The Most Human Human

Easter Message

This Easter Sunday at PBC, we'll see how the resurrection of Jesus gave his followers a message that their world needed to hear. Shortly after defeating shame and death, he brought his disciples up to a hill and charged them with offering a message of hope.

Jesus died and rose again so that we could become fully restored humans. And then he entrusted us with proclaiming that message to the world. After the last year, our world needs some good news. Can we bring it to them?

Discussion Questions:

1. What would you do in a five minute conversation to prove you're a human?
2. How do you respond when you experience shame?
3. How do you respond when someone you're close to is put to shame?
4. Have you ever seen new life come out of death in your own life?
5. What opportunities do you have to proclaim the good news of new life in Jesus?
6. What holds you back?
