UNDERSTANDING Energy A PATH TO HARMONY

If we can develop a better understanding of how to work with energy, then we have a path to harmony says Pia Orleane, PhD

The understanding that energy is intelligent is an evolving field of awareness for humanity. We can expand our own understanding of who we are, individually and collectively, by seeing our reality and ourselves as interconnected spirals of energy. Studying how those spirals are related helps us to respond appropriately to one another moment by moment. Both conscious and alive, energy knows where it is needed and how to get there. Every one of us has a combination of energies that makes us who we are. We are here to learn how to work with the play of these energies within ourselves and on Earth.

LIVING IN HARMONY

Five thousand years ago the Pleiadians gave the Maya a system to help humanity understand how to live in harmony. Interested in helping us to evolve, these interstellar friends explained the thirteen energies of the universe, the twenty energies that exist on Earth, and how they cycle together. Everything is energy; the Pleiadians explained, and when we learn how to recognize and work with it, life is more harmonious. The Maya recorded the procession of energies, which developed into the Mayan Calendar. The Pleiadians shared their priceless insights, gained from their own evolutionary journey, with the Cherokee and other aboriginal peoples, who passed along these potent understandings through oral tradition and lifestyles that reflected the interconnection of all life.

Through our ego and dissociated, linear thinking, humanity has moved away from those cosmic teachings. We have allowed the collective illusions of time and space to define our experiences and slow our conscious evolution. We are limiting our possibilities as a species through a collective insistence on defining reality through the artificial lens of time, rather than deepening our understanding of energy. To correct such a disconnected and faulty view of life, we can open our eyes to the unity-based perception of life shared by our interstellar friends so long ago.

INTERCONNECTEDNESS

Because all energy is interconnected, each of us is connected to one another in relationship, and collectively, we are connected to our Earthly environment and to the cosmos. What we think, and what we do affects everyone else and everything else. Every thought we think, every word we speak, every choice we make forms the reality of our collective experience. We simply need to remember that we are part of everything and that what we think and do matters. When we learn to value the wisdom of energetic intelligence over the knowledge of beliefs, we can begin to flow with universal energies to manifest a different and better reality, one that is not based upon separation, greed, competition, and control of others. When we expand our consciousness through more potent understandings of energy, as the Pleiadians have been trying to teach us for thousands of years, we can join others in the universe who operate at higher vibratory levels that are guided by a more inclusive and unified consciousness.

Each of us carries within us a unique and very personal assignment – to understand energy from the particular perspective of our own makeup and to use that understanding to integrate and harmonize with others in what we call relationships. We are drawn to, or resonate with, others whose energy is moving in a specific evolutionary direction. Those whose energies are very different challenge us, inviting us to increase our awareness and grow through these differences, for it is through accepting and harmonizing them that we achieve a state of unity. This is the direct function of duality on this planet. Understanding the interplay of our energies is fascinating and can help us learn much about who we really are and how we fit within the greater picture of the universe.

Each day of our experience is also comprised of specific energetic combinations. When we understand what each day asks of us and work with its flow, our lives go more smoothly. When we try to fit the naturally occurring energies into a man-made pattern and control them, we create conflict and we experience discord. It doesn't take much to look around us and see the dysfunction of our world and our myriad relationships. We have been acting as if our emotional and physical experiences are the only reality, completely ignorant of the greater forces that connect us to one another and to the universe.

EXPANDING CONSCIOUSNESS

If we are dissatisfied with our current reality, we need to expand our conscious understanding of energy and how we participate in creating the limitations of our existing physical world. Each aspect of energy continually links to every other aspect, building and dissipating in cycles of movement to manifest our reality. We can learn how to participate by paying attention to what each aspect brings and how we ourselves respond to it. Although we live on Earth and must work within Earth's rules, we are also cosmic beings who are capable of moving beyond and transcending our perceived limitations through widening our perspectives and rejecting linear, compartmentalized, dualistic thinking. If we move our thoughts out of the way long enough to allow our hearts to feel what is happening in the moment, it is possible to perceive the synchronistic connection of everything – including our divine connection to one another, to the earth and the universe. As we ourselves are energy, there is no limit to consciousness. Once we begin to look at life through the lens of energetic perception, dismissing the linear perceptions of time, space and history, the levels of consciousness we can attain are unlimited.

There is a way for people to learn about these cosmic and Earthly flows of energy. As founder of the Pleiadian-Earth-Energy System™ of Astrology, I have devised a pathway to better understand both who we are and the energies in which we are living. I have created the Pleiadian-Venus-Earth Energy™ (PVEE) Chart as a map for curious individuals who wish to explore the burgeoning field of conscious energy and human evolution. These personal maps include wisdom from the interplay of both the Pleiadian-Earth Energy System and the wisdom from Venus. The Pleiadian-Earth Energy System helps us to understand our place and purpose in the universe. Exploring the meanings of each type of energy, we can begin to understand how to use our own gifts and talents more efficiently, as well as how to overcome unconscious blocks or old karmic patterns that get in the way of our growth.

In the heart of this system lives the planet Venus. Because Venus has dual positions of Morning Star and Evening Star, She is the planet that most closely reveals the dual nature of our experience here on Earth. This is one of the most far-reaching influences on humanity, for it shows us both how we are part of the collective and how we affect the whole. Venus also expresses thirteen phases of "personality" during one full rotation from Morning Star to Evening Star to Morning Star again. A new phase is begun each time Venus rises newly as the Morning Star. Each of these phases provides a certain lens through which we see the world. Our experiences are coloured by both the position and phase of Venus at our birth. It is Venus who shows us the truth about how we relate, which is the most important element we can examine in our search for higher consciousness.

As a species we are usually out of balance with natural cosmic flow because we have collectively agreed to "schedule" our lives according to time and the Gregorian calendar. We live our lives in an illusion, while searching for the light of truth. With a clearer understanding of the natural flow of universal and Earthly energies, it becomes much easier to learn to work with others and to consciously participate in co-creating our reality.
