

*What BLACK MAGIC
Can Do For you!*

What Black Magic Can Do For You!

Do you have a love-problem... issues... or anything you "want" so badly – that only a real and potent Spell could bring-about..?

And are you thinking about paying a professional to do that Spellwork for you?

Let me cut to the chase here.

In my opinion and that of the more serious and powerful Spellcasters - the ONLY type of magic that is actually designed to get you results, is what we know as; Black Magic.

In the second half of this report I will specifically concentrate more on what "Black Magic" actually means.

Part One:

So you want to use a Spellcaster to get something you *really* want and need? Here's some tips and things to consider before you do...

First of all, these are only my opinions, accept or disregard them as you see fit.

Magic is a complex subject and its practitioners vary in both skills, experience and attitude.

I offer the following tips as a sort of "community service" because I'd hate to think of all the vulnerable and needy folks out there who may get scammed by some unethical magic worker.

The Good – and the bad

When you are down and out – heartbroken, poor, scared, lonely – it is easy to be taken advantage of – this is true in all regards, but with magic in particular.

Magic has a veil of secrecy; it seems exotic and unattainable by the uninformed and the closed-minded – and in some instances it is.

Many people who seek to have magic done on their behalf know little about the subject – they may have a willing and open mind but have virtually no experience of using real magic successfully...

... thus being easy prey for charlatans, unethical fakes and “chancers” who would take their money and do no real magic on behalf of paying clients.

To me this a monumental betrayal of sacred trust. Such scammers are nothing more than low-down money-snatchers!

Anyway, as a confession right off the bat and to avoid any appearance of impropriety, I myself practice magic and do offer my own Spellcasting services these days *only* to existing clients or especially deserving cases.

Of course I still have a healthy interest in all things magic... and count myself lucky to enjoy an amazing amount of contacts in this field.

Who can you trust??

Not all spell-workers are “one-spell-fits-all” they all have their own natural gifts and specialites (love, money, protection etc etc).

With that being said, here are some things to think about:

Different types of Spellcasters – Explained

Okay... So what’s the difference between all these magic practitioners?

Witches? Wiccans? Black Magic? Spiritual Workers? Psychics? Voodoo Practitioners..?

Let’s imagine there’s a big umbrella called “Magic Practitioners.” All the groups that fall under this umbrella practice some form of magic either as a religious expression, for practical reasons as an effective means to an end, and/or as a folk/ethnic custom.

Note that in every culture and religion there is some form of magical practice, be it Shamanic, Haitian Voodoo or mystical in nature – the practice is not some fancy New Age creation.

Some of these magic practitioners offer their services to the general public in order to share their talents and eke out a living.

You can see broad example of these using a quick internet search. (I know several, very powerful and gifted Spellcasters who simply cannot cast certain spells for themselves – and thus use their gifts for others to benefit from).

Witches and Wiccans:

Witches practice a type of magic called Witchcraft. This type of magic is largely European in origin, and it focuses on incantations, chanting, ritual and group practice.

In my opinion, Witchcraft is a skill, not a religion, that can be developed by any sincere student and can be thus incorporated by people of all religions.

To further confuse the subject, there is a peaceful, nature-revering religion called Wicca (who follow the Wiccan Rede).

Many Wiccans practice a magic they also call Witchcraft. To them, the practice of magic is one manifestation of their spirituality and the act is religious in nature.

To many Wiccans, Witchcraft is a part of their religion, but not all Wiccans practice magic. Not all Witchcraft practitioners are Wiccans.

See the difference..?

Now, there are some who will disagree with my assessment, but that's okay. The magic that Wiccans practice is only "white" in nature, meaning they do no magic to influence another and no magic that influences and forces (commonly referred to as "Black Magic" - more in Part 2 of this report).

Indeed, the only practical working difference between "white" and "black" magic is that there are times when a good magic spell does really need to change or influence a situation...

...this is where "Black Magic" has its greatest use.

(NOTE: a genuine practitioner will never invoke forces that could pass on any "negative rebound" or badness to you, the client).

I have come across many folks who say that only black magic gave them the situation they really wanted.

Wiccans are ruled by a tenant of their faith usually called "The Law of three": what you send out magically comes back to you three times as strong. They will almost always refuse to do magic, even good positive work, on a person who is unwitting.

** It should be a red flag to see a practitioner offering a "Black Death Revenge Spell" who also claims to be some 9th Dan Wiccan High-Priest or something... A Wiccan would never do a death or revenge or even break-up spell for money. Most Wiccans don't take paid clients in any event (even if their power is unusually strong for "white" magic).

Spiritual Workers:

A Spiritual Worker is someone who combines prayer, religious petition, and magic on behalf of their client. Usually the work they take on is in the nature of serving the universe. Although "Universal in nature" can be totally dependant on the circumstance...

...sometimes getting rid of an abusive husband can be serving the Universe. Sometimes getting rid of the home-wrecker who's seeking to split apart a married couple joined in holy matrimony can be a Universal act.

You see the issues here?

Many Spiritual Workers who practice magic, light candles for people – (prayers and candlework go nicely together). They might make up supplies such as spiritual baths for their clients to use while praying, and they might engage in various other magical practices, spells, hands-on work, etc, on their behalf.

The range of services a Spiritual Worker will do on behalf of their clients is very broad.

Psychics:

Psychics are folks who were born with, or have developed Extra-Sensory Perception and thereby use their skills to counsel their clients on life issues.

Some psychics will use divination tools such as Tarot Cards to help them in their efforts. A session with a psychic is typically called a reading. Usually no magic work is included, although there are exceptions.

Some magic practitioners are also readers to some extent or another, and they will consult their talents/divination tools on behalf of their clients. All magic practitioners should have some internal feedback mechanism, psychic, intuitive, or otherwise, to guide their work, but this is different from a psychic reader.

For instance; you would hire a reader to give you insights on a particular situation, to make a decision more clear, or to ask questions.

A good Spellcaster can actually do something about it!

Voodoo:

I am no expert on the religion of Voodoo. Vodou (Voodoo, Vodun) is a name attributed to a New World syncretistic religion, or family of religions, based on the faiths of the Fon, Ewe, and related peoples of West Africa, of the Congo people of Central Africa, and of Christianity.

It has strong magico-religious practices, and some of its devotees offer their services as magic practitioners to the community.

I would recommend further reading on the subject.

Wikipedia would be a great first step.

Warlocks:

“Warlock” is not a term commonly used by magic practitioners.

In common parlance it is known to be a male witch. In my experience, as such, I have never met a genuine male witch who referred to himself as a "Warlock".

Some basic things you should expect from a Spellcaster:

1) A prospective worker should always answer ANY initial queries you have (but please don't expect them to put up with obsessive and bothersome emails).

Their answers to your questions are the best way you can assess someone you are considering hiring. Also, more importantly, a Spellcaster should want to get the "feel" of you and your situation.

If, on a website for instance, you see a spell that exactly fits your wishes; by all means go ahead, IF you feel the Spellcaster is genuine.

2) A good worker, upon request, will give you feedback about your particular situation BEFORE doing magic and BEFORE you hire them. It's just ethical.

(When people used to contact me with a question, I'd first tell them if I can take their case and then tell them whether it's a reasonable expectation).

Now, of course magic can't be guaranteed and no one ever knows for sure what the outcome will be – but a magic worker should at least give you realistic feedback if you email them. The Spellcaster, as a professional, is bound to give honest advice to inexperienced clients.

3) A Spellcaster should seek out information from you before casting the spell. In order to do effective magic custom tailored to your unique situation, the practitioner needs as much relevant information from you as you're willing to divulge.

4) All workers should give you thorough instructions on what to expect after the magic work is done and steps you should take yourself to help protect the outcome. Some Spellcasters will send you hints and tips on how to act as your spell is being cast, and/or steps for simple meditation to help the spell along.

Anyone who tells you that you don't need to be positive about what you want is not giving you a full service.

Sure, you can sit back and not give your magic a second thought, let your hired professional do the work, and you will doubtless get fine results. But a competent and thoughtful worker will as a minimum give you additional suggestions, both magical and mundane, for things you can try to help move your magic along.

Now, that is good magical work, and this is a realistic example of what to expect from a quality Spellcaster.

It is also very important for the client to know what signs they're looking for once the spell is complete. Often a well-cast spell will not be at its fullest-power straight away (even if there are some instant positive effects).

It does help to know what to expect – thus making *you* the client, a lot happier!

An example of this would be if a woman was having magic done to reconcile with an ex-lover. If at the end of a certain timeframe (1-2 months, in my experience) her lover has not returned, she knows to ask the Spellcaster to either recast the spell or not.

Part Two:

The only real magic that *works* - Black Magic!

Black magic is one of the most powerful spiritual forces known today. In a wider sense, it is only known as "Black Magic" because it actually can alter a situation – it works!

"...the rituals that developed into modern "black magic" were designed to invoke those same spirits to produce beneficial outcomes for the practitioner. "

– wikipedia.org

Though, black magic has been known of for thousands of years, it has been broadly received only within the last century.

The negative elements associated with it gradually diminished with the arrival of modernism. In the contemporary world, not only is black magic one of the most common-place solution to any issue but it also has an incredible success rate which is a huge argument in its favour.

Casting a spell to fix a situation is not at all a shortcut but rather a more direct way at approaching the problems in one's life.

Usually, spells are used to deal with personal problems, as they need a definitive solution which is at the same time spontaneous. That is one of the many reasons why the usage of spells, through black magic is gaining popularity with the people. It also draws attention to the fact that not only are people bold enough to accept black magic into their lives but also consider it as a functioning option.

Love Spells:

The most common spells used by people are Love Spells.

It is known to everybody in this modern world – people are facing issues of love, life and the heart every day.

Relationships *do* face difficulties. Tragedy happens, love is lost – or mistakenly given elsewhere. People are left heartbroken.

Sometimes, you just *want* that person in your life, you want that lover back... and to want them to enjoy you in their life.

Sometimes you just NEED something to happen – and only Black Magic can do it!

Success Spells:

Another very common type of spell are success spells.

Realistically, success can mean different things to different people. Professional success might not be something you would measure in terms of sheer earnings. Pride of achievement, your peers seeing you as the best, is more important to some.

Success spells are of the most complex kind as they have to work on several types of issues and possess more power. Academic success, financial success, industrial expansion, personal progress or spiritual growth and every other topic, one might consider worthy of concern can fall under this category and might be subjected to success spells.

It makes total sense that you have to be extremely careful so as to be very specific in mentioning **exactly** what you want. A genuine, powerful Black Magic Spellcaster would allow you to be this specific.

Money spells:

Do they exist? Can they really work? – Yes!

The Black Magic Money Spell is extremely popular. It is no surprise that people pay a lot of attention to personal finances nowadays.

Economic growth is a cause of continuous concern for everyone. The money spells are thus the most talked about kind of spells which are not only the most powerful but also the most effective. These spells are comparatively easier to deal with as they have relatively fewer focusing points; but one should be aware of certain facts.

If not applied by an experienced practitioner of Black Magic these spells can be the cause of undesirable consequences. Apart from that fact, the money spells are almost a sure success.

When people approach a practitioner to actually cast a money spell over for themselves – they should be completely honest about their monetary position and situation in life. Similar to success spells, these spells might work alright but can cause an imbalance in anybody's life if all the factors are not weighed.

“Too much too fast” can happen – and not everyone has the maturity to handle the outcome they most desired.

Black magic yields tremendous power when it comes to personal problems. In these cases, the force has to acquire a complex power which takes control over the crisis and bears direct results. For instance, in the case of revenge spells, black magic tends to overlook more than one problem.

When a revenge spell is cast on somebody, the force of dark power makes sure that it affects only the person concerned and doesn't upset the lives of others. When planning revenge on somebody, a person's motive and agenda should be clearly discussed with the sorcerer or the practitioner. Also, revenge spells are almost always irreversible, which is more of a cause for attention. Sometimes the counsel of more than one sorcerer might be required, but that depends on the situation.

Revenge spells are very powerful and though it might take some time in a few cases, to see the results, the change would be spontaneous and directly visible over a certain period of time.

Quite similar to the revenge spells, protection spells also function in a same way. These spells are also very powerful and possess capabilities beyond imagination. Applying these spells right is extremely essential.

When casting protection over somebody, the process has to be thorough. Usually these spells are used to ward off evil spirits which is why using the help of black magic is relevant.

These spells can not only prevent the evil forces from affecting somebody in the wrong way but also make sure that the person concerned is protected from all kinds of negative vibes and dark forces. Black magic, through spells provides the ultimate protection which is almost in every case quite permanent and guarantees immediate effects.

As time passes, people seem to appear more and more comfortable with using black magic. It is not only acknowledged as a powerful instrument of help but also a guiding force which helps people move on in their lives and in dealing with difficult situations.

The confidence in black magic is clearly a factor worth paying attention to. Black magic can work in several ways and appeal to everybody in a different way. It is remarkable how people respond to the effects of this force and it is fascinating to note the power of these spells. Black magic, in whatever way it is used tends to overwhelm the problem in its own specific way.

The gradual results and timed effects are a source of satisfaction to the people who take the help of black magic.

This also results in the major appraisal of the black magic as a solution to almost every kind of problem.

Will Black Magic Spells always work?

In my experience, mostly, "yes" – IF cast correctly by an experienced and competent Practitioner.

Sometimes even the strongest magic does not bear fruit, and this is not the fault of your well-meaning, hard-working magic worker.

Sometimes doctors fail even though they tried their hardest and we don't assess blame. Sometimes the Reverend's prayers do not save your loved one from Death's grip and we don't blame the Reverend. We simply reassess our desires, rework our intentions, make a new game plan, look for unlearned lessons – and brush ourselves off and go on again.

Spells that don't work are often not the fault of the competent, honest magic worker and even then... all is not lost! A genuine and helpful Spellcaster should offer to re-cast your spell or offer a "boost", at no extra charge (surprisingly this does often "save" many situations and result in success).

That's the best, be it incomplete, advice I have on the subject – maybe this will spur you on to try a real Black Magic Spellcaster yourself.

Hopefully I have shed some light on a subject many know little about.

If you're contemplating having magic work done for you, let me give you a virtual pat on the back – it shows you have both courage, a will for change – and an open mind!

Congratulations for seeking whatever it is you want to change about your situation; and I dearly hope and trust you find it a fruitful undertaking.

One final thought; as with most things in life. The prize goes *only* to those who have the courage to “do” – to act.

Yours in magic!
