

¡Hola! ¿Cómo te llamas?

Person A: You are a young person meeting Person B, an older person. You keep using the informal forms, which seems to annoy Person B.	Person B: You are an older person meeting Person A, a younger person. Person A keeps using the informal forms, which annoys you.
Person A: You are two professionals introducing yourselves in a loud room. You can't seem to hear the name of Person B. Person B has to spell it a few times, since you keep misunderstanding the letters.	Person B: You are two professionals introducing yourselves in a loud room. Person A You and Person B are both students. You meet and say hello. You are having a great day, but Person B is having a terrible day. You are extremely cheery.	Person B You and Person A are both students. You meet and say hello. You are having a terrible day, but Person A seems to be having a great day. Person A's cheerfulness gets on your nerves, and you leave in disgust.
Person A You are a student. You want to know if Person B is Professor Rivera. Person B is indeed Professor Rivera, but seems very busy. When Professor Rivera says "see you tomorrow!" you are confused, since there's no class tomorrow.	Person B You are Professor Rivera. Person A, a student, wants to know if you are Professor Rivera. You're too busy to talk right now, so you listen distractedly, then say "see you tomorrow!" and rush off.
Person A At the office: You meet a new co-worker, Partner B. You're pretty sure that Partner B is "Lobo", an old friend from college. You greet Lobo enthusiastically.	Person B At the office: You meet a new co-worker, Partner A. Partner A seems convinced that you're "Lobo," an old friend of theirs. You are definitely not "Lobo."
