

Sit-In Arrests - Student Expulsion?

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Two legislative leaders—a Democrat and a Republican—today challenged the right of students who take part in illegal demonstrations to attend tax-supported institutions.

Senate President Pro tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, advocated expulsion of students arrested for illegal acts—"and I don't mean running around with a bunch of silly signs."

"The state universities should instruct their students that under our form of government they have legal redress for real or fancied wrongs," he told newsmen.

"That does not include illegal acts in taking possession of private property or exaggerated shows."

Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Oakland, spoke out similarly at what he termed the "anarchy" of illegal sit-ins, and called for legislative action.

He called upon Gov. Brown, as president of the UC Board of Regents, to consider expelling students with two or more arrests.

Mulford said a San Francisco police compilation of riots and unlawful sit-ins since 1960 shows that the university led the list of arrests with 107.

Noting the newly-established ceiling of 27,500 students at the Berkeley campus, he said "there can be no room for those who repeatedly violate the law."

DON MULFORD
"Anarchy"

The Oakland assemblyman proposed these steps:

1. Adoption of procedure by the University to review possible expulsion of students, or teachers, with two or more arrests.

2. Legislation to make it a misdemeanor to falsely identify yourself as a university or college student. Mulford said 19 persons arrested falsely identified themselves as UC students or teachers.

3. Creation of an Assembly-Senate committee on civil rights and civil disorders to study possible legislation, including strengthening of the Fair Employment Practices Act.

University President Clark Kerr's only comments were a reference to a June, 1961 statement in which he enumerated "fundamental principles" by which the University insures "freedom with responsibility."

One principle, Kerr said, is that "law and order are maintained on the campus. Subversion and other illegal activities are not tolerated."

The University, he continued, believes in and will continue to advocate law and order for itself and for society.

"Law and order," he concluded, "is the only context in which all people can exercise their democratic rights and liberties."

Presidential Candidates Debate

A sparse crowd loaded with questions listened to the ASUC presidential candidates' debate on election issues.

ASUC President Mel Levine moderated the debate between Walt Buck, Jerry Beckman, Charlie Powell and Peter Muldavin. Each candidate made an initial four minute speech and a one minute rebuttal. Questions were then received from the floor.

Buck, the first to speak, emphasized the need for a strong responsive ASUC. He firmly protested Slate's referendum to lower the ASUC fee to 1 cent because he believes it would ruin the activities program. He also stressed his willingness to consider a voluntary ASUC seriously.

ELECTIONS

The general meeting for all ASUC elections candidates has been postponed until 4 p.m. tomorrow in 101 California Hall.

TANGIBLE BENEFITS

Beckman stressed the consideration of the "tangible benefits" of the ASUC. He cited the Student Union, the Bear's Lair and the Daily Californian as some existing examples. He defined the ASUC as an organization primarily concerned with these tangible benefits.

Low cost ASUC-operated housing and standardization of credits and units between University campuses were part of his program.

INFORMED

Powell complained of student ignorance of ASUC affairs and the lack of an effective method of sampling student opinion. He believes that an informed student body would force their representatives to really represent them.

Powell proposed a detailed report on the state of the ASUC to be published each fall, an enriched speaker program, and a firm stand on the Radio KAL issue.

REBUTTAL

Muldavin stated that his platform was "a rebuttal of his opponents platforms." He believes the ASUC cannot be effective until administrative control is removed. His opponents would not stand up to the administration in this respect, he said. Muldavin does not advocate defiance but wants the administration to concede to student rights.

Iranian, Arab Students Attack Consul General

By BOB RUNDE

The Iranian Consul General drew hot blasts yesterday from both the Iranian Student Association and from University Arab students.

The Iranian students challenged Javad Kowsar to a public debate after the diplomat countered the students' accusation that Iran's Shah, Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlavi, was a complete and unjust dictator.

University Arab students blasted back at Kowsar for saying, "Nasser of Egypt is a real dictator. He is always trying to make war on Israel. Dictators are interested in gaining more land. The Shah is not a dictator. He is interested in helping his people."

The Iranian students said, "If the Shah's Consul General really believes what we say is 'ridiculous and baseless' and that only he knows the 'true case,' we challenge him to a public debate."

Opposing Kowsar's statement that President Nasser was "a dictator . . . trying to make war on Israel," University Arab students issued a written denunciation.

"In his speech to the Daily Californian, the Consul of Iran made a statement about President Nasser of the United Arab Republic that was totally out of sense or order, besides being completely awkward and false. The Consul could not defend his Shah, so he found it easier to attack someone.

"He forgets that what he calls the love of the Shah to his people appeared in the last ten years as a result of Nasser's reforms that swept the Middle East and that the Shah had to show love to try to stabilize his shaky throne.

"As for Nasser's fight against Israel, this is one issue on which all Arabs emphatically agree, to return 1.2 million Palestinian Arab refugees to their homes, not to gain more land as alleged by the Consul who forgets that the Iranian government voted against the partition of Palestine in the United Nations in 1947. But the Shah is befriendng Israel now as his only ally in the Middle East and since he cannot gain the friendship, support or respect of the people of the Middle East or Iran itself.

"Obviously a dictator would be hated by his people, and recalling the warm, cheering reception that Nasser received during his visit in New York in September of 1960 from all Arab and Middle East students, compared to the stormy picketing by the Iranian Students Association to the Shah during his visit to San Francisco in 1962, one can tell who is really a dictator.

"Finally, we prefer to leave the problem of exposing the Shah of Iran and his collaborators to the Iranian students the world over."

The Iranian Students Association was angered by "blatant lies" in Kowsar's attacks against the members of the ISA and in his defense of the Shah.

"The Consul called us 'sons of landlords, priests, and extremists on the left and right,' Lebastchi said, "but who is the biggest landlord of all? The Shah is not only the biggest landlord in Iran, he is the biggest landlord in the entire world. He owns outright 2,000 villages. As for being sons of Moslem priests, many of the opponents of the Shah are not even Moslems.

But, Lebastchi said, these issues are not the central ones. The real problem is whether or not the Shah is, indeed, a dictator.

"The Consul claims the Shah is doing so much for the people," Lebastchi began, "but is he really doing this, or is it merely a facade? Kowsar claims that the Shah got 99.5 per cent of the vote on his referendum for his six-point program. But why did he have so great a majority? Were the elections held fairly?"

Answering his own question, Lebastchi described "different colored ballots." Voters were also required to obtain ballots several months in advance of the election. When the Shah saw the people were leery of the election, all government workers were required to show their ballots before they could collect their pay checks. Also, shopkeepers' licenses would not be renewed unless they showed their ballot.

"The Consul also claims that under the new land reform, as part of the six-point program, the people are really being helped. The Shah only put up the six-point program as a front to the world. He really only wanted the election reforms part, but the people could not vote for just one or two points in the program, they had to vote for all of them. So the Shah cleverly sandwiched in the reform he wanted with five that sounded good to the people.

"The Shah needed to get the election reform so he could get a Parliament which was favorable to him. He wanted to borrow $800 million from the World Bank, but he could not without the approval of a favorable Parliament.

"Also, he wanted to borrow money from the United States, but when President Kennedy said the U.S. would only help those who helped themselves, the Shah knew that these six points would look like he was really trying to help the peasants.

"Even so, the Shah could still have had good intentions towards the peasants. But, the land reform is really a joke," Lebastchi said. "The government buys the land from the landlords and then turns around and sells the land to

Creator of A-Bomb To Speak

J. Robert Oppenheimer, developer of the Atomic bomb, will speak on "Atomic Theory" at 8 p.m. in Pauley Ballroom. It will be the first of three lectures by the noted physicist on "Neils Bohr and His Times" to be sponsored by the Hitchcock Foundation.

Graduated from Harvard in 1925, Oppenheimer received his Ph.D. from Gottingen University in 1926. By 1929 he was professor of physics here and at the California Institute of Technology where he was an authority on the structure of the atom.

In March 1943 he began work on the Atomic Bomb at the Los Alamos laboratory in New Mexico. His contribution led Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson to say, "The development of the bomb itself has been largely due to his (Oppenheimer's) genius and the inspiration he has given his associates."

Presently director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J., Oppenheimer received the $50,000 Enrico Fermi Award from the Atomic Energy Commission in December, 1963.

At the presentation was Oppenheimer's old adversary, Edward Teller, professor of physics here. In 1954, Teller told an AEC security board about Oppenheimer, "I feel that I would like to see the vital interests of this country in hands which I understand better and therefore trust more."

Teller's testimony was partly responsible for Oppenheimer losing his security clearance with the Atomic Energy Commission because of alleged communist sympathies.

At the Fermi award presentation, Teller was one of the first people in line to shake Oppenheimer's hand, suggesting by that act he wanted to forget past feuds.

German Measles Hit Twelve; Residence Halls Lead Toll

John Catlon of Putnam Hall woke this morning with spots before his eyes.

He blinked. The spots remained. German measles had struck Putnam for the third time within a week.

A Cowell Hospital spokesman said "this time of year is measles season." A full dozen of Cowell's 55 patients are bedridden with the German measles—a 3-day variety. Most persons afflicted with German measles suffer only minor discomfort.

Many students are susceptible to measles because they never had the familiar childhood disease. Cowell hospital said a previous bout of German measles would immunize a person and lessen his chances of catching the disease again.

Spens-Black, a woman's residence hall in Unit 3, leads with four cases of measles. The first case was reported two weeks ago. Putnam hall is second with three cases.

A hospital spokesman added persons in residence halls were sometimes more susceptible to measles because of the community living.

Symptoms for the German measles are similar to the beginning stages of a cold: sore throat, slight fever, perhaps a cough. The rash appears about two days after the first symptoms.

Speaker on Academic Freedom

Ali Tabatabaian will speak on "Academic Freedom at the University of Tehran" today at 7:30 p.m. in 127 Dwinelle Hall.

The ASUC Forum topic was sparked by the University's plan to confer an honorary doctor's degree on the Shah of Iran at June commencement exercises at UCLA.

American and Iranian Students for Academic Freedom have charged the Shah with ruling as a despot in violation of the Iranian Constitution which guarantee free elections. When students demonstrated for free elections in 1954, three University of Tehran students were killed and many more arrested, they asserted.

In 1962, the Students for Academic Freedom contend, "the Shah's forces invaded the University, pillaged campus buildings, destroyed books, attacked and beat unarmed students..." The Chancellor of the University and the Deans of the various colleges resigned in protest. Shortly thereafter the Shah closed the University of Tehran for four months.

The American and Iranian students for Academic Freedom further contend when the Shah reopened the University he abolished the offices of the regents and assumed control of the school himself. Students or professors holding "unorthodox political views" were expelled.

Dutton Quintet To Go Abroad

By KAREN DOYLE

"We're going to play our way through Europe," Pete Dutton said.

Leader of the Pete Dutton Quintet, Dutton is a University senior in business administration. The Quintet has been hired to play on a Holland-American Line Atlantic crossing.

Since the line is popular with traveling college students, Holland-American hires college entertainment groups every summer. The Quintet made a breakthrough, Dutton said, since the groups are usually chosen from Eastern schools.

Leaving New York on June 27, the ship will arrive in Rotterdam on July 5. The group will then tour Europe for a month, playing through London, Paris, the Riviera, Italy, Switzerland, Germany (where "we'll play on the wall") Copenhagen and back to Rotterdam.

They have contacted YMCAs, USOs, military bases and beer taverns for engagements.

The Quintet will play both modern jazz and dance music on the tour. In a sense, the group will be representing the University, since three members study here.

Candidate Susan Frieder has withdrawn from the race for ASUC second vice-president in order to participate in the University's Study Abroad program in Madrid next year.

According to William McCormack of the Education Abroad Selection Committee, those selected for the various programs

Harrison Harries Gaels as Bears Win 5-1

By BARRY JACOBSON

Cal's baseball team bested a weak-hitting St. Mary's club yesterday 5-1 in a game controlled by the strong Bear hurling corps.

The starting pitcher for California, Bill Harrison, regained the form which won him three ball games early in the season, by pitching six innings of two-hit ball.

Bill was throwing very hard, and after a harmless single and a hit batter in the third, he retired the next eleven in a row until Rich Nye came in to take over the chores.

Rich gave up a measly single to the first man up in the seventh then quickly shot down the next nine men in succession.

Chuck Lafferty, the junk-ball Gael pitcher, allowed only two hits until the sixth. This might seem pretty good chucking at first glance, but he also allowed 10 walks in the 6½ innings he pitched.

In the sixth inning, Lafferty got off to his usual start by walking the first batter to face him, second baseman Jerry McCarn. Tom Quontamatteo slammed a pinch single to right and the two runners moved over on a wild throw.

Bill Harrison grounded a double-play ball to the third baseman, who threw home for one out and then watched as the catcher heaved wild to first.

Hot-hitting Rich Mortola singled home Quontamatteo and was followed by two more walks and a wild pitch to make the score 3-1.

The Bears scored twice in the ninth on a single by shortstop Mike Wickersham and a long sacrifice fly by center fielder Craig DeForest.

The Bears' next home game will be played against Pepperdine, Saturday at 2 p.m. on Edwards Field. Right-hander Ray Evans, now 4-0, gets the start.

Bear Cubs Face Talented Bronc Frosh

By GLENN BECKER

Cal's freshman baseball team, boasting a brilliant 21-3 record, faces its toughest assignment of the season this afternoon when the undefeated Santa Clara frosh invade Edwards Field at 3:15.

The Cubs suffered one of their three losses in the first game with the Broncos March 7, when Santa Clara broke open a 4-3 battle in the eighth inning to win 12-3.

That is the only loss of the year for big righthander Bill Frost, who tossed a no-hitter at tough Bellarmine High School Saturday. Bellarmine had defeated the Cubs in two of the last three years.

Frost is hoping to get another whack at the Broncos, but coach Al Kyte has two other fine starters at his disposal in Andy Messersmith and Hollon Bridges, and he is still hedging on which will start this afternoon. "I'll make that decision just before the game."

Kyte enthusiastically extolls the talents of his hurlers.

"These three boys are very good pitchers. Messersmith has thrown one-hitters his last two times out, and Bridges also has a one-hitter to his credit.

Each one has something special going for him. Andy throws a curve and a slider, and both break sharply. Hollon depends on a knuckle ball, and uses a motion like that of Juan Marichal. Frost is pitching to spots now, and fields his position better than the others."

Speaking of the entire club, Kyte continued, "It's a team that thinks baseball better than most. They make few mental errors. Our boys have good speed and they run the bases very well; (second baseman) Rich Dash, for example, has stolen home twice."

Dash was a member of the national champion American Legion club from Long Beach last summer, and was voted a member of the all-tourney team at the national finals. With an average of .315, he is one of six Cub starters who were batting over .300 through the San Jose State game April 14.

The others are left fielder Steve Sherry (.375), center fielder Rick Brown (.361); third baseman Gale Newman (.355); catcher-first baseman Tony Fattarsi (.325), and right fielder Roger Stevens (.310).

Fattarsi, the battery mate of Frost at Ontario High School, has alternated behind the plate with Doug Russo. When Russo catches, Fattarsi usually replaces Nick Thurlow at first base.

Shortstop Don Bunch (.275) completes the starting lineup.

Smyth Grabs Gym Lead

Intramural Mat, Weight Lifting Seasons Start

Competition in wrestling, weight lifting, and gymnastics began Tuesday as participants aimed for a spot on the program for All-University Intramural Championships night.

Other sports involved during the Championships night, to be staged on Thursday, April 30, will be two-man volleyball, table tennis, handball, judo, badminton, and basketball.

While wrestling and weight lifting are in the initial stages, all of the gymnastics preliminaries were held in one meet.

Smyth Hall, one of three finalist teams last year, took team honors by a slim margin over second place finishers Phi Epsilon Pi, and third place Sigma Chi.

Smyth was led by Ross and LaVoy to victory. LaVoy topped all competitors on the parallel bars, while Ross placed third on horizontal bars and second in tumbling.

Phi Epsilon Pi relied heavily on third place all-around man

Phillips, plus a winning effort by Glaser on the side horse for their high finish, while Ricketts paced Sigma Chi.

Sigma Phi Epsilon also gained the team finals by finishing fourth.

Gioseffi, lone competitor for the Commuters, took top individual honors by capturing the coveted all-around title. He won the rope climb in 4.4 seconds, placed third on the side horse, and second on the horizontal bars to rack up a total of 42.3 points.

Villers of Theta Chi placed second, with Phi E Pi Phillips third. Yoon of Barrington did poorly on the rope, but took first in both horizontal bars and tumbling.

Soccer action dominated recent intramural action, with I-House taking one more step toward a chance at defending their All-U crown with a 3-2 victory over Norton.

The victors kept continuous pressure on Norton's defense, but had to wait until midway through the second period before tallying the deciding goal.

In N. L. soccer, Phi Sigma Kappa, unscored upon in five consecutive contests, gained a winner's brack finals berth against Phi E Pi with a 1-0 over AGO.

Pi K A beat AKL, 1-0, and the SAE's and Fijis recorded corner kick victories in other action.

In other sports, Thai students and Phi E Pi each gained the finals in badminton, Kappa Alpha and Commuters became pocket billiards finalists, and Phi E Pi forced AEPi to a second tilt in horseshoes finals.

Crew Times Set

The undefeated varsity crew teams from California and Stanford will clash at 10 a.m. over the 2,000 meter Yacht Harbor course in Redwood City Saturday.

The schools' number two frosh boats inaugurate the action at 9 a.m., the junior varsity follows at 9:15 and the regular freshman race starts at 9:45.

California Linksmen Tee Off In All-University Tourney

The California golf team starts a busy weekend this morning with 36 holes of competition to decide the all-University championship at Alisal Country Club in Solvang.

The Bears visit Bel Air Country Club, UCLA's home course, tomorrow for a dual meet with the Bruins and Saturday take on Southern California at 8 a.m. in Los Angeles.

Cal has a chance in both the all-University and UCLA matches, but against USC, one of the nation's top golf powers, there's not much hope.

The six Bear linksmen making the trip are Mike Myer, Bob Grossman, Jon Shoenberger, Rich Sasaki, John Paulson and Randy Edwards. All matches are medal play.

Netters Face Best in West At Ojai Today

The California tennis team will be up against some of the best players on the West Coast this weekend at the annual Ojai Intercollegiate tennis tournament in Ojai.

Dennis Ralston, Arthur Ashe, Bill Bond and Charles Pasarell, just to name a few, are some of the talent that will be on hand.

First place will be strictly a battle between UCLA and Southern California, while the Bears will be hoping to repeat last year's third place finish.

Stanford will give Cal its toughest fight for third, as the Indians defeated the Bears 5-4 in a dual meet on the Farm earlier this season.

The Bruins beat USC, 1963 national champion and Ojai winner, 5-4 earlier this year. The Trojans' first two singles players, Ralston and Bond, defeated Ashe and Pasarell respectively and Ralston and Horst Ritter beat Ashe and Pasarell respectively and Ralston Cromwell downed Dave Reed and David Sanderlin in first and second team doubles.

But the deep Bruins won the five lower matches to take the victory.

Preliminaries begin today, with the finals coming Saturday.

Doug Sykes leads the six Cal players making the trip. The other five, in order of rank, are Barry Baskin, Dick Abramson, Gene Cantin, Jan Kucera and Don Adolphson.

Sykes has not played up to his potential since turning in a strong first set against Pasarell Friday. He was completely outclassed by Ralston, whose game was at its best Saturday, and was upset by Bill Eavis, of USF, Monday.

Political Autonomy

Two California state legislators have again placed pressure on the University to discipline students involved in political actions outside the University community.

Senator Hugh Burns and Assemblyman Don Mulford are well known to the University: both have been pains in the neck to the University's policy of political autonomy. Both legislators were in the front line calling for the University action against students involved in the City Hall demonstrations against the House Committee on Un-American Activities in May, 1960.

At that time President Clark Kerr answered the pressure by stating that any University students participating in demonstrations were acting in their role as citizens and were outside the sphere of the University.

Mulford and Burns' advocacy of state legislation to expel arrested demonstrators from tax-supported institutions violates the spirit of the California State Constitution. Recognizing that a university must remain free from political pressure in order to fulfill its academic obligations, the Constitution delegates authority over the University of California to the Board of Regents. The standards for admission and retention have traditionally been a joint concern of the Regents and the faculty. A University's selection of students and faculty members is an important determinant of its academic quality and cannot be used as a political football for emotional and partisan passions of the day.

The California Constitution also requires the University to be entirely independent from political or sectarian influence in the administration of its own affairs. Not only would it be unconstitutional for politicians to tamper with the University's policies, but it would be unconstitutional for the University administration to decide policy on a political basis.

Aside from the issue of constitutionality, Burns and Mulford display a lack of appreciation for the role of a University. The University cannot sit in judgment and decide for its students what is right and wrong. Many of the University's policies already display too much "en loco parentis" and what is needed is less, not more University guardianship over personal actions.

If a student, acting in his role as a citizen, breaks a law he must answer to the civil courts. Such is the present situation with the civil rights demonstrators who are being tried in San Francisco for unlawful sit-ins.

The only criteria for judging a person's qualification to be a member of the University community is his academic and intellectual abilities. His extracurricular activities, whether political or personal, should not jeopardize his status at the University. Using expulsion as a threat to curb social actions would be a violation of the academic freedom the University prizes so highly.

400 Years Ago

Everyone and his cousin Fred wants to get in on the Shakespeare Quadricentennial act, it seems. Stratford-on-Avon is already overflowing with tourists, and it isn't even summer.

Still, and all, it seems fitting to observe that 400 years ago, in England, a man was born who said:

"We are such stuff as dreams are made of,
And our little life is rounded with a sleep."

—Wm. Shakespeare

Myths and Realities of Soviet Policy

John Miles Jr.

(This is the first part of a three-part essay.)

There has been much agitation lately for a softening of the U.S. line toward the Soviet bloc and Red China. It is nothing new, but lately it has gained force. New Republic magazine, perpetually in the vanguard of movements to soften things, has issued a predictable policy statement by its editors.

"We speak of the American national interest," goes the incantation; "the Russians have theirs too; in both cases that interest is peace and a rising standard of living. All else is secondary."

From which rosy little premise follows the loaded question: "Does a less secure Russia mean a more secure America?"

And Nikita Khrushchev, of course, in his "comparative reasonableness" is aware of this happy coincidence of interests. "Khrushchev's recent speeches seem to be astutely aimed at preparing the Russian people and the Eastern Europeans for a long period of gradual unwinding of tensions. . . . It is in everyone's interest that that assumption" "that a plump Communist will be more dovelike" "be given a fair test."

Six years and two weeks before New Republic made its declaration of good faith, a plump Communist made a dove-like speech to a (captive) audience, aimed at easing the tensions that had arisen between himself and them a year and a half before; he assured his audience that a certain course of action he and a Russia secure in the assurance of American non-interference, had taken at that time was a profession of amiability, made in the interests of peace and a rising standard of living.

That profession of amiability was, of course, the brutal Soviet smashing of the Hungarian bid for independence, and the plump speaker was Nikita Khrushchev, less affectionately known by that time as the butcher of Budapest.

Are we, then, to take Nikita Khrushchev at his word? Are we to take New Republic's counsel and forget who he is and what organization he speaks for because he has found it expedient to change, for a time his tone? To do so smacks of unreality—of fear to face reality and what it demands of us if we are to preserve our civilization, to whose destruction the rulers of the Kremlin are committed.

Experts on Soviet policy warn us that the Kremlin is still committed to the destruction of the West, and that a momentarily softer line, for whatever reasons of expediency, have not changed that commitment one whit. We must remember that Communist strategy will employ any treachery to undermine the West; that the war it wages right now is indeed a total war.

If our civilization is to survive, we must keep these facts in mind and act accordingly, with our own objective in mind: elimination of the Communist threat to the West and to the world.

Calamity Jane Rides Again

By CREIGHTON H. CHURCHILL

It used to be a big thing when a girl put on a pair of slacks and wore them out in public. After World War II there were a rash of "Look whose wearing the pants in the family" jokes as men tried to justify their insecurities with humor. The "loss of femininity" criticism didn't win out over the practical aspects of slacks for girls.

Besides, the girls pointed out, Scotchmen have been wearing skirts for a long time, and in public too, and nobody ever accused Rob Roy of being a gay blade.

Slacks are now accepted, and passe. The new bit is to wear boots. Girls in boots have engendered the same reaction in men that slacks once did: "Interesting, but would you want your mother to wear them?" It still would take a daring male to admit to his psychoanalyst that his date the night before had on black hip boots with high heels and cleated toes.

Still, it came as no great shock to see a girl in polished, knee length boots walk into a coffee house on telegraph with her date. Not until I noticed the spurs.

Nice, silver plated, four inch long English riding spurs strapped neatly to the heel of her boots. In vain I searched for a horse parked on the side walk. Not even a pony. Then I noticed her date.

He seemed tired and winded, as if he had been running hard. His shirt was slightly torn on one side and he was favoring his left leg. The girl turned around and patted him on the head. As I ran out the door I prayed that bull whips would never become stylish—or swords.

LETTERS TO THE ICE BOX

Bookism

To the Ice Box:

Education it has been said, does not consist of an encyclopaedic memorisation of isolated pieces of information in one's elective courses in the University, but the creation of a desire to acquire as broad-based a knowledge as possible and the creation of the ability to participate intelligently and effectively in the socio-cultural activities of a society.

It is our contention that the effects of the academic curriculum in this University does not, to say the least, help the students in achieving this goal because the strict and unbending course requirements set by the instructors leads to what may be called "excessive bookism." On an average a graduate student is supposed to take 12 units or nine units with half time work and an undergraduate takes about 17 units which means that he has to work at least 50 hours a week to keep his head above the competitive waters. Consequently the students find it difficult to devote time to extra-curricular activities like sports, debates; and their general reading of magazines, books, etc. suffers.

It has been our sad experience in the International House that a large majority find themselves overburdened with course work and lead a socially isolated life and are extremely disinclined to take part in any House activities even though things like discussions and debates and dances should interest every normal person. For example out of 540 residents hardly five or ten come for discussions on interesting topics like civil rights, disarmament, and the Sino-Indian crisis. And as a result an essential part of University life, that of social intercourse with people of various countries is sadly neglected.

Students are effectively discouraged from developing a healthy interest in being well informed about topics like geography, politics and literature, and in this veritable race against time, the students feel guilty about spending time on non-academic pursuits. Overemphasis on academic coursework and the underrating of the importance of non-academic activities results in a lop-sided personality. As a result students miss most of the opportunities in their school years of developing all round personalities due to the lack of time.

Lucky Rejects

To the Ice Box:

It is so good to see that the University will insist on getting "students of top quality." The criteria for this quality are, of course, excellent: grade point averages, SAT scores, "clarity of educational objectives," etc. These factors get at the very essence of the student. Our modern educators know that an eighteen-year-old without a four-point GPA is like a tree without a trunk.

Of course, here at the University we do hear a cry go up when the professor hands out a list of thoughtful questions for a midterm. Our students are sincere: "Who wants to learn? I want a grade." Some of us know about that choice of whether to study for the tests in a course, or to think about the material. There isn't often time for both.

Those applicants rejected from this campus will perhaps be very lucky. They may be accepted at a school which is structured for learning. They may have the chance to become students; to graduate from college less hollowed out than a few of our symbols of "academic success."

Consul From Iran Incites Criticism

(Continued from page 1) the peasants. He goes to the villages and gives everyone deeds, fooling the people into thinking they are getting the land for nothing, but really they pay in the end."

"By selling his land, the Shah gains cash, which he can put in Swiss banks. In case something should happen the Shah would not be stuck with non-negotiable land."

But perhaps the crushing blow to the ISA was the written resignation of the Chancellor of the University of Tehran. In a letter to the Prime Minister of Iran, the Chancellor, Dr. Farhad, mentioned "cruelty, sadism, atrocity, and vandalism on the part of government forces" as the reason for his resignation.

Lebastchi said President Kerr's plans to honor the Shah are entirely out of keeping with Kerr's role as a defender of academic freedom.

But, said Lebastchi, "If the Shah comes in spite of all the reaction against him here, the Iranian Students Associations would appreciate the opportunity to hear the Shah here in Berkeley and to ask him questions."

ASUC Presidential Candidates Debate Issues and Platforms

(Continued from page 1) does little good, since students don't get what they want anyway, he continued. Students must assume responsibility for student affairs.

INEFFECTIVE
In the rebuttals, Beckman said the ASUC should not consider itself ineffective and should try to work within the framework set up by the administration. He favors consideration of a voluntary ASUC and opposes the Slate Referendum.

Powell opposes the voluntary ASUC, but said he would support it if students really wanted it. He cited a poll taken in some men's residence halls that showed a trend against the proposition. Powell believes students do not know enough to decide this issue.

ANTI-ASUC
Muldivin defended Slate against anti-ASUC charges and noted that the officers of the Union Program Board are Slate members. He said Slate Referendum is a protest against the power of the Chancellor over ASUC spending. The fee could easily be raised a semester later, he added.

Mentioning that Powell voted for the Graphic Arts sale, Muldivin asked how his opponents could claim an interest in students if they did not represent student interests.

DISCRIMINATION
Buck's rebuttal brought up a new point—the ASUC will soon be expected to take a public stand on discrimination. He also mentioned the "hackneyed phrase," a need for communication between students and Senate.

Questions came fast and furious when the debate ended. Powell was asked on what issues students were ignorant. He said the poor attendance at the debate was testimony in itself. Buck mentioned the sale of Graphic Arts as another.

AUTONOMY
Beckman clarified his beliefs on the autonomy of student government. He said more autonomy should be gained, but the Senate should also put equal effort into working within the prescribed framework.

A question on how Powell would inform students led Mul-divin to call the ASUC "impotent" and "a rough pill for us to swallow" to be interested in a government which had no power.

AGREEMENT
Each candidate said he agreed with the University's policy on non-discrimination.

When the panel was questioned on the proposed honorary degree for the Shah of Iran, Muldivin replied the administration was "clear-headed enough" not to award the degree. The other candidates said they would take an official stand which would represent student feeling. Questions were directed to the panel in general and to Buck, Beckman and Powell. No questions were directed to Muldivin.

DICKINSON SHORTHAND in SIX WEEKS

Anyone who wants to learn shorthand in less time than it is possible to learn Gregg Shorthand will find that Dickinson Shorthand is the answer. This shorthand can be learned in 30 lessons.

At the end of this time, the average student takes dictation at 100 to 120 wpm, depending on the new material given, and transcribes it on the typewriter without difficulty. Its adaptability to the various fields of secretarial work has been demonstrated for over forty years throughout this country and in various parts of the world.

Students enroll on Tuesday during the entire year as our total enrollment permits.
