and mass. That means there could be more than ten billion habitable planets in the Milky Way alone. Famed astrophysicist Dr. Stephen Hawking was quoted saying, "The numbers alone make thinking about aliens perfectly rational."

The implications for the possibility of life in the rest of the Milky Way Galaxy and its billions of other solar systems is profound. Our universe most likely is overflowing with other civilisations, but we just haven't yet documented their existence. In fact, we have dismissed much of the evidential proof that has continually been presented for thousands of years. Why should Earth, circling the sun, be the only planet in the universe that supports life? The chance of Earth having the only advanced species or culture in the universe is a very limited and possibly narcissistic viewpoint. In fact, it is entirely egocentric to suppose that we are the only evolved form of life in our vast cosmos.

Sightings of unusual movements in the sky, both at night and during the daylight hours, have occurred as long as humans have lived on Earth. Millions of us have experienced phenomena that we cannot logically explain. We have seen strange objects that appear, dissolve, re-appear, change shape, and inexplicably change direction. Clearly these objects cannot be explained away as airplanes, weather balloons, or satellites. These occurrences can help us to understand that we are not alone. Even as we write these words, a mass sighting occurred over Los Angeles, California. Pictures of this mysterious phenomenon in the night sky were shared through social media across the planet and immediately discounted by official sources, who claimed it was a scheduled Trident Missile test flight, even though the officially described trajectory of the so-called missile was completely opposite from the actual direction of the moving object. US government officials closed the airspace and redirected commercial flights over the Pacific Ocean, a highly unlikely manoeuvre if the observed object were truly a regularly scheduled test. Similar large-scale sightings have occurred on all continents and in many capital cities (Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Tokyo, London and many, many others). Standard practice in almost every country is for government agencies to dismiss such sightings as ordinary events that are misinterpreted by uninformed or uneducated people.

PLEIADIANS ENTERED OUR LIVES

But educated people also have these experiences. We, a professional Archeo-Anthropologist (Cullen) and Clinical Psychologist (Pia), abandoned our former careers when a series of inexplicable events proved to us that extraterrestrials are indeed present on Earth. Our connection with interstellar beings began a decade ago when a group of six Pleiadians, known as Laarkmaa, entered our lives. They introduced themselves to us gradually by making unusual noises, shining various lights, and using other attention-getting techniques to make themselves known. After weeks of their attempts to heighten our awareness, they finally contacted us directly by activating a short-wave radio during a birthday celebration. In an evolutionary leap in our understanding of the cosmos, the answer to, "Are extraterrestrial beings real?" landed solidly in our living room through an undeniable experience that spelled “This Is Real.” We changed our careers when we were called by a Pleiadian elder’s council to act as Ambassadors between the Pleiadians and humanity. The full story of this life-changing event is available in our book Conversations With Laarkmaa.

There are many other people today who communicate with extraterrestrial beings. Throughout history sensitive people have always been able to communicate directly with non-Earth beings wishing to help humanity evolve and change the destiny that we have created through a millennia of poor choices. Humans have recorded and preserved these experiences between human and non-human beings in rock art or passed them down orally in stories for a very long time. Today there are many sensitives receiving telepathic messages. In fact, not until recently have there been so many who engage in extraterrestrial exchanges, writing books and articles, offering lectures, and sharing what is commonly called channelled information to assist humanity. Like any communication, the quality of the information depends upon the clarity of the person or persons involved. (It takes both of us, Pia and Cullen, to receive the messages of our Pleiadian friends with absolute clarity. Because both of us receive Laarkmaa’s information simultaneously, we eliminate our own individual beliefs or opinions, which actually allows us to bring wisdom from the stars with great accuracy.)

We are two of the fortunate humans to have a personal relationship with a group of extraterrestrial beings here to help humanity evolve. Laarkmaa, our loving, heart-based friends, come to us from the Pleiadian star system with messages of hope, peace, wonder, community, and unity. These highly advanced beings have gone through their own evolutionary process, and wish to help us navigate our spiritual and conscious development through making better choices and increasing our understanding of the greater cosmic truth. Through their wisdom and higher perspective, Laarkmaa offers messages that guide us all towards a greater understanding of love, light, and unity. Their only wish is to help us awaken to remember who we are and to make clear choices for the highest good of all.

IN’LAKECH

The Pleiadians began teaching this lifview to the Maya over five thousand years ago. The Mayan people still use the term “In’Lakech,” an ancient spiritual teaching meaning "I am another yourself," to guide their lives. The principle of "In'Lakech" helps us to understand that we are not separate, different, or distinct from each other or from our interstellar friends. Once we stop believing that we are unique, special, or supreme in our intelligence and our accomplishments, we can open to real interaction with our star brothers and sisters. They are here to help, and the sooner we pay attention to their broader perspectives and eradicate our frightened and limited beliefs about who we are and who we are not, the sooner we can begin to act as our more intelligent extraterrestrial friends are encouraging us to do. When we open our hearts and minds to a larger perspective, we discover our own divinity and our connection to all that is. Rather than being frightened of extraterrestrial life or trying to control or compete with it, we can be thankful for our extraterrestrial connections; we can all begin to cooperate together as citizens of the universe.

Experiences such as ours have occurred since the dawn of humanity. Stories of involvement with extra-terrestrials exist in Aboriginal Australia, the African Dogon, among the Maya and the Maori, in Russia and America, and in many other places. From an anthropological and archaeological perspective there is ample evidential proof that multiple cultures and societies from the stars have visited humans for thousands of years. Existing cave and rock drawings and oral creation myths derived from these experiences provide, according to many, an unquestionable historical record of extraterrestrial contact with humanity. The Dogon tribe in Africa (who possess advanced astronomical knowledge that could only have been supplied by an advanced civilisation) speaks of "space beings." The indigenous tribes of Australia have preserved the legacy of "sky beings" called the Wandjina through both oral tradition and in an exceptionally large collection of 5,000-year-old rock paintings showing striking representations of alien beings, scattered through the Kimberly region of Northern Australia. In Europe, the Saami people claim to be descendants of Star People. In North America, several indigenous tribes including the Hopi, the Cherokee, and the Dakota/Lakota believe that their ancestors originally came from the stars.

Some claim it depicts a small humanoid sitting in a UFO looking over his shoulder at another UFO as if in pursuit. They fly across the sky above the scene of Jesus' Crucifixion.

THE PLEIADIAN CONNECTION

Many of these indigenous groups who believe that their heritage is derived from another place or dimension other than Earth have a distinct and specific historical connection with the Pleiadian star system. The Cherokee creation myth refers to arriving on "Turtle Island" from the Pleiades, and the Hopi refer to Pleiadians as "the Chuhukon," meaning those who cling together and communicate telepathically. When we first met Laarkmaa, they told us that they were "one of six and six of one" (a form of clinging together?) and they communicate with us through "thought messages." Our experience closely matches Hopi stories of extraterrestrial encounters. Indigenous cultures' preoccupation with the Pleiades lead us to believe that visitors from the Pleiadian system have been contacting and participating with humanity for thousands of years. We (and civilisations before ours) have doubtless been contacted by extraterrestrials and have been changed forever by that contact. The problem is that these valuable exchanges have been relegated to "myth" because so many early humans believed these extraterrestrial contacts to be connections with the gods.

Laarkmaa tells us that ancient visitations went awry because Earth's people saw the Pleiadians (and other extraterrestrial visitors) as gods rather than as simply neighbours. Because our interstellar friends are hoping to help us evolve through awakening to our own divinity and connection to all, the human predisposition to give our power to others rather than learning from them, caused the Pleiadian Elder's Council to decree that to prevent this mistake from occurring again Pleiadians would stop physical visitations and would share their messages through telepathic exchange with specially attuned humans. Now extraterrestrial messages from the stars come through people like us, rather than from direct physical contact with our interstellar friends. But as we all increase our awareness and raise our consciousness, that is likely to change.

The proof that contact has

Hopi kachina dolls are said to represent space beings whose heads are made of clouds.

long been a part of human history is everywhere. There are pictographs in pre-Columbian Mesoamerica depicting space helmeted beings floating in the air. Hopi kachina dolls represent space beings whose heads are made of clouds. Examples of other worldly visitations can be seen in cave paintings and rock drawings worldwide. Examples of such evidence include 29,000 year old cave paintings in Tanzania, 14,000 year old rock art in Toro Muerto, Peru, 12,000 year old paintings in Val Camonica, Italy, and 9,000 year old art in Nepal, all depicting space craft hovering in the sky. Rock art depicts figures in space suits or helmets in Tassili in the Sahara Desert, North Africa 8,000 years ago, in Kiev, Ukraine 6,000 years ago, and in Sego Canyon, Utah in America 5,500 years ago. More recent illustrations of extraterrestrial visitations have been recorded in Egypt, Ecuador, Georgia in Russia, England, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, France, Greece, Japan, Palestine, Yugoslavia, and many other places across the planet. Are we to discount the reality of both ancient and current human experience?

DISCLOSURE

Current mainstream thought dismisses the entire topic as absurd "pseudo science," while those who are more aware often demand that world governments reveal what they know about extraterrestrial beings. The term 'disclosure' has come to be associated with the hiding of information about the presence on Earth of intelligent life from other planets. Spokespeople for disclosure believe that our government agencies, or more precisely the military, are keeping secrets concerning their interactions with ETs during the last half-century. Whether or not this is true is completely irrelevant. We don't have to wait on any government agency to tell us what we already know is real. Individuals and groups are being contacted and communicating without the intercession of any government. A much better system of communication has long been established between humans and ETs. We have already made contact.

Nevertheless, the push for disclosure has recently caused some interesting ripples in the fabric of our understanding about the possibility of visits from other life in the universe. In 2006 the Mexican National Institute of Anthropology and History quoted Luis Augusto Garcia Rosado, a high-ranking government official in Mexico, as speaking of known contact between the Mayans and extraterrestrials, which the government has kept secret for some time. He also mentioned landing pads that are 3,000 years old. In 2009 the Vatican announced that it was preparing for disclosure about extraterrestrials (which has not yet been forthcoming.) While these official statements may be interesting, there is absolutely no need for any government or religion to reveal extraterrestrial presences. They are here now, recognised, acknowledged, and known by many. And their presence has increased because our world is facing imminent change as our evolutionary process gathers speed.

ANCIENT PROPHECIES ABOUT THE SPACE BEINGS

For years prophecies from indigenous tribes have been addressing the necessity for change and the possibilities for our own evolution with the help of extraterrestrial guidance. As recently as 1996, Lakota Elder Standing Elk, shared that as a child he had witnessed large UFO ships with portholes on the sides revealing figures inside; huge balls of green light accompanied these ships. Dakota Elder Chanupa Wambdi Wicasa reports the interstellar message, "We are here to help. Time as you know it is coming to an end." An Oglala Native American predicted coming changes, including a visitation of Star People in Santa Fe, New Mexico in America. Iroquois Elder Paula Underwood has been told that humans are the same as extraterrestrial beings, and that the ETs have come here to help us. From our very first encounter with Laarkmaa, we were also told, "We are here to help." Not all acknowledgment of interstellar contact, however,

The choice is ours: do we wish to continue our experience of war, hunger, pain, and suffering or do we wish to join our star friends in a higher evolutionary form?

humans have choice. Yet they also warn us that if we do not take responsibility for the choices we make, the repercussions may be disastrous. There is no judgment in this statement. Laarkmaa says that we have the opportunity to eliminate our participation on the wheel of karma by making conscious choices, moment by moment. (Karma is caused by unconscious choices that must later be accounted for and resolved.) These choices need to incorporate certain principles that are based upon unity and the highest good for all. Lovingly Laarkmaa reminds us that each human always has choice in any given moment, but the only choice each of us can make individually is our own. We cannot choose for someone else. They tell us that the potency of our choices in each and every moment will come to bear on our own evolution in a tremendous way that is larger than ever before. Each choice is a gateway to a larger choice that will determine our advancement in consciousness.

As we approach this great split in humanity, Laarkmaa tells us that those who cling to the old paradigm of greed, fear, selfishness, and separation will continue the path of karma on another planet when Earth ascends into a higher vibrational form. Those who practice the cosmic laws of love, unity, and cooperation will evolve into the New Humans, whose higher vibrations will allow them to accompany the Earth as the Earth makes her own changes in her ascension process. When we live our lives consciously in every given moment, Laarkmaa says, living by the Golden Rule of treating others as we ourselves wish to be treated, holding gratitude and thankfulness for our experiences (whether we like them or not), and practicing Ahimsa (do no harm), then we are accelerated on our evolutionary path. These choices will help us move into the lighter and higher vibration of the New Humanity as the great split occurs. The choice is ours: do we wish to continue our experience of war, hunger, pain, and suffering or do we wish to join our star friends in a higher evolutionary form?

A mystery is no longer a mystery when we can expand our definition of what is true. When we move beyond traditional and limited beliefs and accept something larger, we progress from beliefs of mystery into the wisdom of understanding. It is in this place that our extraterrestrial friends can reach us, communicate with us, and help us to understand who we are and the powers that we carry to create our own future. Modern science admits to theories that predict the existence of parallel universes comes from indigenous people. Finnish physician Rauni-Leena Kilde reported a change of attitude about cosmic contacts and a growing awareness by Scandinavian and other European nations that we are not alone in the universe. Our Pleiadian friends, Laarkmaa, are here to support our evolutionary journey. Many other extraterrestrial beings are also here on Earth at this time of great change and possibility.

Many of the ancient prophecies alluding to contact between Earthlings and space beings, suggest our civilization will either be reconnected or helped by extraterrestrials again in the future. We believe that time is now. The messages from our star friends have become more urgent, because a great split among humans is happening. This split relates to those people who tenaciously cling to the current, separation-oriented third-dimensional reality as the only reality, and those people who choose to consciously evolve beyond it. According to Laarkmaa, we are accelerating the evolution of our species into becoming New Humans. It is imperative that we listen to the messages our interstellar visitors are making available to us. Those of us who are willing to evolve past the denseness of human form into what they call the Rainbow Body (explained more fully in our book Remembering Who We Are) will be able to access all dimensions simultaneously, as they do. As we make these changes, we become more aware that a parallel reality exists right in front of us.

LESSONS FROM LAARKMAA

Laarkmaa tells us that no extraterrestrial group can predict the future of humanity because on this planet separated only by a higher dimension. There might be multiple universes only inches away from us that we can barely imagine and are only beginning to experience. What is to prevent an advanced being from one of these parallel dimensions from travelling to our own less developed dimension? Nothing. We, Pia and Cullen, were fortunate enough to be contacted by a group of extraterrestrial beings who believed in us, whether we believed in them or not. Through our openness to possibilities and our interactions with the unknown, we stepped through a veil.

Through the deep and profound communication we have experienced with our interstellar friends, Laarkmaa, we can no longer ask the questions, "Do extraterrestrials exist and are they here?" Our experience of them took us beyond the limits of what we previously perceived as real in the third dimension through our five senses (even though we adamantly believed in other possibilities), and as we expanded our abilities to trust, our experiences also expanded. We now see and hear with different eyes and ears, with more multi-dimensional awareness. Because extraterrestrials are inter-dimensional beings, they can travel at will between dimensions, allowing themselves to be completely omnipresent. And because our extraterrestrial friends have the ability to move multi-dimensionally, they have a much broader and wiser perspective of reality than do humans. Omnipresence is a difficult concept to grasp through our "normal" third dimensional belief systems. Yet it is through stretching our limited ways of thinking that we expand our understanding of a larger cosmic truth.

Moving between the very limited third dimensional perspectives to the larger multi-dimensional vision of the universe can be disorienting. But it is real. Maori Elder Ruka revealed the star origins of the Maori in a candle-lit ritual, creating a twelve-woman ceremonial circle, with each of the twelve representing a different vibration. Could this symbolic representation of twelve vibrations be the same as the twelve dimensions about which Laarkmaa speaks? According to Laarkmaa, we can access each of twelve dimensions as we awaken each of the twelve (not two) strands of our human DNA.

For us (and many others) reality has become a multi-coloured prism full of exciting possibilities through connection with more evolved beings who are not from Earth! They are energetic beings whose shape appears to be waveform rather than particle form. That is, rather than being static and unchanging, they move in waves, directing their energy to manifest where and how it is appropriate in every moment. And they are teaching us how to do this! We need no longer limit who we are to who we have been. They are from the stars; we are learning from them that we are from the stars, too. We are multi-coloured cosmic waves of energy in the process of discovering our own abilities and learning how to communicate with other multi-coloured cosmic waves of energy from other places in space. Can there be a more exciting future for humanity?

Often here in Santa Fe we look up into the sky in the middle of the day and see the unusual, lenticular clouds that many people believe hide spacecraft. These cloud formations do not move along in the wind current as do most clouds but can linger in one place for hours. We also experience frequent examples of parallel reality where we live. We feel that other dimensional experiences may be honing us all for deeper interactions with other life forms who are not governed by our artificial sense of time or space. The only thing we need to assure ourselves that we are not alone in the universe is to look up and pay attention to the sky; we can see that they are there. Are we really alone?
