Ring-Around-the-Rosy At Lucky Stores, Inc.

BY JIM WILLWERTH

A tug of war with groceries being pulled, piled, stacked and shuffled in every direction is standard operating procedure these days at Lucky Store No. 18.

Standard, that is, between 4 and 6 p.m. when Campus CORE daily stages its picket and "shop-in," to protest alleged discriminatory hiring practices in the regional grocery chain's store.

CORE claims the chain has not lived up to earlier agreements—which resulted from negotiations some three months ago—to eliminate racial discrimination in hiring.

They cite Safeway Stores' hiring 40 per cent non-white clerks in the last three months as example of the progress they seek. Lucky Store Inc., according to CORE, is not making the same progress.

The validity of this claim, however, is no longer the issue with many University students.

Strenuous objections to CORE's "shop-in" tactics, which cost local Lucky Store No. 18 some $50 a night in property destruction and overtime pay, are being voiced in an "anti-shop-in" movement.

The object of the "anti-shop-in" is to put the groceries back on the store's shelves as fast as CORE members stack them on check stands.

The result is a unique back and forth operation which, for the merchandise, is a kind of Coup de Grocery. Sometimes the dissident factions reach the point of literally raiding each others' baskets.

The operation goes something like this:

The CORE member fills his basket or bag with armfuls of groceries from the store shelf and takes them to the check stand.

The "anti-shop-in" demonstrator picks up the items as soon as they touch the counter, and carries them back to the shelf.

As they are restacked, the CORE member scoops the same items off the same shelf and heads for the checkstand.

The spontaneity of the chain reaction would bring tears to the eyes of most nuclear physicists.

Also, large numbers of the new protest movement sit on the check stand so that CORE baskets of groceries may not pass to the registers for tabulation.

The "anti-shop-ins" are University students who have drifted into Lucky Store No. 18 on their own volition.

A large number of Boalt Hall students participate, some of whom have offered to work after closing hours to sort groceries.

Outside, the pickets numbered only some 15 marchers last night, contrasted with over 100 who marched last week. Most CORE demonstrators were "shopping-in."

Regular store shoppers have used the early morning hours to shop, Louis Mascola, store manager, said.

"But," he said, "the elderly shoppers are getting very displeased about the whole thing."

When passage to the checkstands was blocked by students,

CORE demonstrators started to pile groceries on empty display stands.

One CORE demonstrator said he was buying tuna fish for a "YMCA fish fry" when asked by Mascola why he was purchasing so much tuna.

"I'm on the entertainment committee," he replied.

Speaking for CORE, Edward Berman, Campus CORE leader, said, "We feel that our only effective means of protest is economic harassment."

"CORE and Lucky Stores Inc. know there are plenty of qualified applicants if they just take the trouble to contact various minority specialists in employment."

"Safeway Stores has demonstrated in their new hiring policy that qualified Negroes are available. Lucky has violated their part of the agreement they made with us," Berman said.

Unconstitutional

Graphic Arts Sale Stall Move Defeated

The Student Judicial Committee yesterday ruled unconstitutional the referendum presenting sale of the Graphic Arts Department to student vote.

The ASUC constitution states that all Senate actions are subject to referendum "except actions taken on budgets, appropriations, and/or expenditures of funds."

Petitioners James King and Bernard Herschberg, both seniors, with graduate student Jerry Miller as their counsel, argued the sale of Graphic Arts was primarily a policy matter. But Judicial Committee ruled although not every matter affecting the budget was exempt from referendum, the Graphic Arts sale was clearly budgetary.

Herschberg, who submitted the referendum signed by 1,019 students to ASUC vice-president Bob Draper yesterday morning, said Graphic Arts was now lost.

J-Com member Ron Yank said if the referendum had been submitted as a constitutional amendment Draper would have had to put it on the ballot.

Yank added, "On budgetary matters, if what the students want is different from what the Senate wants, there must be a constitutional amendment—the constitution was set up this way."

Herschberg said, "We are considering the initiative of a constitutional amendment in this area, but we shall await the formal written judgement of J-Com."

J-Com is holding an open meeting to discuss an advisory opinion on whether an injunction can be issued before a referendum or amendment has been submitted to the officers of the ASUC.

Senate Votes on Referendum

A motion which would give students the power to directly initiate ASUC action will be presented at tonight's ASUC Senate meeting.

The motion, which will be introduced by Rep-at-Large Bob George, proposes that if a petition on an initiative is signed by five per cent of the student body, it must be voted on in the next ASUC general election.

As it is now, a student referendum can be called by petition only if the senate has already acted on the matter in question.

Last September a petition which proposed that the ASUC Store be converted into a cooperative enterprise was not considered because the Senate had not yet taken any action on the measure.

Under the system proposed by George's motion Senate action would not effect a petition in any way. The Senate would not even be involved.

The proposal grew out of a resolution passed by the Student Forum. Mike Adams of the Student Forum said the proposal is designed to reduce the inefficiency in the present system of student referendums.

In the present system, a petition is needed to bring an issue before the Senate and another is needed to change Senate action by a student vote. "There is so much red tape it could be a year before action is taken on a proposal," Adams said.

Rep-at-Large Mike Gold said a petition signed by only one per cent of the students is necessary to bring an issue before the Senate now. That's five times better than the new motion proposes, he said.

Gold added he feared students could be misled into passing poor action under the new proposal. Students are not as close to the problems of legislation as the senators are, according to Gold.

ASUC First Vice-President Bob Draper said this "is a question of what type of responsibility the student body wishes to take upon itself. . . . If the student body wishes to take this responsibility, then I for one will welcome it."

The proposal will probably be sent to Operations Committee tonight. If it passes the Senate it will probably appear before the students as a constitutional amendment.

In other Senate action the Student Welfare and Activities Committee will report on the Slate proposal, Capacity 712. The proposal suggests there be a test of University fallout shelters to judge if they are adequate for the number of people promised.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in 406-408 Student Union.

Anti-Rumford Initiative on Ballot; Petition Gets 650,000 Signatures

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Records filed with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan showed Monday that an initiative measure to nullify the Rumford housing act apparently has qualified for the November ballot.

Jordan said it would not be official until returns from all counties are in, but 50 counties had certified 583,029 signatures on petitions with 468,259 required.

Midnight Monday was the deadline for county clerks to complete their certifications, but it could be several days before they reach Jordan for the official canvass.

The Rumford act prohibits racial discrimination in the sale or rental of about 70 per cent of the housing in California.

The initiative measure, if approved by the voters, would amend the State Constitution to prohibit the state from interfering with an owner's right to refuse to rent or sell.

The certified signatures ranged from 6 for Mendocino County to 326,486 from Los Angeles County.

Others included Alameda 37,240; San Diego 34,689; Sacramento 22,973; San Francisco 20,363; Contra Costa 15,488;

Fresno 13,841; San Mateo 13,282; Santa Clara 11,531.

Riverside 8,325; San Joaquin 7,631; Solano 5,360; Santa Barbara 5,262; Butte 3,732; Monterey 2,786; Santa Cruz 2,585; Tulare 2,184; Sonoma 1,298; Kings, 1,018; Placer 906; Shasta 903; El Dorado 939; Lake 845.

Humboldt 515; San Benito 42; Sutter 676; Yuba 576; Stanislaus 3,988; Mendocino 331; San Luis Obispo 1,051; Ventura 4,636; Marin 1,418; Napa 3,481; Kern 16,179; Orange 42,364.

The committee for Home Protection, sponsor of the initiative campaign, had claimed victory Feb. 4 in its drive to place the measure on the ballot.

The committee, backed primarily by the California Real Estate Association and the California Apartment Owners Association, said then that petitions bearing 650,000 to 700,000 signatures had been filed with county clerks.

The committee has attacked the Rumford act as "unfair housing," while backers of the bill have called it the "fair housing act." The law itself carries no such designation.

Gov. Brown, who urged passage of the law in 1963, has opposed the initiative, predicting the campaign will touch off racial strife.

Brown and civil rights groups have questioned the constitutionality of the initiative measure, but the legislative counsel said it was constitutional in his opinion.

Newman Hall Move

Catholic Church Follows Students to Southside

The unannounced but evident move of the Catholic Church to follow the student progressed one more step Sunday when Bishop Floyd Begin of the Oakland Diocese broke ground for construction of the new Newman Hall near campus.

The new Newman Hall is being built on southside because the new residence halls have been built on southside. But not only has the church followed the students across campus—it is beginning to follow them from parochial to secular campuses.

"The greatest donor (to the Newman Hall fund) after the diocese of Oakland has been the students themselves," Bishop Begin announced at the ground-breaking ceremonies.

Traditionally the church has held that all Catholic students should attend Catholic schools. Recently they have apparently realized that parochial schools lack space and are too expensive for the majority of Catholic students to attend.

New and larger facilities on the secular campuses have resulted. During the ceremonies Sunday Archbishop Joseph McGucken of San Francisco told of expanding facilities for Catholic students at San Jose State College, San Francisco City College and the University Medical Center.

Bishop Begin said the increased construction on secular campuses does not mean a new emphasis by the church. "Where we had sufficient facilities we had to insist that they (Catholic students) attend Catholic schools," he said.

At 4:15 p.m., ground at the corner of College Avenue and Dwight Way, the site of the new hall, was officially broken.

The assembled group of students, nuns, priests, friends of Newman Club, and Bishop Begin soon realized exactly what they had asked for in moving across the street from the residence halls—loud speakers blasted rock 'n' roll music from a room in Griffiths Hall.

Bishop Begin called the services of Newman Club a necessary element in establishing in students the "proper blending of natural and supernatural." "The ideal," he said later in an interview, "is to interpret the truths we find in nature into a religious framework."

Grad Makes 'Nouncements

University graduate Bill Brewer has gained national recognition with his original Nutty 'Nouncements—greeting cards that resemble formal announcements but contain messages satirizing foibles of modern civilization.

One Nutty 'Nouncement reads: "The Freeway Planning Commission announces that construction will begin immediately on an underpass and interchange right where your house is sitting. Wishing to avoid imposition to you the Commission voted to move your house 20 feet East of its present location to avoid placing an off ramp through your bathroom."

And another: "The Telephone Company announces that in accordance with our new convenient All Digit Dial System your new number is 583-9521835274061, Area Code 815390-627, and that due to increased business prosperity making possible more investments for more profit we are able to announce a rate increase."

Although full of funniness and incongruities, some Nutty 'Nouncement recipients believed they are the real thing. An official in the State Division of Highways reported his office had been swamped with calls from people asking if their houses were about to be moved away. Other recipients have wondered "if their home had really been sold by Sunny Shingles Realtors; if 500 buffalo were really scheduled to arrive at their house on Tuesday at 3:45 a.m.; or, if theirs had actually been selected as winner of the "Tummy We'd Most Like to Tickle Contest!"

Brewer began writing and illustrating greeting cards in 1957, after he won a nationwide college cartooning contest judged by Steve Allen, Groucho Marx and Al Capp.

As a University student, Brewer drew cartoons for almost all campus publications. He was on the editorial board of the Pelican, campus humor magazine. Tomorrow's Pelican contains a three page story on Brewer with some original cartoons sent to them especially for the current edition.

Cal Ruggers Defeat UBC 21-8, Take World Cup Lead

BY LOWELL HICKEY

California's stronger forwards and a back named Tom Blanchfield led the Bears to an easy 21-8 rugby victory over the University of British Columbia yesterday at Memorial Stadium.

Thus Cal takes a 1-0 lead after two games (the first was a 6-6 tie) in the annual four game World Cup series. The final two matches will be played in Vancouver March 26 and 28.

The one thousand fans that turned out for the match on this brisk afternoon were treated to an exciting and brutal affair.

Numerous fisticuffs broke out in the course of the match and one became so fierce that Cal's Larry Lowell and UBC's Gary Bruce had to be ejected from the game.

The Bears may not have played the game the way the English expect it to be played, but nevertheless they got the job done.

Blanchfield led the winners with 18 points, 15 coming on penalty kicks and three on a 55-yard try.

Tom showed an excellent bit of broken field running and even straightarmed one Thunderbird player in scoring his touchdown. A gentleman with a deep British accent sitting behind this reporter said, "Maybe a fine football runner, but he's got a lot to learn about rugby."

Yet Blanchfield's try tallied the same three points as the one scored by British Columbia, which was done the English way.

UBC's try started with a passing rush out of a scrum, followed by a beautifully well placed kick on the run, which was recovered by the Canadians and run in for the score.

The running kick was booted by Dean MacKinnon and the recovery and try were made by Peter Brown. Fullback Mike Cartmel converted for two more points.

All this came shortly after Blanchfield had made an 18-yard penalty kick to put the Bears ahead 3-0. With their try and conversion the Thunderbirds took their only lead of the afternoon,

Shortly after that Blanchfield made his second penalty kick from 10 yards out and the Bears had the lead for good. The versatile wing made three more penalty kicks of 25, 27 and 30 yards before the game was over.

Cal's other try was made by breakaway John Barovetto, who recovered a John Whyte kick over the goal.

Yesterday's match, contrary to the game Saturday, was played in UBC territory the majority of the time.

Cal's strong forward wall of Bob Hudson, Warren Moyes, Jim Anderson, Stan Dzura, Jim Pinson, Barovetto and Loren Hawley dominated the scrums and the lineouts and checked UBC's backs before they could even start a passing rush most of the time.

Free Throws Put Cal Over WSU As Wolthers, Lufkin Pace Bears

California staved off a late rally by Washington State with some pressure free throws to edge the Cougars 72-70 last night in Pullman.

The win kept the Bears alone in second place in the Big Six as Stanford stayed close behind in third with a 64-63 win over USC in Los Angeles.

The Bears' last 10 points came from the free throw line, four by Dan Lufkin, two by Bob Wueste, two by Dan Wolthers and two by Howie Holt.

Had any of these shots missed the result could have been different.

Holt actually iced it with the last two foul shots making the score 72-68. The Cougars' Jim Walton, high point man with 20, hit a long set shot with a second left to finish off the scoring.

After a shaky start that found Cal behind 11-6 the visitors found themselves and rallied back to take what seemed to be a comfortable 41-29 lead by halftime.

WSU closed the gap slightly in the second half, but the Bears still held a decisive 62-54 advantage with 4:30 left to play.

But then Tom Tommervik, who was very hot in the second half, hit one of his long sets and after Wolthers made two foul shots, Walton and center Ted Werner scored a field goal each and the score was 64-60.

The Cougars had to foul to get the ball and the Bears had to make their free throws to keep the lead. Each time Cal scored two from the foul line the aggressive Washington State five would match them with a field goal, but the clock finally ran out with the Bears still ahead.

Both centers, Cal's Camden Wall, 6-11, and Werner, 6-10, fouled out late in the game.

Guard Lufkin and forward Wolthers led the Bears in scoring with 18 and 17 points respectively.

Steve Smith, who had the hot hand in second half when it counted most, ended with 10.

The box score:

Mr. Modest, but . . .

Frosh Perkins Standout Guard

BY RICHARD HOMES

On a frosh basketball team that is less than outstanding in its accomplishments, one yearling has stood out because of his consistency and ability. This is none other than the very modest guard from Alameda, Charles Perkins.

Perkins is a quiet, unassuming athlete who would never be mistaken for Cassius Clay. However, were he the Louisville Lip, he would have more than enough evidence to back up his boastings.

To start with, Charley is one of the few players with enough talent to play center in high school and make the switch to guard in college almost without a hitch.

The 6-2 former Encinal High star is currently leading the frosh in scoring with a 13 point per game average. Two out of the last three tilts he has hit for 19 or more, on a combined field goal percentage of 50 per cent.

Although he has little opportunity to rebound, Perkins occasionally hits the boards and has been averaging about five retrieves a game. This is twice as many as any other guard has.

The factor that usually betrays former centers is ball handling. A case in point is Michigan's (number two team in the nation) All-American candidates, guard Cazzie Russell.

Russell, a former high school center, is scoring in the high twenties and has little trouble rebounding smaller guards (he's 6-5). But he is definitely lacking in the dribbling and passing departments.

Having seen both Cazzie and Charley, this writer feels that Perkins is definitely superior to Russell in that crucial phase of the game.

Unlike many of today's better players, Charley was not born with a basketball in his hands. As a matter of fact, he had never played the hoop game until he moved to Alameda from New Orleans in his sophomore year in high school!

Naturally his form was less than all American, and he failed to make the freshman team. Yet there he was next year on the hardwoods trying to cut the cage scene. He did. But not until the third game of the season did he start on the junior varsity. So outstanding was his performance that his rise continued and by the second round of varsity games he was starting on the varsity!

In his senior year Perkins averaged 12 points a game, was the top rebounder on the team and was second in assists. The boy who two years ago couldn't find the basket connected on an amazing 63 per cent of his attempts from the floor!

How could he do it? Determination and a perfect attitude, says his high school coach, Mr. Jaensch. The only other basketball coach Charley has had, Cal's Bob Blake, concurs. Bob calls him the "hardest working player on the squad."

An example of Perkins' dedication and desire is his activities this summer, which included three hours of practice (on his own) a night at Harmon.

In keeping with the California image Charley is a student as well as an athlete. The former Encinal student body president and three sport star plans to go to medical school upon completing his education at Berkeley.

If Charley is as skillful with a scalpel as he is with a basketball (don't bet he won't be), he will probably be the next surgeon general of the United States.

CHARLEY PERKINS
Will success spoil him?

Budding Bear Pitchers Try For Victory Against USF

Like a botanist carefully raising a rare culture of plant, Cal baseball coach George Wolfman brings his budding pitching staff out for more sunlight on the mound this week as the Bears go again for a win over USF, this afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in San Francisco.

Coach George Wolfman was not particularly disturbed by the ties with USF and San Fernando Valley State last weekend. "We did a lot of substituting and our reserves couldn't hold the leads," he said. "We used 24-25 kids in Saturday's game."

The coach was unhappy, though, with the injury junior outfielder Tim Tarpley suffered while batting against USF.

"He caught his spikes and tore the ligaments and cartilage in his right knee," Wolfman reported. "He'll be out from ten days to two weeks."

"It's too bad, because Tim was doing real well and this might set him back."

Wolfman credited lanky junior pitcher Joe Wierzbowski, who has relieved in all three games thus far, with doing "a real outstanding job." Burly senior Ray Evans, who will start today's game, received praise from the coach for his work Friday.

Although the main offensive punch has been coming from the expected sources—Mike Epstein, Craig Morton, Dave Myers, Gary Ingebretson—encouraging stickwork has also been delivered by catcher Tom Quontamatteo and outfielder Dave Weise.

'Mural Cagers Vie For Playoff Berths

In intramural basketball only two National League round-robin division championships and no American League top berths remain to be decided after last Thursday night's important competition.

In the American League, the revitalized Norton five maintained its winning ways with a 41-20 romp over Ehrman, a team which had conquered the victors earlier in the season.

In another equally important A.L. tilt, Smyth and Gilman tangled in a closely matched, explosive affair before Gilman emerged on top, 31-29.

In the National League, Sigma Alpha Epsilon remained undefeated by downing the Sig Eps handily, 42-23, thereby narrowing the total point margin of fraternity front-runners, Sigma Chi.

The Fijis beat an ice cold KDR team, 31-14, to enter the playoffs unbeaten.

Ever see the "Progress Corps" in action?

Its members are at work all over the free world, helping millions of people to progress toward better lives.

In India, West Germany, Italy, and in the United States, they're building nuclear power plants, launching the age of low-cost atomic power.

In Samoa, they're developing an educational TV network to battle illiteracy . . . while in Pittsburgh, they're working with teachers to help high school students learn more about computers.

In Wales, they're putting the final touches on Europe's first computer-controlled steel mill. Near Los Angeles they've scored a world first by putting a computer in charge of cement mill operations.

In Brazil, Pakistan and Ghana, they're providing extra-high-voltage equipment for huge dams to harness these nations' hydroelectric power. For Malaysia, they're supplying high-power diesel locomotives . . . for Norway, a marine engine room to power one of the world's largest supertankers.

The members of the "Progress Corps" are the men and women of General Electric, working to provide the key to progress—low-cost electric power and better ways of putting it to work. Many are engineers. Many others are international lawyers, physicists, financial specialists, marketing experts.

General Electric is growing both at home and abroad. If you'd like to grow with us, talk to your placement director. He can help qualified people begin their General Electric careers.

A Financial Matter

The Graphic Arts controversy for all practical purposes is over; when Student Judicial Committee ruled yesterday against a student referendum on the Graphic Arts sale, it figuratively stamped the bill of sale. We hope the ASUC executive director's promise that Graphic Arts services vital to students—photography, mimeographing and easel poster service—will be retained, will prove satisfactory to students' needs.

But the Judicial Committee's decision that no student vote could be held on the Senate's decision to sell Graphic Arts because it is a financial matter points out the need for reviewing the ASUC provisions for student referendums.

The ASUC Constitution provides students can review the decisions of the ASUC Senate if five per cent of the student body indicates a desire to do so—except on matters affecting the ASUC budget.

Very few substantial issues do not involve the budget, and under present provisions, students have little direct say as to the services or functions of the ASUC. The right to student referendum is practically useless.

Some restrictions on referendums involving budgetary matters may be necessary to protect the financial stability of the association, but the ASUC Senate should consider measures to limit the definition of financial matters.

Ugly Man Contest

It's Ugly Man time again, and University students are applying their imaginations to out-do each other in choosing their candidates and raising funds. There used to be a time where every entrant was a bona fide male human being. A couple years ago, sponsors Alpha Phi Omega were slightly disturbed when one organization entered a beautiful female for the Ugly Man Contest.

Now Ugly Man entrants range from dogs, turtles and beetles to inanimate objects.

Whether or not the campus male feels rejected by the turn of events, it's all for a good cause. In the last 15 years the Ugly Man contest has grossed about $50,000 to Cal Camp and World University Service.

Cal Camp, the ASUC's summer camp for Bay Area underprivileged children, provides the only vacation for many children. The scope of the program increases every year, and ASUC officials are now trying to raise enough money to buy a permanent campsite. World University Service provides books for colleges all over the world, colleges which lack sufficient funds to develop into adequate educational institutions for growing nations.

Many living groups have planned ingenious activities to raise money for their candidates. All students can participate and have fun and support two worthy causes at the same time.

Letters Policy

Effective immediately, the Daily Californian will condense Letters to the Ice Box for space reasons.

We receive more than twice as many letters as we are able to print, and to allow more students to express their views, we reserve the right to condense lengthy letters.

Letters less than 150 words which are chosen for publication will not be cut. We cannot guarantee publication of any letter.

Whispers to Campus CORE

DON CRAWFORD

Sssh! Campus CORE is under the guns.

I sort of hate to add yet another voice to the screams of indignation, but there comes a time . . .

Let me say right off . . . I'm on your side . . . ssh

But you've overlooked some important things in your zeal to do what you think is right.

The Congress on Racial Equality has, all over the country, become the spokesman for the rights of the Negro. Beautiful.

But how many Negroes can be counted among the members of Campus CORE? Not enough. I think.

Yet you set yourselves up as fighters for what the "Negro wants."

You say he wants Lucky to integrate.

That photo in last Friday's Daily Cal, which made the whole thing seem so ludicrous, shows a stack of groceries by a check-out counter. The checker at that counter is a Negro.

Did you ask him what HE wants?

Doesn't what you're after really amount to Crow-jimism?

Don't talk about quotas, please. What the civil rights fight is really about is the truth of freedom, and you can't write that down in numbers.

Remember I said I'm on your side? I still am . . .

But yesterday I heard that statewide CORE has called off the Lucky picket . . . (Hooray!)

I also heard that a large church group has withdrawn all its support of CORE.

Deserting the sinking ship?

If it's sinking, nobody put holes in it but you.

You can scream "bigot" whenever a white person throws a stick at you and people will feel sorry for you, but when black voices as well, shout no, it's time you pulled yourselves up short and considered your own thinking and motives. It's time you went somewhere and found out what Negroes in Berkeley really want. It's time you tried to be a responsible group of young adults instead of a juvenile group of young white super-liberals trying to cure a centuries-old sickness with a revolution in a grocery store.

And it's time you realized that you, and only you, may have already done irreparable damage to the spirit of the civil rights movement by venting your needs to feel adequate on Berkeley merchants.

And I'm still on your side . . . maybe.

LETTERS TO THE ICE BOX

CORE

To the Ice Box:

Poor, misguided Campus CORE has sunk to several new lows. Not only do they picket the wrong store, one which has Negroes working in it, but they are too lazy to picket the more appropriate store on the Northside which appears to be further from the limelight and the approving stares of students, most of whom are in favor of eliminating job discrimination anyway. In addition to this, Campus CORE leaders have permitted the oversize picket line to monopolize the sidewalk to such an extent that a passerby must shuffle through the pickets or walk in the street to get by. More disgusting still, CORE members will enter the store, fill a shopping cart full of groceries that they have no intention of buying and wheel it around so that legitimate customers may not have the use of them. Some members take these loaded carts and dump the contents on the counters and abandon them so as to clog the counters up. The members themselves have admitted doing this and they are proud of their juvenile delinquent tactics. The Berkeley police say unofficially that even if arrests are made, prosecutions do not follow—civil rights demonstrations have joined the sacred ranks of apple pie, mother and the flag. The demonstrators justify their obnoxiousness by invoking the doctrine of civil disobedience, which is used to combat discrimination and to help obtain civil rights. Civil rights, however, have a companion—civil responsibilities. To remind Campus CORE that these still exist, I urge you to shop at the Telegraph Avenue Lucky's Market. In order to respect a picket line it is necessary to respect the organization that it conducting it. This I cannot do. I have bought at Lucky's and I urge all of you to do the same until CORE grows up.

Grace

To the Ice Box:

I'm writing this letter in regard to a situation of which I have just become aware, the practice in the dormitories of saying Grace before meals. Saying Grace, I think, can be considered a religious exercise, yet a publication of the Dean's Office states: "University facilities shall not be used for the purpose of religious worship, exercise, or conversion."

The University policy of separation from religion is carried to the extent that students are denied the existence of a department of theology. Yet the prayers in dorms which do not serve the intellectual function that a theology department could are not allowed to exist.

Many people have made the valid point that the dorms should not try to be substitute parents, it is even more valid however to say that they should not try to be substitute churches.

How I Learned To Stop Worrying & Love the Bomb

BY PAM OSBORNE

Convincing arguments for integrating youth into the film industry are Stanley Kubrick and his latest accomplishment, "Dr. Strangelove, Or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb."

If this picture is an accurate yardstick, 35-year-old Kubrick has matured into a writer-producer-director of some merit after only a handful of films, among them "Lolita."

This outing combines Peter Sellers, George C. Scott, and Sterling Hayden in a sharp satirical joust at America and nuclear warfare.

Hayden, who has worked with Kubrick before, is credible as an impotent general who unilaterally decides to order the devastation of Russia because he believes they are masterminding and undermining the U.S. water fluoridation program.

He is unaware that Russia has constructed a surprise of its own, a Doomsday device, that spreads radiation over the world when automatically released by an attack.

The audience views the consequences from a bombardier's plane, from the mad general's office, and from the secret war room in the Pentagon. In spite of the fast-paced comic dialogue, a certain amount of tension is generated in these rapid transitions.

Kubrick's penknife seems particularly sharp through the words of the extreme right-wing general. His radical philosophy and rationalizations seem irreverently relevant.

The spoof highlight is the ironic hotline conversations between the President and Russian Premier Kisseff, vaguely reminiscent of a Shelley Berman routine.

Satire in the film, however, is so concentrated that it is difficult to separate the pertinent from the deadwood and more selectivity should have been exercised, especially in the latter half of the picture.

Sellers brilliantly essays three separate characterizations: the general's British aide, the U.S. President, and the German scientist, Dr. Strangelove.

But Scott proves to be the pacer as the fiercely nationalistic high-ranking military official. His heads-up comedy provides an essential contrast to the low-keyed, underplaying Britons. With his TV series "East Side, West Side" exiting at the close of the current season, Scott has some talent in the bull pen. With a little more restraint, he could be considered versatile.

Frat Has a Beauty Contest: Ugly Man's Pretty Queen

Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor the Miss Beauty Contest to choose a queen for the Ugly Man at the "Beauty and the Beast Ball" to be held on Saturday, March 7. Campus celebrities will officiate at the preliminary judging on March 2 in the Pauley Ballroom and celebrities from the entertainment world will judge the finals on March 4. Applications, available through the living groups, are due Friday in Room 410 of the Student Union. Miss Beauty and the Ugly Man will reign over The Beauty and the Beast Ball March 7 climaxing the Ugly Man contest.

History Exam Talks Commence Tonight

The lectures will continue at the same time and place on February 27, March 3, 5, 10 and 12. The History Exam will be administered from 10 to 12 a.m. Saturday, March 14.

Tibetan Lecturer to Speak On His Escape From Tibet

Thubten Jigme Norbu, brother of Tibet's Dalai Lama, will deliver a lecture entitled "Escape From Tibet" at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in 185 Dwinelle Hall. Norbu, at 17, became a high-ranking abbot when his brother became Dalai Lama. He fled Tibet after imprisonment by the Chinese Communists. Now in exile, he works in behalf of the Tibetan refugees.

The lecture is sponsored jointly by the Committee for Arts and Lectures and the Center for South Asia Studies of the Institute of International Studies. The lecture will describe Norbu's escape and also provide an "inside" view of Tibetan customs and loyalties.

Segregation Increasing In L.A. Schools

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Segregation in schools is increasing as a result of transfer policies aimed at desegregation, the Los Angeles Board of Education said today.

In a report on the liberalized transfer program, the board noted that 29 of the 36 students who transferred from predominantly Negro Fremont High School were caucasians.

In another instance, at Jordan High School, three out of seven students who transferred out were caucasians.

The report said that the open transfer policy, designed to allow Negroes to transfer to predominantly caucasian schools, also permitted caucasians to transfer out of primarily Negro schools.

Keynote Speech Urban League Executive: 'Negro Adjustment Painful'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Adjusting to a non-segregated society will be painful for Negroes because the walls of segregation have been both damaging and protective, a civil rights leader declared here Monday.

"When the anguished cries of the segregationist have subsided," Percy H. Steele, Jr. said, "The Negro will be confronted with his own inner anxieties, conflicts and challenges as he dares to move into a society of open competition."

Neighborhood ties and school loyalty are factors limiting transfer, the report said, adding that fewer transfer permits are being issued now than before the new transfer rule went into effect.

Steele, executive director of the San Francisco Bay Area Urban League, substituted for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., as keynote speaker at the opening session of the California Association for Health and Welfare conference.

"The protection of mediocrity, inferiority, apathy and empty posturing in place of solid achievement will disappear as the Negro begins to move from his segregated caste status," Steele told the 1,000 social workers and welfare leaders.
