

Byrne Report Attacks UC Structure

Calls University Too Complex

By DAVE NEWMAN

LOS ANGELES — The long-awaited Byrne Report, calling for drastic changes in the organization and policies of the University was released yesterday.

A great lessening of control by the Regents was recommended.

Implicit in the 85-page document

An extensive summary of the 85 page report to the Regents by Los Angeles attorney Jerome Byrne begins on page six.

ment was a striking lack of censure of the students and acceptance of what they claimed as the basis of their 8-month-old revolt—demands for free expression and the rights of advocacy.

Equally striking, in a massive series of recommendations, was the implicit criticism of present University policy, the administration's structure and the Board of Regents' present view of its own functions.

The report was made public at a press conference here at which William E. Forbes, chairman of the Regents' special committee to whom the report was made; Jerome Byrne, head of the investigating team which submitted the report; and Edward Carter, Chairman of the Board of Regents, were grilled by close to 100 newsmen.

Carter was asked to speculate as to the consideration the Forbes committee would give the report. "I found it very stimulating," he replied, "but I doubt if the committee will treat most of the recommendations with much seriousness."

Meanwhile, back in Berkeley, "It sounds like a great report," former FSM leader Mario Savio told an Associated Press reporter at the trial of Sproul Hall sit-in demonstrators.

"It represents a tactical defeat for the Regents," he said.

Forbes read a prepared statement before he opened the floor to questions. He said the decision to release the report was not made by unanimous vote of the committee, but refused to name those Regents who had opposed the release, and refused to give a breakdown of the committee's vote.

He also refused to give a personal evaluation of the report, other than that he had found it "stimulating."

"Now is the time for study," he said, indicating a desire to read the report more thoroughly before coming to any final conclusions about it.

During the question period, he several times reiterated his reluctance to take a stand, emphasizing this report was not final in any sense, but was only advisory to his committee.

"This is only one of many tools the committee will use before it makes its report," Forbes said.

Forbes was asked if he thought the report gave implicit approval to student demands during the free speech controversy of last semester.

Again, he would not comment, saying he was "not yet prepared for evaluation."

One of the questions Forbes did answer regarded purported pressure from Governor Edmund G. Brown to release the report.

He denied emphatically any such pressure was exerted.

It had been reported the Forbes committee was not going to release the report until late June, but that Brown had "urged" them to make it public as soon as possible.

Byrne also read a short statement and then answered a few questions.

His statement outlined the purposes of the investigation and covered three main areas of the report.

Byrne called these "an obligation to study the crisis and the response of the University; to study what went wrong and why, with less emphasis on who took part; and to ask if this could happen again, and if it could, what steps could be taken."

Asked to elaborate the extent of the investigations, Byrne said his group had interviewed about 250 or 300 people including about 100 students and numerous faculty and administration people. Someone asked if they had interviewed Mario Savio and Byrne replied, "Yes, we did."

Will Appeal Verdict

'Word' Men Convicted

By JOHN F. OPPEDAHL

Advocates of a four-letter word ran into a six-letter word yesterday when they were found "guilty" in the "obscenity" trials in Berkeley Municipal Court.

The nine will appeal the decision within ten days, it was announced last night.

Sentencing was continued until tomorrow for former student Art Goldberg and non-student Jim Prickett.

Sentencing of the other seven will be at 9 a.m. June 8.

All the sentences will be based on reports of probation officers who will investigate each of the nine.

Goldberg was dismissed and Michael Klein and David Bills suspended by the University three weeks ago over the same actions of the three that led to their arrest.

Convictions of the nine stemmed from charges that on March 2, 4, 5 they were all involved in various ways with speaking an "obscene" word and carrying signs with the word on campus.

All nine were "guilty of offensive conduct," said Berkeley Municipal court judge Floyd Talbot.

However he said "this four letter word has stirred up a controversy all out of proportion to the act."

The nine were each judged in violation of two of three parts of the California Penal Code:

Sec. 311.2—distributing or showing "obscene" matter.

Sec. 311.6—speaking "obscene" words.

Sec. 415—speaking "indecent," (Continued on page 3)

No Action on Rules Violation

An expected confrontation between the administration and the University Civil Liberties Committee (UCLC) was postponed yesterday as the Dean's Office declined to enforce its Interim Rules on Student Political Activity.

Monday, UCLC responded to an order to remove a sign taped to Sather Gate by inviting prosecution from the University.

The civil liberties group, which has long been asking to be prosecuted as a "test case" of the rules' legality, put the sign up again yesterday in defiance of the order—expecting administration action.

The day went by, however, and no word came from a silent Sproul Hall.

Impatient with "selective enforcement" of the Interim Rules, UCLC spokesman Jo Freeman said she had drawn up a list of infractions similar to the one committed yesterday by UCLC. Each had been allegedly committed by a group not concerned with political issues, and in spite of repeated UCLC complaints, no action had been taken against them.

The violation list will be filed soon as a formal complaint, Miss Freeman said, in the hopes that a simultaneous test case involving a political and a non-political group could be brought about.

Sproul Plaza for Viet Day?

By RUTH EPSTEIN

A letter requesting permission to use campus facilities for Vietnam day activities was sent yesterday to Acting Chancellor Martin Meyerson by Jerry Rubin and Steve Smale, professor of mathematics, co-chairmen of the Vietnam Day Committee.

The letter asks for use of the Westgate grassy area and the upper and lower Sproul Plaza areas because for the "size of the expected crowd... a very large outside place is needed."

According to the letter, the areas also are desirable for their "accessibility to Harmon Gymnasium" which has already been reserved by the Committee.

Harmon Gymnasium will be used for part of the night program and in case of bad weather.

Also requested is that "all the usual regulations regarding limitations on the distribution of literature, fund raising, speaker's approval, and other political activity be suspended for this period."

Rubin said he was "optimistic" about Meyerson's yielding to these requests.

Meyerson was unavailable for comment yesterday about the letter.

Vietnam Day, sponsored jointly by the American Federation of Teachers and the Faculty Peace Committee, will feature debates and guest speakers to discuss the present U.S. policy in Vietnam and consider alternatives.

While primarily for the purpose of protesting U.S. Vietnam policy, the meeting will include speakers who support the policy.

Another letter, written by ASUC President Charlie Powell, has been sent to major West coast campuses asking for help with the (Continued on page 3)

Pelly Protests Pool Practices

By KEITH McCORMICK

A repeat performance of the recent "topless" crisis across the Bay threatened to erupt here yesterday as a line of irate co-ed pickets marched into Hearst Women's Gym with signs reading "Drop the Top!"

They were followed by a crowd of onlookers—mostly male.

A hurried investigation, however, revealed the coeds' aims were somewhat more modest than the first sign indicated.

What had drawn their wrath, apparently, was only a regulation banning exposure of the shoulders while sunbathing by the Hearst Gym pool.

The picketing coeds had been in the habit of undoing the straps of their ungainly tank suits for a better tan. Last week, however, they claimed they were ordered to "cover up"—even though the pool is used only by girls.

So, yesterday they picketed—and drew a curious crowd to hear a speech denouncing the "Victorian" rules.

Not all the pickets were girls, however, and one male sympathizer who had been carrying a sign was not satisfied with the "non-violent" approach. "We need direct action!" he shouted, throwing down his sign and jumping up on a concrete wall to harangue the crowd.

"We're going in there to the pool, and we're going to stage the first swim-in in history!" he yelled, and pointed the way up to the second-floor outdoor pool.

"Why aren't you going in?" asked one bystander as the pickets rushed past the speaker.

"I can't swim," was the lame reply.

He was persuaded by the girls, however, to clamber up above the pool and make a speech denouncing the "prudish" regulation.

Finally the group concluded with a march on the Physical Education Department offices, chanting "What do you want? Suntan! When do you want it? Now!" and repeating over and over, "Scrap Straps!"

Espen Schade, acting chairman of the women's department, dismissed the picketers with a (Continued on page 3)

Big Budget OK'd

By IRL CRAMER

The world's only Dun and Bradstreet rated student association last night approved its massive annual budget with only minor dissent.

The sum of $732,000 was involved.

The ASUC Senate deliberated for over four hours before unanimous 14-0 approval of the budget was obtained.

The only major disagreements came, as expected, in consideration of the California Marching Band and Spirit groups.

The Senate approved the allocations for these groups with little change, but established a policy of asking the University to foot part of the bill for such activities.

ASUC President-elect Jerry Goldstein, who presented the budget, promised he would consult with the administration regarding those items which benefit the University-owned athletic department.

The details:

• The anticipated ASUC revenue next year is $732,000. The bulk of this amount comes from the ASUC store ($315,000) and ASUC membership fees collected by the Regents ($253,000).

• Administration and operation of the ASUC buildings plus general association expenses require $462,000. This leaves $270,000 for distribution to the various student functions of the ASUC.

Of this amount:

$42,000 is expended on the various ASUC publications, the bulk of this amount going to the Daily Californian. The only expenditure of equal magnitude is that of the band ($44,500).

Rally and games groups such as Californians, Oski committee, pom-pom girls, yell leaders, and megaphone society has been allocated $10,570 for the coming year.

 chuckle.
 "Actually," she said, "the girls can sunbathe in the altogether if they want. There's no rule about it. Just that we remind them Barrows Hall has changed the privacy situation lately."

Lifeguards, she said, were instructed to remind girls that "they could be seen," and to discourage lowering straps or anything else. No written regulations, however, specifically prohibited it, she said.

The pickets, however, were not satisfied. As they filed off, one whose sign read "LSMFT—Lower Straps Mean Finer Tans," sighted a University truck coming up Barrows Lane.

 "Go limp!" he shouted, flinging himself in front of it.
 "Run over him," urged another picket. "It's a test case!"
 Finally, the movement's "Starving Committee" voted to return to the "Pelican" building, where the whole plot had been hatched. Relaxing after their first venture into the world of social reform, the Pelican Protesters spokesman told the hurriedly-assembled press conference their next target might not be the women's gym again.

Under consideration were the Daily Cal offices in anticipation of the review of "Pelican," coming out this Friday.

Mail Reg for New Students

New undergraduates and students returning after leaves of absence will register by mail beginning next semester.

Gone are the day-long registration lines in Harmon Gymnasium. However, some students, including those filing late applications, will still register in person. The status of entering graduate students has not been determined.

Previously, only returning undergraduates could register by mail.
 According to Robert Brownell, assistant registrar, registration by mail is part of a gradual change-over to year-round operation when "there will be no time for registration lines."

Nine Convicted for 'Obscenity'

 vulgar, or obscene" language in the presence of women and children; disturbing the peace by using "offensive" words or signs.

The defense maintained the first showing of the word on a sign by John Thomson was his act of protest of the war in Vietnam.

The other eight then protested his arrest, the defense contended.

"The hard-working, God-fearing presons in the community have a right not to hear words like these," said the prosecution.

The trial of the nine started April 21 with yesterday's session hearing summations from prosecution and defense and the verdict.

The prosecution maintained actions of the nine went beyond "community standards" of decency.

Claiming the signs and four-letter-words, for example, showed a "shameful or morbid interest in excretion and sex," assistant District Attorney Carl Anderson said they had "no more redeeming grace than that we would find on latrine walls."

The signs had "no redeeming social importance," he continued. "Is it possible this venerable Anglo-Saxon expletive could arouse sexual interest in a normal citizen?" the defense asked.

Another attorney for the nine, Vernon Moore, maintained the "community standards" allegedly violated should not be Berkeley's but the University's since the latter is a "community unto itself."

"Compared to the atomic bomb," George argued, "the 'word' is full of life-giving qualities."

The nine and the charges on which found guilty:

- John Thomson (non-student)—311.6 and 415 for holding a sign with a four-letter word on campus March 2 and using "obscene" language at a March 4 rally.

- David Bills (student on suspension)—311.2 and 415 for sitting at a table on campus while holding a sign with the four-letter word on it.

- Art Goldberg (dismissed student)—311.6, 415 (two counts) for speaking "obscenities" at a campus rally March 4.

- Charles Artman (non-student)—311.6, 415 for speaking "obscene" words at a March 5 campus rally.

- Jim Prickett (non-student) 311.6, 415 for same as Artman.

- Michael Klein (student, suspended) 311.6, 415 for speaking "obscene" words at a rally and reading parts of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" aloud in the Sprout Hall police station.

- Ed Rosenfeld (non-student) 311.2, 415 for exhibiting an "obscene" sign.

- Daniel Rosenthal (non-student) 311.6, 415 for "obscene" words at a rally.

- Stephen Argent (non-student) 311.2, 415 for "obscene" sign.

'System' Hit by Byrne Com

 Byrne was by and large content to stand on the report and refused to elaborate greatly on it.
 Carter, too, read a statement to the newsmen.

In it, he expressed disappointment with the report, especially with what he called "philosophical sanctions for the behavior of a relatively small proportion of the students who engaged in, and a minority of the faculty which actively supported, civil disobedience on the Berkeley campus last fall."

He did, however, call "sound" the proposals for decentralization of power within the University.

During the more extensive question period which followed the reading of Carter's statement, the three men dealt with numerous questions, refusing to answer or skirting many others.

Byrne was asked if his report meant to imply his team of investigators had found no evidence of "Communist control of or domination in the FSM."

He replied they had indeed found no control or domination of the FSM by Communist groups although they had found some participation by "individuals and groups of a revolutionary Marxist persuasion."

Byrne also reiterated the report's conclusion that the immediate cause of the "unrest" was the removal of the tables at the Bancroft-Telegraph area.

"We found no evidence of a prior plot," he said.

Byrne was asked to reconcile the recommendations in his report with the recommendations of the Meyer committee in the area of student government, taking positions on off-campus issues.

He replied, "if this would create student interest in government, then this is what is needed."

Carter differed with Byrne on this point also.

Regent Edwin Pauley, a member of the Forbes committee, disagreed markedly with the findings of the report.

He noted that the discipline which was finally taken was based on pre-existing regulations.

Pauley said, "The need is not for new regulations, but for enforcement of existing regulations."

He also found fault with the report's dismissal of Communist control of the FSM.

"I do believe a great deal of the activity was Communist inspired," Pauley told newsmen.

He said, "I don't think anyone agreed with the report in its entirety."

Speaking to newsmen after the conclusion of the press conference, Carter told them he thought the recommendations of the Meyer committee which will come before the Board of Regents next week were "more in tune with the Regents."

 Vietnam Day program.

In his letter, Powell encouraged other college presidents to:

- "Plan immediately to send buses from your campus to ours to join us in our meeting here, and

- "Hold rallies on your campus to include both information on Vietnam and on our community meeting."

Powell also urged financial contributions to assure attendance at the meeting of national figures.

Additional support for Vietnam Day came yesterday from the Graduate Coordinating Committee (GCC).

The GCC asked "all people to attend the meeting, and pursuant thereto, all TA's to announce Vietnam Day in their classes and if possible to suspend their classes beginning at noon, Friday, May 21."

The meeting, expected to draw up to 25,000 people, will follow in many respects the "teach-ins" that have occurred on college campuses in the last few months, according to Rubin.

Juan Bosch, past president of the Dominican Republic, and the man the rebels are now trying to re-instate in office is one of several invited speakers.

Rubin said no word from Bosch was expected for "a day or so" since the cablegram was sent only Monday night.

Broncos Belt Bear Ace, Win 6-3 on 3 Homers

BY STAN SMITH

Cal's hopes for a championship in baseball this year were obliterated last night in Santa Clara, as the hard-hitting hosts pulled out a 6-3 win to keep alive their own hopes of a tie with Stanford for the title.

The Bear's ace pitcher, Andy Messersmith, was the victim of the Broncos' barrage of ten hits, including three round-trippers.

The sophomore right-hander, who had lost only one game previously this season, perhaps felt the pressure of the necessity of winning. He walked three (he had only walked 15 all season) and, according to Coach George Wolfman, was "wild high. He got behind the hitters and had to come in with some of his pitches."

To compound their problems, the Bears had to face a superb hurling performance by Bruce Robertson, who gave up only seven hits and struck out twelve opponents, walking but one.

The Bears were in the game most of the way, and were the first to draw blood. In the top of the second, left fielder Rich Nye continued his heavy hitting as he pounded a double. Nye reached third on an errant pickoff attempt by Robertson, and came in on a sacrifice fly by third sacker Tom Cooper.

The Broncos bounced back in the bottom of the frame with the first of their trio of solo homers, this one by Rod Austin.

Santa Clara came up with what were to prove the winning runs in the bottom of the third, scoring three on a series of singles.

But the Bears bounced almost back in the top of the fifth with two scores. Red hot shortstop Don Bunch singled, and Messersmith followed with another safety. Second baseman Mike Taylor drove Bunch home with a third single, and an error on the play allowed Messersmith to run the score to 4-3.

With that inning ended Cal's often glorious run at the CIBA flag, for the Bears could not make up the difference, while the Broncos in the sixth and eighth got four-baggers from Dick Solis and Bob Carmichel.

The win not only eliminated the Blue and Gold from title contention; it assured Stanford of at least a tie for the championship. Cal's record is 10-8, Stanford's 12-6, and Santa Clara's 7-8, yet Santa Clara still has a chance to tie the Indians while Cal does not.

The reason for this is that in case of a tie the championship is decided on the results of the series between the two clubs who finish even. Cal lost three of four to Stanford; the Broncos hold a win over Stanford and have two more with the Injuns.

THE SUMMER IN ACTION . . . All-American Craig Morton is getting ready to hit fullback Tommy Relles with a short pass in last season's Miami game. Craig will don the Blue and Gold Saturday when he leads a fine alumni squad against the Varsity and Relles.

Many Big Names

Alumni Have Best Team

By GEORGE BAKER

Football in the middle May, may seem strange but that's what it will be this Saturday afternoon when the Alumni returns to do battle with the Cal football team in Memorial stadium at 1:30.

Coach Jim Cullom has termed his squad the best ever as it features such former stars as Craig Morton, Jack Schraub, Johnny Olszewski, and Wayne Crow. What they lack in conditioning they make up for in ability.

The 1958 Rose Bowl team is also well represented with stars such as Frank Sally, Charlie Halston, Grover Garvin, Andy Segale, and Walt Arnold.

Fans can expect to see plenty of aerial activity as Morton who was all-everything last year and signed a $200,000 contract with the Dallas Cowboys, will be at the helm along with two other outstanding QB's, Randy Gold and Larry Balliett.

Some sticky fingered receivers will be in the lineup for the quarterbacks to toss at. Schraub, Cal's all-time leading pass receiver and a Dallas Cowboys' draft choice will be at one end position, while Larry Lowell, a 63 starter, weighing in at 6-3, 220, will be at the other end slot.

To go with these men Bill Vaughn, a former leading Cal pass receiver for one season, will be running at the flanker spot.

Backing up Morton in the other backfield spots will be two Berkeley High School coaches, Garvin, and Jerry Scattini, who played from '60-'62.

The other backfield spot will be capably handled by Johnny "O", an All-American fullback in 1952. The Big "O", a legend in his day and a former pro star with the Washington Redskins and St. Louis Cardinals, is now a salesman, but he is in fine shape and will see plenty of action.

Several members of last year's team, in addition to Morton and Schraub, will be starting. On the offensive line Jim Norwood will be at right guard, and Jim Pinson at right tackle. And on defense Ron Calegari will maneuver at right tackle, Tom Lutes left linebacker, Dennis Abreu, center linebacker, Tom Blanchfield; one corner and Jerry Walter the other corner.

Additionally Blanchfield may see double duty as an offensive back and Jim Blakeney will also see some action.

The defensive line will be a rugged one to run against with Bob Chiappone, 6-4, 235, at one end and Charlie Halston 6-4, 240 at the other end, with Manny Penafior, 6-2, 225, at left tackle.

Morton, Gold and Balliett could have a field day throwing against the secondary of Cal which boasts little experience. In that secondary will be Jerry Mosher, a flanker last year, Ty Price, Ken Moulton, both second string last year, and Bobby Smith, up from the freshman squad.

Cal Lacrosse Club Loses to Palo Alto; Hosts Stanford Sat.

The Cal Lacrosse team dropped a 5-0 decision to the Palo Alto Lacrosse Club Sunday in preparation for its clash with Stanford this Saturday.

Cal was "unorganized" in a poor performance, but it didn't make much difference as PALC goalie John Font, a two-time All-American at Syracuse U., played "a tremendous game."

Cal is now 4-2 for the season, and 2-2 with PALC, which makes picking a NorCal champion a bit difficult. One of the two clubs rates the honor.

Saturday's tilt will be played on Clint Evans Lacrosse Field.

Frosh Nine Finishes Strong; Varsity Prospects Abundant

Freshman baseball coach Al Kyte didn't produce a championship team this year, but as far as varsity mentor George Wolfman is concerned, Kyte certainly did his job, for Wolfman will next year be receiving the most improved, and quite possibly the best, bunch of yearlings in the Bay Area.

The '65 freshmen, started the season like a ball of fire in a bucket of water — they fizzled. Losing six of their first ten games, the Bearlets were inexperienced and showed it. A number of players were holding down unfamiliar positions and the others had not found their range.

After that point the jello set, and a 16-3 record was the result. It was too late to catch Santa Clara and Stanford, the conference leaders (who have yet to finish their season and decide the championship) but the Blue and Gold did the next best thing: in their last two meetings with each they won and won decisively.

Bay Area league of six teams, at 20-9 overall.

The men who accomplished this, and who will greet Wolfman next year, constitute a well-rounded roster, and seem to have made their many adjustments well.

To start the season, Kyte found he had three outstanding shortstops in Ted Parks, Gary Coburn, and Bob Leatherwood. All swung good wood at the plate, so Kyte put Leatherwood at second and Coburn at third.

The result was devastation, as Parks slugged .386 with numerous extra-base hits; Coburn, clouted .314; and Leatherwood pounded out .292.

Parks, incidently, played the latter part of the season while participating in spring football practice, where he is apparently earning himself a starting spot at defensive half.

Kyte feels that these three sluggers, plus Bob Rebuschatis at first, constitute the best infield he has ever coached.

Kyte also liked the work of his outfielders, particularly Steve Lewis and Rick Cortese alternating in center; converted first sacker Steve Karp in left; and fugitive basketballer Bill Mathews, right.

The pitching staff produced some standouts. High on the list was the big stopper, Bruce Roberts, who worked, and won, the most—7-3. He was backed up by Mathews and another hardworker, Steve Thaman, both 2-0. The fireman on the squad proved to be Harold Bond, 3-1 with a trio of fine saves.

Short on catchers, Kyte had to gamble that first stringer Frank Smith would stay healthy. Kyte won the gamble and many a game, as Smith showed much improvement to boot.

The Byrne Committee Report —

(Editor's Note: Following are excerpts from the "Report on the University of California and Recommendations to the Special Committee of the Regents of the University of California," prepared by the Byrne Committee. Jerome C. Byrne, Special Counsel for the Regents "Special Forbes Committee" was commissioned by the Forbes Committee to produce the report. The Forbes Committee was established by the Regents in December to "research basic factors contributing to recent unrest within the University of California, giving special attention to the disturbances on the Berkeley campus.")

II BACKGROUND OF THE CRISIS

A. UNIVERSITY GOVERNMENT
The crisis at Berkeley last fall has become known as the free speech controversy. It was that, but more fundamentally it was a crisis in government, caused by the failure of the President and the Regents to develop a governmental structure at once acceptable to the governed and suited to the vastly increased complexity of the University.

The State Constitution commits to the Regents full powers of organization and government, and power to delegate such authority or function as it may deem wise. It was not the purpose of this constitutional provision to contain all authority—legislative, executive, and judicial—in the Regents, but to give the Regents the necessary discretion to authorize changes in the governmental structure without amending the Constitution.

The framers of the Constitution expected the Regents to employ their power to delegate as the well-being of the University requires, to the executive officers of the University, to the Academic Senate in matters of admissions, curriculum, and degrees, and to any other appropriate individuals or groups. The Constitutional conception of the Regents, in other words, was not that they should be the government of the University, but that they should make provision for the government of the University.

The Regents have not in fact chosen to delegate most of their enormous powers. For many years their retention of authority, while by no means entirely satisfactory, caused comparatively few major problems. The University was a relatively small enterprise, the number of decisions needing to be made was limited, and University operations were sufficiently simple for intelligent laymen to master their details on a part-time basis. But the passing years brought steady growth to the University . . .

The failure of the President and the Regents to develop a comprehensive set of statutes or policies for governing the University is not an accidental oversight. It reflects a philosophy of government. The President and the Regents have failed to set explicit policies in many areas because they expected and wanted decisions in these areas to be referred to them. Despite the recommendation of the Regents' management consultants that policy be formulated in a wide variety of areas, the President and the Regents have been reluctant to lay down general rules and regulations and then leave the interpretation and execution of these to other University administrators, faculty and students . . .

1. Confusion as to Placement of Authority and Responsibility. There is great confusion as to the actual distribution of power within the University, as to the sources of various policies, and indeed as to their substance . . .

And finally, this vagueness encouraged those administrators who were reluctant to take personal responsibility for their actions and decisions to pass them on to others within the University.

2. The Difficulty of Securing High Quality Executives. Talented executives are hard to find, and competition for their services is intense. No talented executive is likely to take on a job which does not give him ample opportunity to assume whatever responsibility he is capable of assuming. Nor is he likely to remain in a system which does not give him authority commensurate with his responsibilities . . .

3. The Demoralization of the Administration. Our research uncovered low morale at almost every level of University administration, and on almost every campus. As one University official puts it, University of California administrators feel "underpaid, overworked and underappreciated." Administrators at all levels frequently appear reluctant to take responsibility or make decisions. There is a feeling throughout the University bureaucracy that promotion is achieved by avoiding mistakes, not by taking risks and achieving successes as well as failures. There is a widespread conviction that the wisest course is always to kick difficult problems upstairs, not try to solve them on one's own. This means that almost all problems become, immediately and automatically, Regental problems. The inevitable result is a widespread devaluation of administrators . . .

6. Tensions Between the Administration and Student Government. The relationship between the campus administrations and the student governments has long been a source of conflict. It has never been entirely clear whether, or to what extent, Chancellors were legally or administratively responsible for the actions of the various student governments. There has long been confusion between the proprietary aspects of student "government" and its assistance in the policy-making role. The need to safeguard the assets administered by the students is confused with other aspects of student "government."

In addition, some campus administrations only sporadically and infrequently consult with student government about University and campus regulations affecting the students. When the student governments are consulted, their counsel is not given serious consideration on all campuses. One result of this has been to create considerable contempt for student government among undergraduates, especially at Berkeley. Another result has been to discourage many talented students from seeking office in the student government. This has produced governments which represent only a small part of the total spectrum of student interests and opinions. This has been particularly true at Berkeley . . .

C. The Student and University Teaching

Most complaints about teaching at the University do not, however, focus on the dedication or competence of the faculty, but on the way instruction is organized. The ratio of students to faculty on most campuses is quite high, with Berkeley and UCLA the highest. Classes, especially for lower division students, are typically quite large lectures, in which students are necessarily passive listeners. Most students have little opportunity to express or test their views. Even when they think the quality of the lectures high, many students find this form of instruction unsatisfying. They want more give and take, more intimacy, and more connection between the classroom and the rest of their experience.

The result is that students are thrown back on their own resources. They come to depend on one another for both intellectual stimulation and moral guidance. Particularly at Berkeley, a student's education or miseducation depends in large measure on his relationships with his classmates. This is true for many different kinds of students: for those whose major college interests are primarily social and athletic, for those interested primarily in political and social reform, and even in good part for those whose first interests are vocational and academic . . .

E. Students and Politics

Large-scale emotional involvement in off-campus politics came to Berkeley, as to most other American campuses, through the civil rights movement.

The American people have never been noted for their veneration of established authority. From the Boston Tea Party to the march on Montgomery, Americans have shown themselves ready to defy officially established laws in order to follow their own private visions of "higher law." The civil rights movement, as it developed after the Southern sit-ins, was in this tradition . . .

Reasons for the Crisis

B. CONCLUSIONS AS TO THE BASIS OF THE STUDENTS UNREST

1. The Nature of the Protest of the Free Speech Movement. We conclude that the basic cause of unrest on the Berkeley campus was the dissatisfaction of a large number of students with many features of the society they were about to enter. This dissatisfaction led them to political action, particularly civil rights action. The students involved in the Free Speech Movement were genuinely and deeply concerned about off-campus political and social action and their "freedom" to use the University property as a base for the organization of their efforts in this direction. They resented deeply any action of the Administration which, in any way, hindered or interfered with their view of their constitutional right to engage in what they considered to be fundamental and morally required social reform . . .

2. The Extent of Participation. The Free Speech Movement enjoyed widespread support among students on the Berkeley campus. The large numbers of participating in the various demonstrations establish this fact. A reliable survey of student opinion, which we have had reviewed by independent experts, concludes that, before December sit-in, about two-thirds of the students said they supported the FSM's objectives and about a third supported its tactics. Subsequent surveys showed that support increased after the December sit-in.

3. The Question of Communist Influence. We found no evidence that the Free Speech Movement was organized by the Communist Party, the Progressive Labor Labor Movement, or any other outside group. Despite a number of suggestive coincidences, the evidence which we accumulated left us with no doubt that the Free Speech Movement was a response to the September 14 change in rules regarding political activity at Bancroft and Telegraph, not a pre-planned effort to embarrass or destroy the University on whatever pretext arose . . .

4. Non-Student Involvement. We concluded that "non-students" were not a crucial element in the disturbances or in the FSM. Of those arrested in Sproul Hall for example, 87 per cent were enrolled as students. Some of the "non-students" were recent alumni living near the University, and in some cases employed by it. Some were students who had dropped out of the University to work, but had retained their friendships on the campus and planned to return to formal studies. Others were wives of students, particularly graduate students. All of these individuals were for all practical purposes part of the "University Community." There were also some arrestees who had no connection whatever with the University. A few of these were substantially older than most students. A few well-known Bay Area radicals were prominently visible on the campus during the disturbances, but none appeared to have had much influence with the FSM leadership. Indeed, we found no evidence that any FSM leader was subject to any sort of "adult" discipline. Even those who are close to the various revolutionary Marxist groups seem in most cases suspicious of the older generation of "party line" Communists . . .

B. Aftermath of the Crisis
(In the light of the free speech controversy here, the report examines the implications of the "Graduate Students' Vote at Berkeley" and claims it is a salient example of "the pressing need for governmental reform." A few of their comments on the situation are given below.)

b. There was apparently no established Regental policy in such a matter, but only a series of precedents based on an original operational decision by the Regents.

f. The Regents were asked to take responsibility for the decision by voting on it, even though a policy was said to exist in this area; in that event no vote was required. The Regents again acquiesced in involvement in operational matters. (If such a policy did not exist, the time to establish one was before the votes were taken. In that case, the question should have been presented to the Regents as a legislative matter requiring a firm statement of policy which would govern the entire University system.)

This action is a failure in the proper government of the University. The ultimate harm wrought from this method of decision is apparent. The Regents and the President deny the tactics used by the students in the fall: intentional violation of rules, the interference with arresting officers, sit-ins, strikes, etc. The Regents and the President properly assert that the students should seek redress through legitimate channels, but then make a decision which has the effect of arbitrarily vetoing a legitimate, democratic effort by the students to make a student government responsive to their views. This action, ex post facto legislation, opens the door to continuing distrust . . .

IV RECOMMENDATIONS
Three principles should guide the Regents in shaping the University's government and organization:

1. The crucial power of the Regents is the power to reinvest in others the high faith placed in the Regents by the people. This suggests that the Regents can and must show the same faith in the individual members of the academic community that the people of California have shown in the Regents, and must accord them the rights due to responsible citizens of a free community.

2. The wise use of power requires its wide distribution. This suggests that the Regents must be willing to delegate their enormous powers as the people have been willing to delegate theirs.

3. The principle of autonomy, so vital to the University in securing its place in society, should also apply to each campus in the University system. This suggests that the campus is the basic unit of academic life and should, therefore, be the basic unit of University organization and government.

d. We recommend that the charters provide for and encourage the establishment of broadly-based student governments . . .

(1) Will be a vital resource to the Chancellor in meeting his responsibility as the chief executive of the University.

(2) Will serve as the primary formal channel of communication to the Chancellor of student opinions and concerns.

(3) Will respond to the interests of students, whether in academic, political, or social matters. Further, it should attract the participation of students whose interests are diverse.

(4) Will be permitted to take and announce positions on issues important to the membership, within or outside the University, provided that the membership wishes to commit that power to its governing board, the vote on the issue is announced, and the announcement identifies the group, disclaiming authority to speak for the University.

h. We recommend that the Regents establish visiting committees, each composed of three Regents, assigned to learn about individual universities.

c. We therefore propose:

(1) That the By-Laws be re-drafted and limited in scope to the affairs of the Regents, i.e., wholly separated from statements of policy or enunciation of rules governing the University itself.

(2) That charters be prepared for each university within the system of higher learning under Regental jurisdiction, as outlined above. These should be constitutional rather than legislative documents.

(3) That the documents which set forth the laws of government for the system as a whole be renamed the "Policies of the University of California." In this connection, the Regents should instruct the President to make a thorough assessment and review of all existing policy; gaps should be filled and inconsistencies should be remedied.

(4) We urge that all basic documents of government—By-Laws, Charters, and Policies—be codified and made available throughout the University system, and to the public on request.

3. We recommend that the Office of the President be constituted to give leadership to the entire University system.

a. We recommend that the Presidency and the Chairmanship of the Regents be merged into one, with the President serving as ex officio Chairman of the Regents and having the powers now vested in the Chairman . . .

4. We recommend that the Regents re-formulate their role in the government of the University . . .

f. We suggest that the basic roles and functions of the Regents are as follows:

(1) To provide for and sustain a system of governance for the University.

(2) To establish the fundamental policies which govern and guide the University system.

(3) To choose, appraise, and remove the principal executives of the University.

(4) To assure that sufficient funds are supplied to support the University.

(5) To provide for the management of University investments.

(6) To allocate funds among the separate universities which make up the University commonwealth.

(7) To protect the University commonwealth from unwarranted attack as it carries out its purposes.

The function of a great university is to maintain a tradition while transforming it. To do the same may well be the ultimate test of the institution of Regency.

—Respectfully submitted,
Jerome C. Byrne
Special Counsel

A Good Evaluation

A Board of Regents committee has finally discovered what we members of the University community have known all along—the fault of last semester's Crisis lay with the System.

The controversy was ours. It grew from and symbolized our problems.

The Byrne Committee Report was produced after months of labor. Special Counsel Jerome C. Byrne was commissioned by the Forbes Committee, under the direction of Regent William E. Forbes, to "research the basic factors contributing to recent unrest within the University of California . . ."

Byrne produced the report for which he was commissioned. Having almost every participant of the Crisis available for interview, as well as $75,000 from the Regents, his committee certainly should have produced a good report. His report was not only good—it was a masterpiece.

His analysis of the University of California and the Board of Regents explains the situation better than any to date. After studying the problem, Byrne and his committee concluded only major changes are needed to save the University.

Now Edward W. Carter, Chairman of the Board of Regents, indicates the Board will pay little attention to the report because it did not coincide with a preconceived notion of the nature of the Crisis. We would like to point out that Byrne has studied the situation far more extensively than Regent Carter.

"I found (the report) very stimulating, but I doubt if the committee will treat most of the recommendations with much seriousness," Carter said. He apparently objected to some of the radical proposals in the report.

He criticized the report for giving "philosophical sanctions" for the civil disobedience which occurred on campus.

Regent Carter has two problems. First, he cannot believe the students had good reason to resort to civil disobedience.

Secondly, not being able to see good reason for the civil disobedience, he is unable to see that drastic measures are needed to avoid such disobedience again.

He has yet to see what a University is.

If he would read the Byrne report again and take it seriously, he might gain more insight into the problems of the University of California—problems the students have become increasingly aware of during the last year.

Shadows and Forms

A Non-Existent 'Missile Gap'

Vic Keppel

Russia is at it again. Last Sunday they announced the launching of a vehicle called 'Luna 5.' The "New York Times" reports it to be the fifth Russian lunar shot, a remarkable conclusion. My friend, Otto Biggs, embraced the proper American attitude toward the whole episode; "Why that thing don't even weigh as much as my Chrysler!"

Bravo, Otto! You have the true spirit of patriotism. Your car does weigh more than 3254 pounds and although it can't take pictures of the moon's back side, you do have a television in your rear seat. Obviously we are far ahead of the Russians.

The Tass news agency went further to announce that the Luna 5 is "fitted with measuring apparatus for scientific research." A statement like that makes every aspect of their space shot abundantly clear. Cover your bets. If the thing blows up in the crater Alphonsus, the scientific apparatus will be a seismic moon bomb designed to measure its core. The fact that it lands perfectly on target will be announced after it hits. It may even land perfectly on target in the crater Plato, or possibly perfectly on target on the reverse side.

We are relieved to know what the Russians are up to. At least they are not up to their necks in reporters from "Life," CBS and the "Tallahassee Times."

If this newest Russian probe effects a successful soft landing on the moon's surface, the initial reaction of the American press will be "well done," but on the page opposite that story will be a feature article on the meat rationing situation in Sverdlostok.

If a lunar orbit is effected, we can be sure that our press will be filled with the comments of NASA officials on the significance of such a feat.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the press, a highly reliable authority has told me to tell you that there is absolutely no importance to be attached to the current Russian vehicle. (Notice they don't even admit it's a spaceship.)"

"We at the pentagon would further like to point out that the televised broadcasts coming from that vehicle are of very poor quality." (But they have to admit that the Bolshoi ballet does look fairly impressive in a weightless condition.)

Mariner IV is on its way to Mars. Russia's Zond II is going there also. We took great pride in announcing the failure of Zond's electrical power. The Russians say that there was no power failure. There was too much power and the overloaded circuits blew a fuse.

A new television series has just begun in Europe with the aid of Comsat's Earlybird: "Life with the Johnson's." I think that the next show to be internationally televised should be "To Tell the Truth."

When it comes to a matter of who is doing what first in space, our administration takes things very personally, and well they should. There is no such thing as a missile gap. There is no comparison at all.

'An Evening of Song'—Refreshing

By THOMAS WALKER

(Editor's Note: Mr. Walker is a graduate in Music and a Teaching Assistant at the University.)

On May 7 and 8, the Glee Club and Treble Clef once again brought their special brand of charm and entertainment to Hertz Hall in "An Evening of Song." Conductors James Fankhauser and Elizabeth Davidson led their groups with skill through an ambitious first half which included excerpts of Bach and Carissimi, as well as recent compositions of two students-in-residence at the University, Leonard Norwitz and John Thomas.

Mr. Thomas' Alma Redemptoris Mater, an ethereal piece for unaccompanied three-part treble chorus, is already known to campus audiences. Although on Saturday night the Norwitz piece was rather dense, it was pleasant to hear Mr. Thomas' lovely work again. Best performed on this portion of the concert were two early American psalm tunes, set in "modern" guise for men's chorus by Luther Noss. The Glee Club has unbelievably fine diction!

After intermission, the fun began. The Treble Clef led off with Four Russian Peasant Songs by Stravinsky—lively, spirited pieces close to the world of Les Notes. Messrs. Green, Leedy, Kent, and Sease supplied the impressive horn accompaniment.

The two groups know well how to divide and conquer: little knots of singers kept emerging from the background to occupy the spotlight, usually with delightful results. Nicholas Tennants madrigal team tackled Monteverdi and Morley—the latter's Now is the Month of Maying was an unannounced bonus. Ann Gresham countered by taking a well-rehearsed group of girls through a jazz arrangement of Francois Couperin's Les Petits Moulins a Vent (from the Troisieme livre de pieces de clavecin) in best "Swingle Singers" style, complete with percussion backing.

The Glee Club owns the only seven-man Octet in captivity, and that just barely, for it threatens at every moment to break loose. The moderator, David Gruwell, is hilarious, and so is the repertoire—from the KSFO station break to a properly naughty parody, "Bennie's from Heaven." The program concluded with a splendid rendition of Brahms Tafellied by the combined forces; for a final encore, the alumnae and alumni swarmed to the stage and assisted in singing our Alma Mater.

Barbara Strunk Shearer and Dennis Dufalla deserve a strong compliment on their keyboard accompaniment. The entire program is greatly to the credit of Mr. Fankhauser and Miss Davidson, who have once again demonstrated that the Glee Club and Treble Clef are collectively the finest choral group associated with the University.

Need a Psychiatrist?

Lots of people are on the couch today, for high pressure living in a strife-torn world makes impossible demands on the human being. Competent medical help is expensive and treatment is often lengthy and difficult, for the human mind is a marvelous and complex fabric woven over years of experience and countless reactions to life. To understand and unravel the living material of the mind requires immense skill, training and knowledge.

While the sciences of psychology and psychoanalysis are not much more than half a century old, Jesus Christ, some twenty centuries ago, healed and treated a great variety of illnesses, physical and mental, with perfect success: "He went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing every disease and every infirmity among the people . . . and they brought Him all the sick, those afflicted with various diseases and pains, demoniacs, epileptics, and paralytics, and He healed them . . ." (Matthew 4:23-25).

The Old Testament calls Jesus Christ the "Wonderful Counselor" (Isaiah 9:6), for as the Great Physician He has healed more than one case abandoned by men as hopeless. It is because Jesus Christ is man's Creator and Redeemer, and the Source of all life that He is in a unique position to bring aid to men.

God's therapy begins with the new birth (which occurs when faith and trust is placed in the Lord Jesus Christ). The regenerating and renewing work of God which follows implants Christ within men to fill the inner hollow which man calls "self." Modern psychologists have made a great fuss about the unconscious mind and "finding the true self," but apart from spiritual birth and the indwelling life of Jesus Christ, their therapy will fail, because God has made us creatures who are dependent upon Him.

The Apostle Paul prayed that men would discover what the indwelling life of God can mean to any individual: "may God grant you, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man, THAT CHRIST MAY DWELL IN YOUR HEARTS BY FAITH . . . THAT YOU MAY BE FILLED WITH ALL THE FULLNESS OF GOD" (Ephesians 3:14-21).

Need a psychiatrist? Jesus Christ stands ready to help you. He said, "All things are possible to him who believes" (Mark 9:23). Why be a hollow man when He stands ready to fill you with Himself, to be the Physician of your soul and the Guardian of your eternal destiny, if you but ask Him today.

Report Will Not Be Released

Acting Chancellor Martin Meyerson has declined to make public a report of his Advisory Committee on Discrimination on alleged racial discrimination at Haas Clubhouse in Strawberry Canyon.

Charges of discrimination at an April weekend retreat at the clubhouse were made by the Student Tutorial Aid Group (STAG). This prompted a series of committee hearings on the matter.

According to Neil Smelser, chancellor's assistant, the University Personnel Office will make recommendations to curtail further incidents.

John Wagner, personnel manager, said yesterday his office has not yet received the report.

STAG members, permitted to read the committee report, have agreed to comment on it later this week.

FSM Testimony

'He Dragged Me Down The Hall to the Elevator'

By TOM KNOX

"The officer took me by my left arm and dragged me down the hall to the elevator," Bettina Aptheker testified yesterday concerning her arrest in the Sproul Hall sit-in.

Miss Aptheker was a member of the 11 member steering committee that decided upon a sit-in to protest campus regulations dealing with political activity.

When she and the policeman reached the elevator, Miss Aptheker told the court, "He just dropped my left arm and I was more or less sprawled out."

According to Miss Aptheker, an officer then said, "Okay sister, the show's over, get up."

"I didn't do anything," she said. "What happened then?" defense attorney Henry Elson asked. "I was kicked in the stomach," she answered, "I got up."

Miss Aptheker's testimony came yesterday in the trial of 155 demonstrators, arrested for their part in a sit-in at Sproul Hall, Dec. 2-3.

Prior to her actual arrest, she said under cross-examination, "An officer placed his hand on my shoulder and I sat down. He hadn't said anything, he just placed his hand on my shoulder."

In reply to deputy district attorney Edwin Meese's question, she affirmed that arrests had been undertaken on the second floor of Sproul Hall prior to the time she was arrested there.

Having established that Miss Aptheker had been aware of her opportunity to escape arrest by walking from the building, Meese asked, "It was your intention not to walk and to remain seated then, is that correct?"

"Yes," Miss Aptheker replied. "You would make no voluntary move to help officials, is that correct?"

She answered affirmatively again.

Under direct examination, Miss Aptheker delved into the days immediately prior to the Dec. 2-3 sit-in, and with the sit-in itself.

Monitors were on constant patrol during the sit-in, having been told "to keep aisles clear and doors free from obstruction," she testified.

She also said she had personally dragged two cartons down an aisle, gathering garbage.

Cross-examination dealt in part with the early days of the FSM. Under questioning, Miss Aptheker related the set up and procedures of the FSM executive committee, and the steering committee which was elected from it.

Miss Aptheker will resume the stand this morning at 10 a.m., in cross-examination.

Senate Com Ayes Motion

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate Education Committee yesterday approved a bill to eliminate the academic minor requirement for teacher credentials.

The measure by Sen. Albert S. Rodda (D-Sacramento), also would permit teachers to receive an elementary school credential without taking the required fifth year of college if a special diversified college program is followed.

The committee rejected another bill by Rodda that would allow returning Peace Corps volunteers credential credit for the courses they took when they trained for overseas assignments.

Rodda said these measures were proposed to provide more teachers if anticipated shortages occur.

"There's been a terrific decline in the number of teachers going into the elementary level," Rodda added.

Premed Meet

The pre-medical society will hold its biggest meeting of the semester at 8:00 p.m. today. Jean Moe and Mrs. Harriet Sparling from the Placement Center will start the program with a talk on summer job opportunities for premedical students.

The Premedical Society, designed primarily for students planning to enter medicine, also includes such fields as medical technology, dental hygiene, dentistry and physical therapy.
