Harrington Urges Big Fight Against Poverty

BY K. A. BERLANDT

Economics philosopher Michael Harrington urged his University audience yesterday to form a "party for the abolition of poverty" to beat the "pro-poverty Dixiecrats-Republican coalition."

Before an overflow crowd in West Pauley Ballroom, Harrington said solution of the American poverty problem, encompassing a full employment economy, reallocation of resources, and redistribution of wealth, would require an anti-poverty party.

Harrington, who has been consulted by the White House on his views on poverty, added, "I suspect the anti-poverty party is going to be called the Democratic Party."

"The poor are not simply unemployed," he said. "The poor never have one problem; the poor have many problems. They need jobs, housing and education."

Harrington, author of "The Other America: Poverty in the U.S.," said unless "a massive effort is made to create 26,000,000 new jobs in the next seven years, the poor will recruit."

Abolishing poverty will save money, Harrington said. According to Sacramento figures, the city's blighted section covers 8 per cent of the city's area, comprises 20 per cent of its population, and accounts for 12 per cent of its tax revenue; the area receives 50 per cent of the city's health services and 41 per cent of its police protection, and accounts for more than 50 per cent of its delinquency and tuberculosis cases.

Harrington also endorsed a massive federal public works program. "Let the people of Harlem be paid for tearing Harlem down," he said.

He stressed "the necessity of socialism in modern society," but opposed "Barry Goldwater socialism for the rich," in which he included "tax cut conservatism which reconstructs poverty."

He also listed racists, the American Medical Association, and real estate agents as members of the pro-poverty lobby.

The AFL-CIO, middle-class liberalism, religious ideals, and the civil rights movement were cited as proponents of the fight against poverty.

Harrington concluded that the proposed massive, long-range plan required political realignment, specifically in the Democratic Party.

He proposed the ending of the Congressional seniority system if the chairmen-by-right-of-seniority did not follow the party platform in their committee work.

He also suggested that Southern delegations not representing the Negro segments of their populations not be seated at this summer's Democratic convention.

Special ASUC Senate Meet Plans Three Year Program

BY JIM BRANSON

The ASUC Senate needs "a great deal more purpose, direction, and guidance," according to ASUC President Mel Levine.

Levine spoke last night at a special Senate meeting where he issued a three year plan for ASUC legislation.

The meeting was a Senate gathering as a committee of the whole to discuss the long range plans and goals of the Association.

The purpose of the plan is to provide "a meaningful, creative, related and tangible program" in order to solve the student problems that "obviously exist." "These solutions will not be completed in one semester, nor in three," Levine said, "but hopefully a solid foundation can be laid by this year's Senate."

First some of the problems of the Senate itself must be solved, he continued. One of these is that students have little knowledge of the ASUC. This can be solved by having each of the area representatives set up an intricate system of communication with his constituents.

That there is something to communicate is obvious, he added. The ASUC is beginning a program for academic reform, but the senators know very little about what kind of action students expect.

There are many other problems, such as "what eating facilities are required; what library facilities can the ASUC help provide; and what are the strong and weak points of the Intercollegiate Athletic program?" Student opinion is needed on these and other issues, and better communication is needed to get that opinion, he said.

Another problem facing the Senate is continuity. There is no such thing as standing policy, Levine said. Problems are attacked over and over by different Senates with the same lack of success.

An efficient filing system and a history of the ASUC could solve this problem, he proposed.

Johnny Mathis at Harmon

Singer Johnny Mathis will appear at 8 p.m., tonight in Harmon Gymnasium. His appearance is sponsored by the Freshman Class as a benefit for Cal Camp. Tickets will be sold at the door for $1.50 to $3.50. For more information see page 8.

Adlai Newest Charter Guest

Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, has accepted an invitation to share the podium with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, April 2 at Berkeley's Charter Day Ceremonies.

Former Illinois Governor Stevenson will speak briefly while U Thant is the main speaker, confirmed Emily G. Elliott, administrator's assistant at the Office of Public Ceremonies.

The topic of Stevenson's speech has not been announced.

Stevenson and U Thant will receive honorary degrees at the ceremonies.

Stevenson was a presidential candidate in 1952 and 1956. He last spoke here in 1960 while campaigning for the late President Kennedy. An audience of approximately 10,000, which filled Hearst Greek Theater, responded to his speech with a minute and a half standing ovation.

Members of the crowd had broken out old Stevenson buttons from the 1956 campaign, including a large number of the famous "silver shoes" purchased by Democrats in the '56 campaign.

Following his speech he was honored at a luncheon arranged by members of the University political science department.

U.S., Mexican Chiefs Speak at UCLA

Rain in Los Angeles this Friday could keep virtually all UCLA students from hearing President Lyndon B. Johnson and Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez-Mateos speak at the Charter Day ceremonies.

The ceremonies, in which Johnson and Lopez-Mateos will receive honorary Doctor of Law degrees, will be held on UCLA's athletic field. But rain could drive the ceremonies indoors.

The move inside would chop the predicted crowd of 34,000 to a meager 1,800.

Royce Hall, the building with the largest audience capacity on campus, holds 1,800 people.

Almost all of the seats are officially reserved for visiting dignitaries and the press, and unofficially, all but 50 or 60.

The average student would not have a chance at the few seats open to students, since these seats are "reserved" for student government officers.

At this time the long-range weather forecasts for the Los Angeles area do not predict rain.

Governor Brown will welcome the two presidents to UCLA, and University President Clark Kerr will introduce them and confer the degrees.

After the Charter Day ceremonies the two leaders will fly to Palm Springs for private talks.

TO OPEN THE DOOR

After you get your job is the time your university training guarantees rapid progress.

You need a specific answer to the question, "What can you do?" when you apply for a job.

The answer, "Anything," isn't impressive; but when you can say, "I can take dictation and transcribe it rapidly and give you beautifully typed, correctly punctuated, attractively set-up letters to sign," you will be able "to get inside the door" and earn your salary while you work toward a more responsible job.

For UC students who are interested in learning office skills, our location is convenient—and our personal instruction makes it possible for students to come at hours which will fit into U.C. schedules.

Let's Get a New Gym!

Unknown to many people, there is a growing movement on this campus to buy Stanford's gym and transport it to this campus to replace Harmon Gym.

It all started many years ago when students and faculty alike began to complain that Cal was too big and impersonal. They claimed that the rat-maze of Dwinelle Hall, and the cavern of Harmon Gym contributed to the lost look on the face of most students and made them all conformists.

After all, have you ever noticed how everybody at basketball games wears the same color—white? And how they all shout the same things together?

The administration has now charged forward with a program to eliminate "conformity" and instead bring "togetherness" to the University. The best example of this would be the required served meals at the dormitories or the friendly "Chancellor's reception" at the beginning of each year.

The program to acquire Stanford's gym began almost by accident. A high California administrator was invited to have dinner at Stanford with Wallace Sterling, Stanford's president.

However, he forgot to ask for directions to Sterling's house. Arriving at Stanford, he found a quaint little building which seemed the perfect residence for Sterling, who has no children.

Imagine his surprise when a student answered his knocking on the front door and told him that the building was actually a basketball gymnasium.

Needless to say, he fell in love with the gym. A very important consideration was that Stanford's gym was a much better place for entertainers like Joan Baez, Artur Rubinstein, and Johnny Mathis. As Cal students who have visited the Stanford gym know, it has an atmosphere all of its own.

Finally—and surprisingly—basketball had something to do with the decision to buy the gym. Now that his cagers have won their last two games at Stanford, Rene Herrerias has submitted a requisition form for Stanford's gym. The athletic department works slowly, but I think it is only a matter of time until Rene gets his request.

After all, with the sole exception of the Washington State series, his team has not been able to win back-to-back games at Harmon this year.

Rene claims it is only a "coincidence" that Cal has won twice in a row at Stanford (and, hopefully, three straight next month). But he must be hatching some sort of plot, or otherwise Cal's record and basketball in general just don't make sense!

And I think that if Cal got Stanford's gym, students would stop complaining about the gigantic architectural monstrosities on campus. Just the little monstrosities.

Cal Swimmers Beat UOP; JV Nine Wins Too

Cal's swimming team won its fifth consecutive swimming meet yesterday, defeating the University of the Pacific, 65-30, at Harmon Pool. UOP, in its first meet of the season, did not offer serious competition as Cal experimented throughout the meet.

Among some of Cal's unusual combinations was Jim Roumasset, normally a freestyler, swimming in the 200 yard butterfly. Jay Rodrigo, Cal's top diver, arrived too late to dive but competed in the 400 yard freestyle relay, the last event of the evening.

Cal's Camden Wall Selected Player-of-Week by Hoop Scribes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO—California's Camden Wall, playing what his coach called "Camden's best game of his career" against Stanford last Saturday, was named Player-of-the-Week at the Northern California Basketball Writers' Luncheon.

The coaches at the luncheon, staunch advocates of defensive basketball, also made news as they said that it's time the man with the ball got a break.

They told the weekly writers' luncheon that the man with the ball should be protected against offensive foul calls in certain circumstances.

One is when the offensive player drives past his man, goes in the air for a lay-up and falls on a defensive man who's planted his feet and obtained position while the driver is in the air.

Another is when the man on the post beats the player guarding him, wheels for a shot and slams into his man who has shifted position and planted his feet in the path of the shooter.

"Let's face it," commented California Coach Rene Herrerias. "The players are getting cute about it.

They know the referee will call it on the offense if they get in the dribbler's way."

The coaches agreed the number of charging fouls called against the offensive man have increased this season.

Mike Cimino of St. Mary's said it was a tough judgment call and that the rule should be altered to make it easier for the officials.

Stanford's Howie Dallmar, whose Indians face unbeaten UCLA Saturday at Stanford gym, was apprehensive about the contest. The Bruins defeated Stanford twice in Southern California.

"If we stand around the way we did against California Saturday night, we'll get bombed," said Dallmar, who's out to snap UCLA's 21-game winning string.

California Nine Tests SFS This Afternoon At Edwards

Cal's baseball team goes to bat against San Francisco State today at 3:15 p.m., on Edwards Field, showing more muscles at this stage of the season than they have in several seasons.

For once the horsehide situation with the Bears is good hit, doubtful pitching. This, for Coach George Wolfman, must be very frustrating considering the years when he could exhibit more good pitchers than the SF Giants and bemoan a lack of hitters.

This year Wolfman has pro prospects Mike Epstein and Craig Morton—who plays two sports very well—leading his clubbers. Morton belted out three hits and drove in three runs against the alumni Saturday, and he should be leading the Bears today.

Wolfman may have trouble selecting the pitcher—out of nearly a dozen candidates—for the Gator game, but its outcome, if like last year, isn't in doubt. In 1963 the Bears swept three games from SF State.

Beer-Soused Novice Makes Sky-Dive

(Editor's note: The following is the first part of a two-part feature on the experiences of two novices in the booming sport of sky-diving. The concluding part will appear tomorrow.)

BY RICH DI GRAZIA

Over a couple of beers (thirty to be exact) most things sound good and some even sound brilliant. The idea a friend of mine proposed, upon opening his thirty-first bottle of Olympia (It's the water, Ha!), sounded to me to be the peak of dare-devil brilliancy.

"Let's join the University Sky Dive Club, burp," he said.

After a short pause I agreed. Whereupon I opened my thirty-first bottle of Lucky ("When you live in America") and christened our venture with a toast: "To the thin red line, the regiment, Leonardo Da Vinci and us, gur-gle-gurgle."

Money to join the club, which allows a member to make a first jump for a small fee of $20-30, was collected by my friend and I by the simple expediency of going into training (we stopped drinking beer for three days).

Following our training period, which to us seemed at least equal to a Ghandi fast, we presented our pink little bodies to the club president, at the time Bill Calhoun. We were accepted for membership and told to report to the Livermore Sky Ranch for training the following hot summer Sunday morning.

A more arid place I have never seen.

We drove past a battered biplane that probably saw action in the First World War, through a dusty parking area and only averted plowing into the parachute packing area by a few uphill inches. My friend's almost-demonished '50 Packard had very little, if any brakes.

The jumpers, after their initial start of surprise, ran over to us, pointed at the car and hooted with laughter. Among their Corvettes, Jaguars, Triumphs, etc., I guess that wasn't too unkind.

The thing that really got me is that they continued to laugh when they saw us.

I was wearing a pair of baggy-grease-stained coveralls that had served me well in a local fruit cannery the previous summer, and a pair of ancient boots, one of which had a sole held on by a few nails and a crosspatch of black adhesive tape.

The yellowing white silk scarf knotted around my throat and hanging limply down my back in the motionless air I'd worn solely for effect.

My friend was similarly accoutered but for a few exceptions, notably a one-and-a-half inch reddish-brown scrabble which he insisted he'd grown, because "parachuting is very artistic."

The parachutists crowding around us looked as if they'd stepped out of the well manicured pages of Sports Illustrated. They wore tailored jump suits, white shirts and ties, and some even had haircuts.

At any rate the laughter subsided, and we were made welcome. The welcome consisted of hanging us in a harness and instructing us in reserve-chute procedure.

I had a few difficulties with the maneuver. Every time I threw out the reserve, the lines tangled in my feet.

The few sky divers who could bear to watch shook their heads, tsked and kept mumbling, "No, no. Not like that."

"How long should I do this if my main chute fails?" I asked.

"Til you land," was the reply. It broke up the assembled group, but somehow made my already queasy stomach queasier.

After the pleasure of the harness, practicing parachute landing falls in the sawdust pit was a breeze. That is, if you don't mind having your bones rattled from your toes to your teeth.

Five hours after our early morning arrival, with the mid-day sun blazing on our heads, my friend and I were pronounced ready for our first jump.

We decided to eat lunch before the great event. Somehow the hamburgers and milkshakes had the quality about them of a condemned man's last meal.

Up until then neither my friend nor I had seriously contemplated what we were about to do: get into an airplane, fly to 3,000 feet, climb out on the wing struts and, at the command of a total stranger, the jump master, leap into the blue space!

(To be concluded)

AWAY HE GOES . . . A California skydiver leaps into space.

Student Drinking Problem for Southland

The UCLA administration has announced a five-point plan to end drinking at off-campus dormitory parties, and curtail what one official describes as a "dangerous situation."

A statement released by the UCLA Housing Service office listed five new regulations designed to curb under-age drinking. They are:

- No house or hall monies may be used to purchase alcoholic beverages, including beer.

• No organized collection of monies shall be taken for the purchase of alcoholic beverages, including beer, except in the case of organizations whose membership consists entirely of persons who may legally buy and consume it.

- No posted advertisement for any house or hall social function may contain mention of any alcoholic beverage being served, including beer.

• Any infraction of these regulations will be penalized by automatic cancellation of the House's off-campus activities.

- House advisors cannot be expected to overlook violations of the law at any function at which they are present.

T. Roger Nudd, UCLA Associate Dean of Students and Housing, in explaining the need for the action, said "a fairly dangerous situation has resulted in which the University, in effect, sponsors social functions which violate the state liquor laws.

"Since the University approves and sponsors the functions, we are, in effect, acquiescing to a violation of the law."

Nudd also expressed concern that students who "over-indulge" at off-campus parties might later become involved in traffic or other accidents.

The UCLA Daily Bruin quoted two students' reactions to the new regulations.

H. Kern, a member of the inter-residence halls council said, "I see where the University wants to protect its position. This is merely a clarification of policies already in existence."

Allen Morris, president of a living group called Bacchus House, said the measure was unnecessary, ineffectual, and that "our floor has had a number of parties during recent semesters where liquor was present . . . yet we have never had an injury or complaint."

Community Service Interviews

Students interested in working in youth organizations, hospitals and schools for emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children should look into the University YWCA's Community Service Program.

Interviews for positions will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 3:30-5:30 p.m. today through Friday at 2600 Bancroft Way.

The YWCA offers participation in 16 East Bay Area agencies.

Included are two new programs to be operated in primarily Negro neighborhoods and in areas of cultural and economic deprivation. Student volunteers will work with elementary school children in an effort to increase their motivation and offer them opportunities for leadership and creativity.

Men students are especially needed to give leadership to fatherless boys.

The volunteer experience provides opportunities for recommendations for Peace Corps positions as well as providing one with a means of exploring career possibilities, according to the YWCA.

Students interested in the Community Service program may pick up pamphlets at the University YWCA and obtain descriptions about the various agencies.

ASUC Presents 'Just Dance'

The ASUC will present the second session of "Just Dance," at 8 p.m. today in the Pauley Ballroom of the Student Union.

Last Tuesday some one hundred students were on hand to learn the triple swing, double-time cha-cha, and the twist. A favorable ratio of women to men kicked off what appears to be another successful semester of the class.

The class will continue each Tuesday evening throughout the semester. New members are welcome at all times. Weekly review of previous patterns and introduction of new patterns and dances illustrates the motto of the class which is "Never too late to join."

Math Department Seeks Readers

The Math department is urgently seeking upper division readers, especially in 175, 220B, and 220D. Interested students may apply at the departmental office, 301 Campbell Hall.

Informed?

We don't think so — not if you're like so many students we've talked with lately. It's OK to be armed with conclusions, but a few basic facts from the original source is the American Way of evaluating our problems. Or as George Washington said, "Truth will ultimately prevail where there is pains taken to bring it to light."

So if your mind isn't yet "made up" and can tolerate a few more of the facts, visit THE AMERICAN OPINION LIBRARY, 904 San Pablo Ave., Albany, California, Tel. 524-4424, DISTRIBUTORS OF JOHN BIRCH SOCIETY MATERIALS.

Technical representatives of the MITRE Corporation will be conducting interviews on campus

February 19 & 20

MITRE designs and develops systems that enable our military commanders to detect attack and retaliate instantly. Typical systems include Nuclear Detonation Detection and Reporting System, North American Air Defense Combat Operations Center, and Back-Up Interceptor Center. MITRE is also experimenting with techniques for future air traffic control systems.

For the young systems engineer there is no more rewarding work. You associate with the top men in your field. You work in an atmosphere that allows you to extend your capabilities professionally and academically.

At MITRE, men trained in single disciplines are encouraged to grow beyond their original fields of interest. Systems designers learn to work from an increasingly broad base.

You may work in such diverse areas as information theory, computer design, display techniques, propagation, or human engineering. You may analyze. You may synthesize. You may deal with systems or individual components. At the highest levels, you may have to consider political, economic and social factors . . . as well as the available and predictable technology.

Requirements, B.S., M.S., or Ph.D. in these disciplines — electronics, physics, and mathematics. MITRE is located in pleasant, suburban Boston and also has facilities in Washington, D.C. and Colorado Springs. If an interview will be inconvenient, inquiries may be directed in confidence to Vice President — Technical Operations, The MITRE Corporation, Box 208, Dept. CN14, Bedford, Mass.

Dallas and Ruby

If Jack Ruby's defense lawyers are unable to find 12 impartial jurors in Dallas, chances are they won't be able to find them in any other part of Texas.

It may well be true that there won't be 12 persons out of the 900 jury candidates who haven't already formed an opinion on the Ruby case. But distance from the scene of the crime is irrelevant in this case, as citizens in Fort Worth, El Paso, or Anchorage, Alaska are as aware of the events following President Kennedy's assassination as the citizens of Dallas. They all saw the same television coverage of the shooting, and the incident has become the most popular rerun of the season.

The defense is not contending that Ruby did not shoot Oswald, but that he was temporarily insane and not legally responsible for the shooting. Thus the case will rest on testimony of witnesses who came in contact with Ruby immediately after the trial and medical experts who have examined his psychological makeup. The citizens of Dallas will be able to judge his sanity as well—or as poorly—as people anywhere else.

Unfortunately for Ruby, his case has been unavoidably wrapped up in the American people's frustration at not being able to try Oswald and in the emotional atmosphere of charges and countercharges of Communist conspiracy, right wing conspiracy, and conspiracy between Oswald and Ruby. But it is wishful thinking to believe the emotions are limited to Dallas.—PAT MAR

Pickets and Traffic

Section two states that it is unlawful to block the entrance of a church, school, business, store, etc., preventing the passage through such an entrance.

Sunday, more than 100 CORE demonstrators literally caused a traffic jam on Telegraph Avenue. They made it impossible for anyone to walk by Lucky Store No. 18 without going out into the street. This forced cars to stop and hence traffic was jammed up for blocks.

Needless to say the mass demonstration also made it near impossible to get in and out of the store without being bumped and jostled by the marching demonstrators.

Violation of Ordinance 2795 is a disorderly conduct misdemeanor punishable by not more than a $500 fine or six months in jail or both.

Two Berkeley policemen answered the call of the store manager, but did nothing to break up the demonstrators. As a result the store was forced to close down at 5:30 p.m.

The store manager said that Lucky Store No. 18 has two Negro employees out of a total employment of nine. He couldn't understand why CORE didn't picket the branches that didn't hire Negroes rather than his store.

It's very convenient for these seedy looking "world Campus CORE has reached the point of disorderly conduct.

Sunday, when over 100 CORE demonstrators turned out to picket Lucky Store No. 18 on the corner of Haste Street and Telegraph Avenue, they were clearly violating Berkeley City Ordinance 2795, Sections one and two.

Section one states that it is unlawful to, by lying, sitting or standing, block a sidewalk to an extent that free passage along the same is impossible.

saviors" to march down Telegraph on a Sunday afternoon or on a weekday after classes and demonstrate before a store with no realization of what they are doing. A great way to meet your friends and soak up the sun.

With such a complete lack of planning, which so typically marks most of Campus CORE demonstrations, some day one of these escapades is going to get out of hand. That's exactly what happened Sunday and the Berkeley police will probably not tolerate it again.

LETTERS to the ICE BOX

To the Ice Box:

As is the case of a University of this size, it takes many voices for the administration to realize that a change in procedure is necessary.

For the six semesters that I have had to go through filing of study lists, I have yet to find a time when there have been no voices raised against the early filing of the study lists. The complaints are valid, and yet the administration has not remedied the situation.

It is inconceivable that under the present situation a student might have to have his study list signed before he has even attended the first meeting of his class. This is the argument behind having the filing dates of the study lists starting a week later, i.e., in the case of this semester, February 20 rather than February 13.

I think the situation should be looked into very seriously by the administration. I am raising my voice in favor of the change and urge others who feel the same way to do likewise; it takes many voices.

—Ray Beasley
Junior, Physics

To the Ice Box:

The American Civil Liberties Union has charged that "Lee Harvey Oswald, had he lived, would have been deprived of all opportunity to receive a fair trial by the conduct of the police and prosecuting officials of Dallas, under pressure from the public and the news media." If one accepts this statement, the press must accept at least partial responsibility for the failure of due process of law to be applied to Oswald. Up to now, few editors have even attempted to vindicate themselves by granting Oswald, posthumously, a chance to defend himself against trial by press. It is hoped that the Daily Cal will take freedom of the press seriously, and give coverage to the Warren Commission and its findings, reports from Attorney Mark Lane, and other relevant developments. As a start, I strongly suggest that the Daily Cal reprint the full text of the Lane brief submitted to the Warren Commission. If the brief is too long it could perhaps be serialized or edited. It may well be that, as Warren stated, we may never know the truth of what happened, but the attempt must be made.

—Gene Rothman
Junior, English/Sociology

To the Ice Box:

After reading the letter by Judith Baston who sneered at the so-called Co-op "utopia," one gets the impression that it's Miss Baston who is seeking utopia in campus living. It's amazing how one can scoop up so much squawking against a living group that is on the University approved housing list, as Miss Baston did, and took up so much time and space on the Daily Cal to cry about it. If Miss Baston has so much time to burn, may I suggest that she use some of it to learn to hold back tears when seeing a room without a rug, a kitchen without a dish-washing machine, or a bedroom that is not "luxurious."

I admit that the Co-op living condition has its drawbacks, but paying a reasonably low living expense, which Co-op offers, at the expense of a little hardship is not that bad for any college student, is it? Of course, there are always girls who frown at the thought of sticking their hands in vegetable barrels or washing sinks, or living in a place which doesn't give carpet treatment, or other things which don't spell luxury. Maybe they, among whom is Miss Baston, should stay home where mama will take care of little girls.

To Miss Baston, may I suggest using Ivory liquid for dish-washing. TV says it really works! And maybe she should try this address which provides ideal living conditions: Luxury Palace, Ivory Tower, Utopia.

To the Ice Box:

Speaking from a point mid-way between the ages of students and their parents, I would like to note that though "University sex life" may be different from the parents' day and age, let us not assume that the emotions and desires of human beings then were any different than they are today. However, they were, for the most part able to control their desires. Even Freud, contrary to the wishful thinking of many, saw that man must control a part of his selfish impulses in order to reap the advantage of living in society.

Nevertheless, whether or not a girl consents to sleep with her boy friend is really an individual "free will" matter—aside from the fact that any resultant children (it is still possible) may become wards of society, parents may be "very disappointed" (well, obviously they don't matter, things were different in their "day and age"), and the girl may actually "lose her self-respect and the respect of men."

The really sad part of it is the girls' feelings that they must give in in order to have dates. "They expect it and if you don't do it they drop you." Is a Saturday

University Excels In Production Of Bach Oratorio

BY PAUL HERTELENDY

In its most ambitious production in over two years, the Department of Music is presenting a performance of Bach's St. Matthew's Passion of epic proportions. Sunday night's opening in Hertz Hall unveiled the Repertory Chorus and Chamber Orchestra under the baton of Edward Lawton, who managed to corral ten of the best soloists in the Bay Area to round out the production.

Review

This titanic uncut performance of Bach's most intricate and perhaps most moving masterwork calls for two separate orchestras, two choruses, and two sets of soloists, the matching groups distinctly separated.

That anyone could hold such an assortment together would be surprising, but that Lawton managed to make this three hour, fifty minute work jell and hold his audience to the 12:20 a.m. end borders on the incredible.

Major credit for the success goes to James Schwabacher, who on opening night was the finest and most expressive evangelist we ever hope to hear anywhere. This extremely long, difficult, and demanding high tenor role showed Schwabacher actually growing stronger as the evening progressed, and his rare combination of textual understanding and vocal eloquence made of this somewhat uneven evening a night to remember for a long, long time.

Special kudos are due for soloists Edgar Jones, Margot Blum, Dickson Titus and Carole Bogard, who along with James Fankhauser, John Dyar, Marjorie Campagna-Pinto and Lynn Detweiler probably form the most imposing array of vocalists ever assembled in Hertz at one time in its six-year existence. Jones' portrayal of Jesus was a particularly effective and inspiring role by a mature baritone.

The well-schooled University Repertory Chorus in its warm, yet precise rendition, also managed the best German diction in recent years, a standard maintained, surprisingly enough, by all ten of the soloists.

The orchestra, unfortunately, suffered noticeably from lack of either rehearsal or practice, factors that cannot be overcome merely by assembling an imposing array of student and professional players. Many of the instrumental obligatos to the vocal solos were, however, distinctive, with oboists Ray Duste and Bruce Haynes and flutist Jane Bowers consistently polished through this lengthy Lenten program.

By next Monday's final concert the work may have lost its remaining rough spots. For those enthusiasts who will be turned away by a predictable full house, we might note that some 80 people had to leave at the 10:15 intermission due to the extreme length of the program. By past experience, it is safe to say most of them will gladly hand over stubs to any music lover outside the main door. But don't tell anybody.

date really that important? Is there is no other reason that men date girls? Even Tom Jones didn't seduce the girl he really loved and he didn't want to marry the girls he slept with!

A few of us know there are tremendous rewards in marriage where mutual respect, consideration and love (which is not synonymous with sex) are combined.

Peace Corps Discussion, Test Today

The ASUC Peace Corps Committee will answer questions on Peace Corps service at noon-1 p.m. and 2-4 p.m. today in the Heller Room of the Student Union. The discussion session precedes the Peace Corps tests slated for Saturday.

Mathis in Cal Camp Benefit Tonight

Johnny Mathis, recording, television, and film star, will appear at 8 p.m. today in Harmon Gym. Mathis has accomplished a feat few singers have duplicated—to date he has recorded three single records and twelve albums which have sold over a million copies each.

He appeared briefly in "Lizzie" and "A Certain Smile," and sang the title tunes to "Wild as the Wind" and "The Best of Everything."

Fans describe his voice as velvet throated, lush, and romantic—and even critics admit he has a tremendous range.

Best selling discs recorded by Mathis include "Chances Are," "Wild Is The Wind," "Twelfth Of Never," "Gina," "What Will Mary Say?" and "Misty."

Mathis's appearance is sponsored by the Freshman Class as a benefit for Cal Camp. Tickets will be sold at the door; $1.50 and $2 for students, and $2.75 and $3.50 general admission.

Mathis has performed all over the world and has appeared on television several times. He prefers working before live audiences at "popularly priced engagements" according to the program for his concert.

A student at San Francisco State College for four years he achieved nationwide fame as a high-jumper in 1954-55, clearing the bar at 6 feet, 5 1/2 inches—close to the then standing world record.

He lives with his managers in Beverly Hills, enjoys gourmet food, and collects sweaters and records.

In "the great American tradition Johnny Mathis began at the bottom," the program says. He was born in a basement apartment on Sept. 20, 1935, on San Francisco's Post Street.

He was one of eight children. When he was eight, his parents acquired a piano and encouraged his love for singing. During his teen years he studied singing with a woman who volunteered to teach him for no pay.

In his college years he sang in some night clubs. His present manager heard him sing at "an informal afternoon jam session in San Francisco's Black Hawk Nightclub," and Mathis's career began.
