Heyns Adopts Searle's Rules Review Plan

Chancellor Roger Heyns yesterday announced the formation of a rules committee along the lines suggested by John Searle, special assistant on student organizations.

Searle had proposed electing three undergraduates, two graduates, four faculty members and an administration representative to review the present rules and recommend changes.

This plan was opposed by leaders of some student groups on the grounds it failed to involve "really democratic student participation" in making the rules.

Susan Stein, a member of Students for a Democratic Society, had urged in meetings with Searle and student leaders that the rules be drafted by an open-participation meeting and submitted to the campus at large for a referendum approval.

Still, Mrs. Stein was cautiously optimistic about the new committee.

"Although I think the University has missed an opportunity to experiment with more democratic forms of policy-making," she said, "any institutionalization of procedures which will prevent the Administration from unilaterally issuing rules is valuable."

She pointed to "the no-permit-no-parade edict" of last week as an example of "unilateral decrees," and said she hoped the committee would "immediately issue directives protecting our right to assemblies such as VDC's forthcoming demonstration."

Mrs. Stein said she hoped the committee would be bound "by no more than the Resolution of December 8th."

Heyns said he felt the committee plan would "fill the need . . . for student consultation in the process of making and amending campus rules."

Elaborating on the word "consultation," Searle pointed out that "the final responsibility for promulgating the new set of rules resides with the Chancellor."

"That's the way the University constitution is set up," he said. He emphasized this did not mean the committee, even though it is only advisory, will have no authority — quite the opposite.

Searle also noted "this is the first representative body of graduate students in the University government."

Heyns said the ASUC Senate recommended that elections for the new committee's seats be held in conjunction with the election of constitutional convention delegates beginning Nov. 15.

He invited "students seriously interested in campus rules" to file for candidacy immediately in 304 Eshleman. Filing will close and campaigning begin on Nov. 6, he said.

Heyns also indicated he would announce his own appointment and ask the Academic Senate to appoint the four faculty members "in the near future."

Draft Noose Tightens in LA

By KEITH McCORMICK

Several hundred students from the west Los Angeles area will not receive draft deferments this fall whether they are in school or not, according to a new policy of the Selective Service System in California.

During the last week, University students ranging from Letters and Science freshmen to graduates in Boalt School of Law have received notices reclassifying them as 1-A (ready for induction) instead of 2-S (deferred as a student).

All were from the area served by the five draft boards whose joint headquarters are in Westwood Village, a few blocks from the UCLA campus.

At UCLA itself, the biggest surprise came as notices of reclassification came to the bulk of the graduate student body—traditionally eligible for continued deferment as long as "normal progress" toward a degree was maintained.

An official of the campus Selective Service board said she did not know whether all graduate students would eventually receive reclassification notices, but noted that the Selective Service is "examining all their backgrounds" and in most cases rescinding the normal 2-S deferment.

The Westwood draft board, however, said the change would not be limited to graduates.

"We are having a somewhat difficult time filling the quota from this area," said a spokesman from draft board 95. "It's the same all over California but particularly here. We just can't afford to continue giving these student deferments."

"They can never fill their quota," said Roger Olesky, University freshman who was told last week his student deferment was being revoked. "Almost all of the high school graduates in that area go on to college. That leaves the draft board with no one to draft if they continue to honor the 2-S deferment."

The Westwood draft board would give no such reassurances. Reviews of student deferments, said the board's spokesman, would continue to be "very strict."

However, she indicated, a significant increase in inductions of married men now being contemplated "may take some of the pressure-off the students."

Cal Attack Changed For Penn St. Lions

By DAVE BUSH
Sports Writer

Trying to regroup its battered forces with a line-up juggled almost beyond recognition, California will make a second bid for its fourth win of the season tomorrow against the lumbering Nittany Lions of Penn State at Memorial Stadium with a 1:30 p.m. kick-off set.

As a preliminary Jim Cullom's frosh take on the powerful Stanford Papposes at 10 a.m.

Cal coach Ray Willsey, shuttling players around with the assurance of a horse trader, has switched Tom Relles back to his old deep running back position from the slot where has been playing this year. Relles will line-up alongside fullback Frank Lynch, who is the only backfielder retaining his starting position.

Lloyd Reist, hitherto a deep running back, will occupy Relles's slotback post.

Ted Parks, who alternated with Reist at running back the first six games, has been moved to defense to shore up the secondary, hampered by the continued absence of injured Greg Palamoun-tain.

Bill Krum has taken over the starting split end spot from John Beasley, who has been shifter to tight end behind Mike Gridley.

Five Year First

Prof Ends Honor System

Alex Sherriffs, professor of psychology and a strong advocate of the honor system, will give a mid-term for the first time in five years today without using the honor system.

Sherriffs has used the honor system in his Psychology 33 class for two semesters. Then, after last semester's final he said, "People began coming in to me saying, 'don't do that again.'"

The system had broken down during the final, reported students, and there was a sense of "get what you can get."

Sherriffs indicated that possibly the "general trend toward civil disobedience" at the University at the time could be connected with the sudden lack of respect for the honor code.

The adoption of an honor system would eliminate proctoring during exams; students would be left alone to take tests without a faculty member present to keep them from cheating.

Sherriffs was part of a committee which investigated the possible use of the honor system at the University and made its report last fall.

The conclusions of the report were derived from results of surveys in 22 undergraduate courses in 1963. The committee maintained an honor code would not stimulate potential cheaters, and might cause less cheating.

Among actions a student might undertake after seeing an offense would be:

- Speaking to the offender,

'Discount Store Might Cause a Budget Cut'

A five point recommendation on the discount store was made to the ASUC Senate by the Finance Committee at a meeting yesterday.

In light of a possible loss of income from a discount store, Fi-com recommended:

- A percentage cut "straight across" for all activities
- Selected cuts from different activities determined by normal budget procedure

• A poll of student opinion on the question of having a store and methods for making up the loss in revenue

• The University administrative budget would absorb the loss

• A raise in student fees. NSA representative Dan McIntosh in his report estimated from present figures a general cut for all activities would run 60 percent.

Spirited debate broke out over suggested activities cuts in McIntosh's report.

A motion was passed to retain the discounts that approximately 735 faculty, student store workers and other campus employees possess. This discount is currently 10 percent.

The ASUC operating budget is $465,000 of which $241,253 is spent for activities.

During McIntosh's report a member of the glee club stood up and defended his group from a proposed 50 percent cut in their budget. "A 50 percent cut for our budget will deal us a death blow," he said.

Bob Nakamura, representative-at-large and member of Fi-com, said a discount would benefit the whole student body.

Dave Maxwell in a report to the committee said the $147,000 deficit could be made up by charging fees on free activities such as the music rooms, use of the student union facilities or by increasing charges on bowling, pool, etc.

Maxwell said this move "would be robbing Peter to pay Paul".

Candidacy Meeting

All candidates for the ASUC Constitutional Convention are required to attend a candidates meeting at 4 p.m. today in 11 Wheeler Hall.

Students who wish to file for candidacy must do so by 4 p.m. today in the Activities Office, 304 Eshleman Hall.

A candidate may send a representative to the meeting if he cannot attend, but a person may only represent one candidate. If a candidate does not attend or is not represented, he will be unable to run in the election.

MUSEUM PIECE

This cyclotron was built and operating by the fall of 1930 and reported at the Washington April Meeting (Phys. Rev. 37, 1707, 1931). The diameter of the chamber was about 5 inches. Placed between the 4-inch diameter poles of a magnet with a field of 12,700 gauss and 2,000 volts on its single dee, it produced 80,000 volt hydrogen molecule ions trapped and measured in a Faraday cage to which a measured and adequate decelerating voltage could be applied.

The do-it-yourself-with-sealing-wax days are gone from cyclotron technology forever. The tiny instrument invented by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence at Berkeley in 1930 has been superseded many times by increasingly larger and more powerful instruments of nuclear research.

Today the business of discovery is carried on by 3200 people at the Berkeley site of Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, overlooking the University of California campus and San Francisco Bay. And the challenge of innovation remains for engineers—in advanced accelerator design and in a dynamic unclassified research program.

EE's: Major electronics development programs at LRL deal with nuclear instrumentation, automated data handling and acquisition, radio frequency and high voltage power supply systems, fast-counting techniques and semiconductor device development.

Engineering graduates at all levels who want to learn more about LRL should contact the Placement Office for appointments. Campus interviews will be held on

Long Hair, Anarchy Discussed

By KERRY HARPER

Three men sat outside the cafeteria and talked and laughed about long hair, music, and anarchy. It was an excellent preview to their show at 8 p.m. tomorrow night in Harmon Gymnasium.

The three young men are Larry Hankin of San Francisco's Committee, and Marty Balin and Paul Kantner of Jefferson Airplane, a rock and roll group.

While they talked everyone listened. A young man came around the corner after eavesdropping for about ten minutes. He was interested in finding out who the group was that was discussing clothes and the English. But they weren't from England and so he left.

Off at another table a girl watched Hankin's one man show of a debate between two men whom he had seen today with a girl passed out at their feet.

"No one is for anything on this campus. They're all against something. There are the people against Vietnam and other against the people against war in Vietnam," Hankin said.

He found the several movements on campus, "very funny, more silly than funny, actually." Marty Balin laughed, "We ought to set up a table here. 'Join Nothing' it would say. Or even better, just 'Join'."

In their spare time Balin loves to read. "Joyce is good," he said.

But mostly they sit around and try to "think up answers to people's question."

For example, Balin said "We wear long hair to cover up our ears. A man can wear his hair as long as his ears show, but just let him cover up his ear."

With clothes, its the texture.

"We get them in the fag shops — they've really got the best clothes," said the quiet one of the group, Paul Kantner.

All these shirts, shorts, and tennis shoes like that over there, — they're sterile."

"I'm fabric."

And "clothes are a veritable festival of the sensations."

Dance Tonight In Pauley Room

A rock and roll dance will be held at 8:30 p.m. today in Pauley Ballroom. The Senior Class is sponsoring the event. The Workmen will be featured.

Speaker Arrested as Lewd

An impromptu rally began on the Sproul Hall steps yesterday afternoon when a Berkeley alumna, class of 1955, decided to express his opinions on the world situation and life in general.

Several members of the faculty and student body complained that his line of discussion was offensive, and the campus police arrested him on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace. He was taken to the Berkeley jail. A complaint will be filed today.

Program Notes From All Over

Well, sort of, anyway. Like Bunel's new film in the Masonic tomorrow night as part of the Film Festival. And Satyajit Ray's latest, Sunday night. Each is $1.

And Walt Disney's presenting Snow White at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Masonic. Same Price. . . Two Hitchcock thrillers tomorrow, 155 Dwinelle, are being Slate sponsored. . . The ASUC is offering the last of their D. W. Griffith series this Sunday. Female of the Species and The Idol Dancer, which was shot in the jungles of Florida. They will be shown in Pauley, at 8 p.m. . .

The Midnight Cinema, Saturday, at Shattuck and Haste, is offering Black Sunday by Mario Bava and an extra film, "the title of which cannot be announced, but which no one is likely to have seen, and which no one will be sorry to see." Hush hush . . .

For all you ballet fans, Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn will be in Berkeley Nov. 3 and 4 next week. On film, unfortunately, but none the less brilliant for that, at the Paramount in Oakland.

LIVE LIVE LIVE: Open Theater, presenting a fantastically funny, completely hysterical Beatle Reading, tonight at 8 and 10 p.m. And a special surprise movie. College Ave. at Ashby, is the place. Tomorrow night Malachi and the Jazz Mice perform there. Psychedelic guitar, light projections and things.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Domenico Scarlatti, who is 280 years old this month. There will be a celebration Sunday at The Quest at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Harpsichordist Laurette Goldberg will play works by he and his father, Alessandro. Tickets are $1 each at the ASUC Box Office. 1974 Shattuck is the place.

DRAMA, She Loves Me will be presented by the Comedia Repertory Company, Homer and High Streets, in Palo Alto. It ran for 302 performances in New York and should be fun. There are probably student discounts.

BEETHOVEN. The third in a series of all 32 Sonatas will be performed at SF State Monday night. Tickets are only $1.50.

FREE FREE FREE: Three one act plays, tonight in Wheeler. They are by T. S. Eliot, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and Alfred Jarry, who invented the 20th century way back in 1885.

Several years ago floodlights were erected on Haas Field at a cost of approximately $75,000. An anyone who has had the misfortune to play there at night will know, these lights are pretty grim.

When turned on for the first time, they were in fact more than adequate. However, the residents of the neighboring hill came storming down in protest, claiming their lives had been made unbearable by the bright lights.

As a result of the complaints, ex-Chancellor Strong ordered that hoods be placed over the lights to dim them. Well, dim is rather a euphemistic phrase. Visiting teams have threatened to bring miner's helmets and torches.

The most reasonable solution to the problem is to unhook the lights on the south end of the ground. The only possible complaints would come from the chickens housed on the facing north side.

In order to do this, the Chancellor's permission is required; unfortunately, because the Chancellor is a very busy man at the moment, he cannot be expected to make an immediate decision.

However, when the matter is brought to his attention, we hope he will consider it carefully, and take pity on the soccer Bears as they grope their way through yet another obscure game tonight.

New Bears Ready for Penn State

The final offensive change is Dan Berry at quarterback instead of Jim Hunt.

Penn State had its forces bolstered by the return of sophomore Roger Grimes, who has been injured since the Lions' loss to UCLA (24-22) in the second game of the year. Grimes is reputed to be one of the best halfbacks on the East Coast.

Fullback Dave McNaughton has been carrying the bulk of the Lion rushing game admirably in Grimes' absence. McNaughton is a 205-pound bruiser who had a 137 yards rushing against Syracuse two weeks ago and 97 in the Lions' 44-6 whipping of West Virginia last weekend.

Quarterback Jack White doesn't throw often, but when he does, he does it effectively. He has hit on 54 completions for 675 yards and four touchdowns in 116 flings.

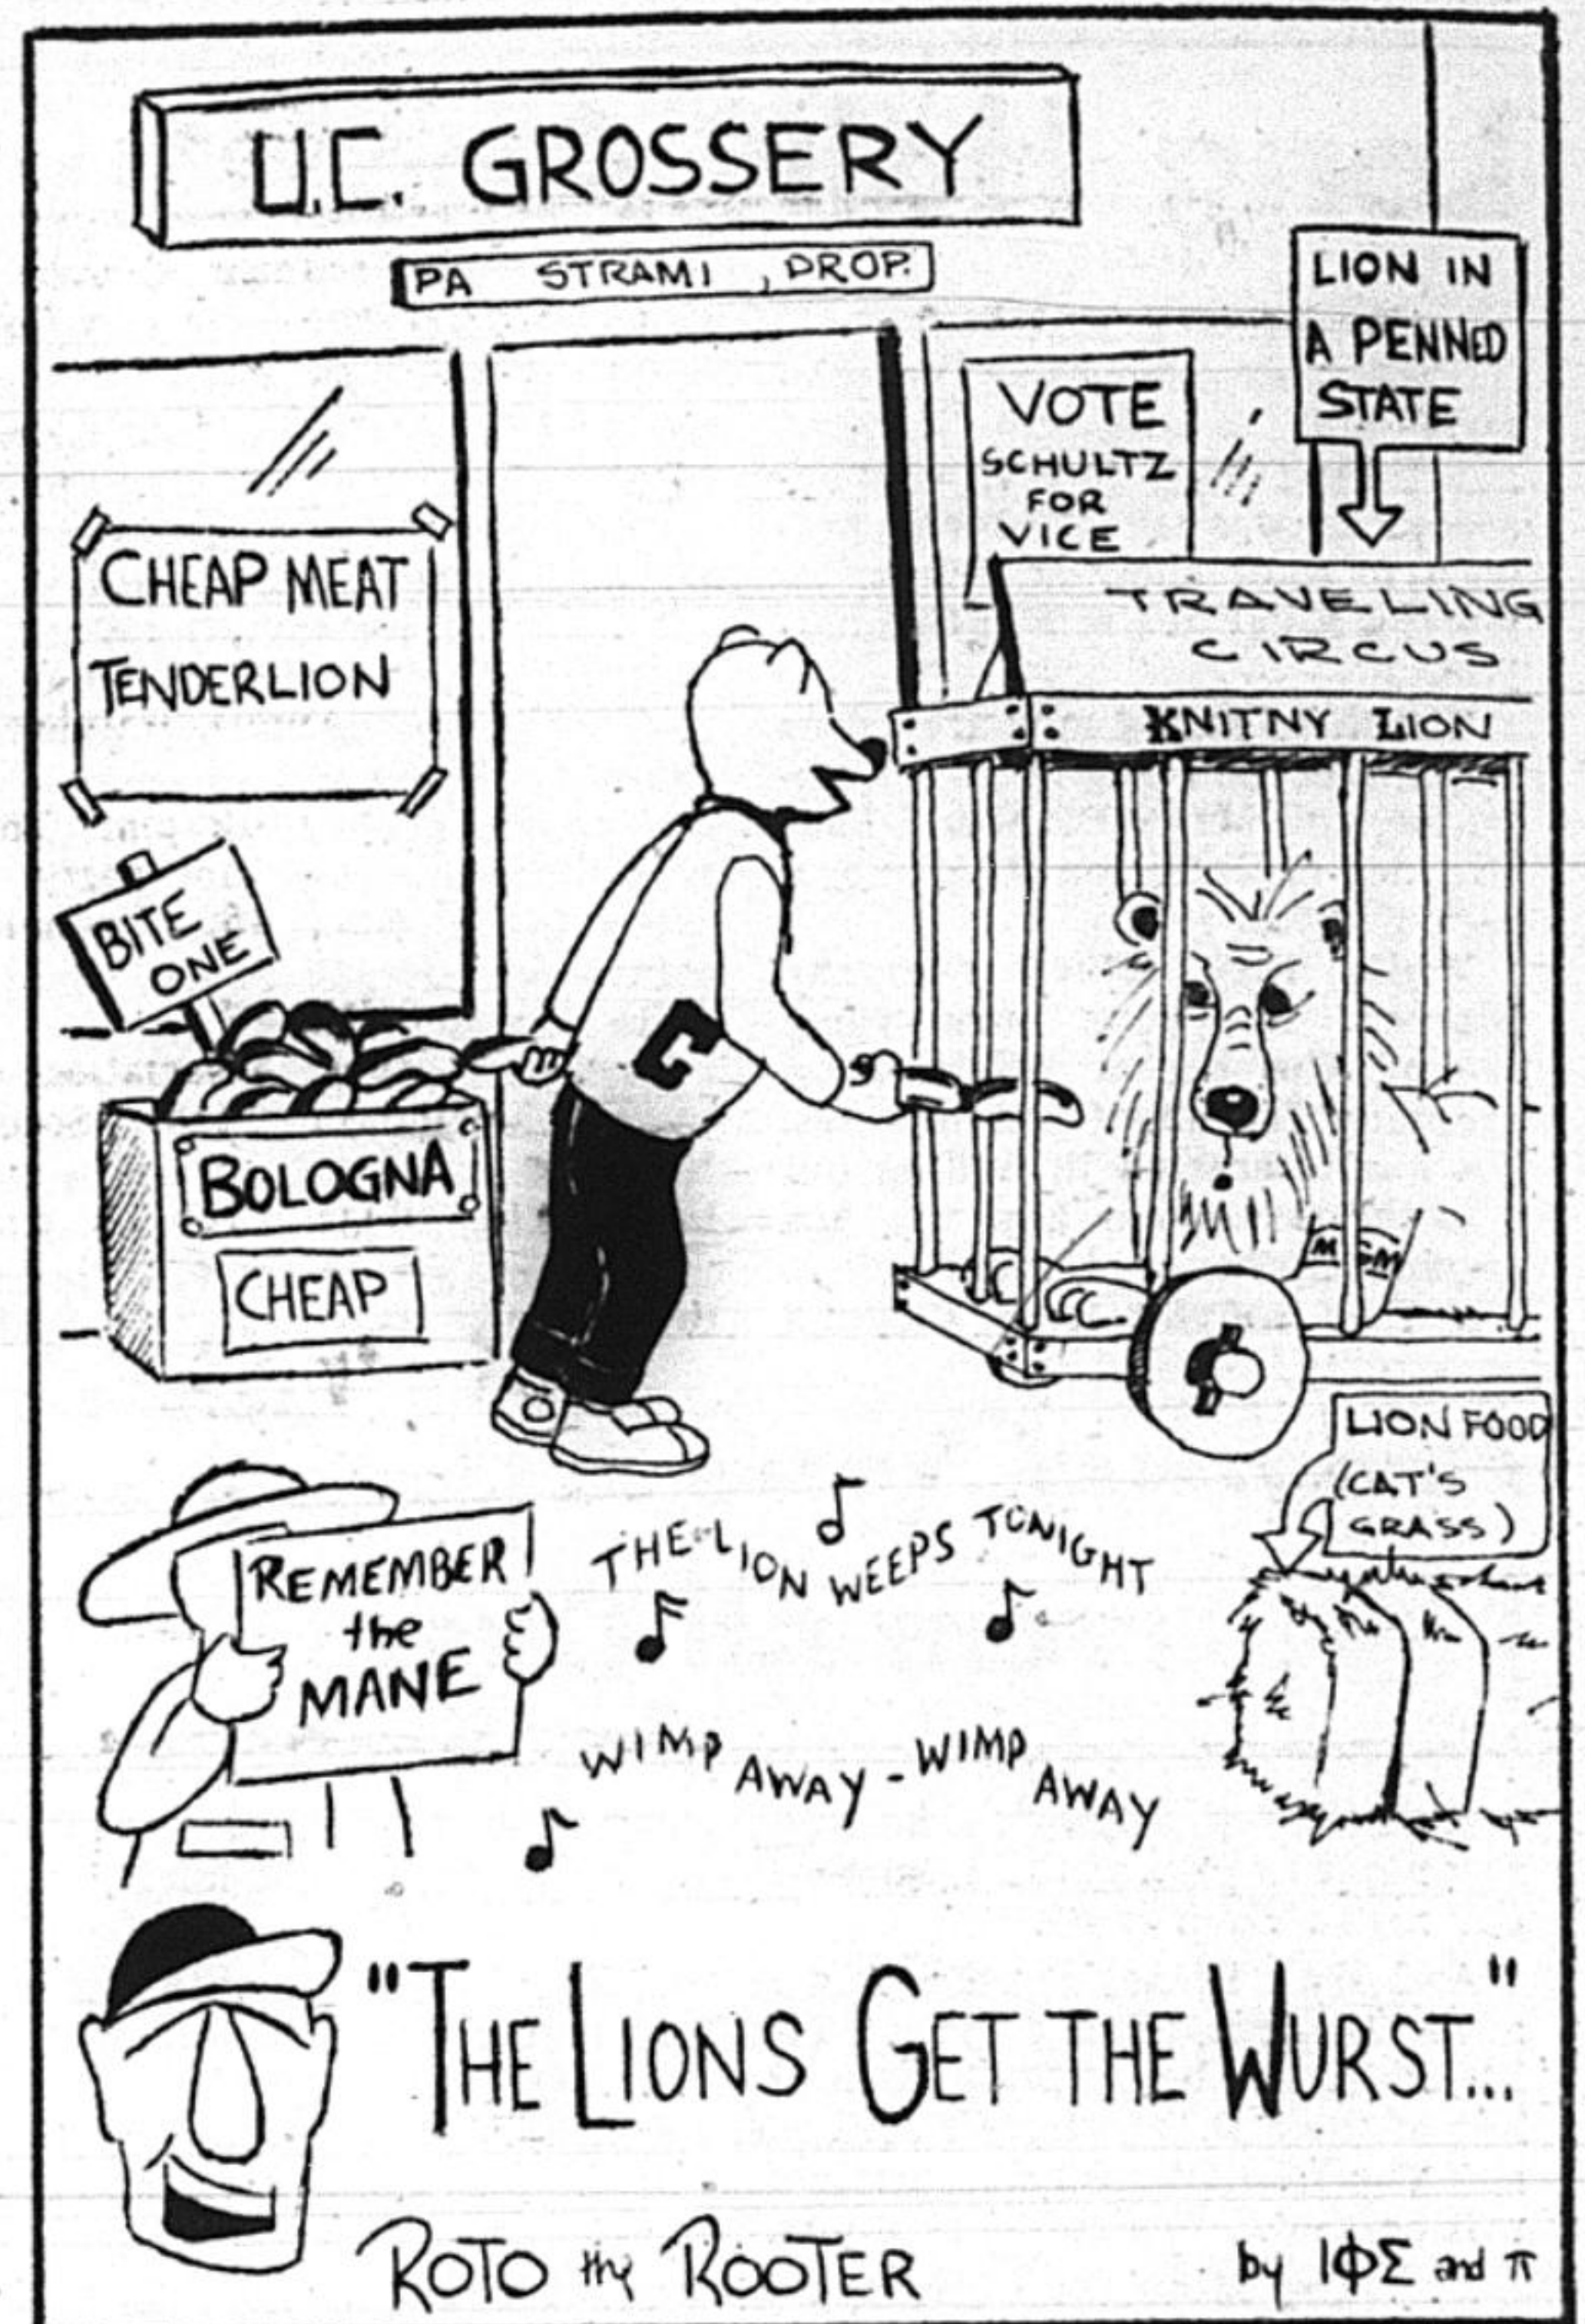

His favorite target is split end Jack Curry, another soph, who has nabbed 18 for 246 yards despite missing two and-a-half games this year.

Defensively Penn State is very big and rugged. Their line is bulwarked by 265-pound Dave Rowe and 235-pounder Mike McBeth.

Injurywise the Lions are, with the return of Grimes, in their best shape of the season, with all hands healthy.

Cal will still be missing, besides Palamountain, letterman tackle Roger Foster, who possibly could be ready for USC next week but is definitely out this week.

Tackle Dick Williams has been kept out of contact this week, but will be ready to go tomorrow, and is slated as a starter. Dan Sinclair has been hobbling and his duty may be limited strictly to place kicking. The two teams have met one common foe (UCLA) which has beaten both. However, the Lions, who have won two out of three since they met the Bruins, put up a much better fight against the Westwooders.

NIGHT GAME

Booters Host Chico State

Under the blinding floodlights of Haas Field, the Bears soccer squad will take on Chico State at 7:30 p.m. this evening.

The strongest Bear team so far this season will be led tonight by inside forward Scott Cauchois and All-American goalie Tim Tarpley.

Coach Bob DiGrazia is naturally cautious about predicting the outcome of the game, but he is reasonably optimistic about the new-style short-passing attack which has been developed over the last few days. "This should give us the opportunity to take more shots," he said yesterday.

The farmers of the Davis campus have forsaken their tractors and are scheduled to meet the J.V.'s at about 6 o'clock. This is the first time for several years that the Aggies have displayed their booting talents.

The J.V.'s should not have too much trouble in disposing of them

Journal Jinx Just Jest

By George Baker

USELESS FACT OF THE WEEK—Craig Morton has finally hit the big time in professional football, for he started and played the entire game for the Dallas Cowboys last week against the Green Bay Packers. He was on target hitting 10 of 20 passes, but the Packer defense put on a hard rush netting Craig a minus yard in passing.

It is truly phenomenal how Sports Illustrated is able to jinx so many people and teams year after year after year. Just last week they quoted Pappy Waldorf about how great the Cal defense is, and then came the UCLA game. But we weren't the only team to have a spell cast over them for USC, after having Mike Garrett plastered over the middle section of the magazine, were torn apart by Notre Dame.

Two weeks ago Townsend Clark of Army was tabbed as the NCAA lineman of the week and then the next week he was injured against Rutgers and will spend the rest of the season on crutches.

Going along with the general trend of things we should win Saturday since SI picked Penn State to prevail (Of course they chose UCLA to beat us so you never know).

Penn State brings with it a real example of the hex cast by SI. He is halfback Roger Grimes, a sophomore who Rip Engel, not given to high praise of many people, has called the best back at Penn State since Lenny Moore.

In preseason polls Grimes was tabbed by Sports Illustrated as the sophomore to watch in the East. He probably would have been if he had been able to play, but unfortunately he was injured in the opening game with Michigan State and hasn't played since.

Of course he will be ready by the time Saturday rolls around, and as one of their better runners he bears considerable attention. Number 36, he runs out of the deep halfback spot in the I-formation and with his size, 6-0, 210 pounds he can ramble like a fullback.

Received from the Daily Trojan, campus newspaper of USC, was the following extract from a column:

"The Trojans have a bye this week. Next week they also have a bye. They play Cal.

We'll use this week to re-orientate ourselves, said McKay.

Cal will use this week to learn about the game called football. Last week, apparently, a few Berkeley students wandered out on the field at the Coliseum and when they left UCLA's football team had won 56-3."

Believe it or not Big Game will be up on us in short order and with that goes all the fun and festivity of the week that precedes the season ending encounter with the boy from the farm.

Probably the top attraction will be the appearance of Ella Fitzgerald and the Ramsey Lewis Trio on Saturday night, November 13. Tickets are due to go on sale soon, and this is one event that you don't want to miss.

Viet Protest Demonstrators 'Only a Small Hard Core'

By JERRY BUCK

(AP) — Vietnam protest movements on U.S. college campuses involve only a small hard core of dissenters, top officials of 85 colleges and universities told The Associated Press yesterday.

Put into perspective, members of the protest organizations — anti-Vietnam and anti-draft — represent only a minute fraction of the total number of students on each campus.

In some cases the number is fewer than 25 among enrollments of 12,000 and more.

An Associated Press poll of college officials from coast to coast showed a large number of schools having no organized dissent at all to U.S. policy in Vietnam.

And the anti-draft movement involves even fewer students.

"The rank and file of American college students are pretty conservative," said Hurst R. Anderson, president of American University in Washington, D.C.

"Some like to shock their conservative parents by going home and saying things like 'I've turned Socialist,'" he said. "They are sincere about it, but maybe the sincerity is pretty thin."

ALL ARE CORDIALLY INVITED

Taste and See

A chemical formula or a problem in physics can only be conclusively proved by means of experiment. Likewise, the claims of Christianity can only be proved to the individual through experience. In effect, Christianity says that a personal God exists and that He longs to make Himself known to you in the Person of His Son, Jesus Christ. If you will honestly give Him a chance, Christ will enable you to experience His reality, His life-giving power, and will give you eternal life.

"But God commends his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8)

"... believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." (Acts 16:31)

"But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name." (John 1:12)

If the claims of Christianity are true, if, in fact, God does exist and Christ is the only way that we can have a personal relationship with Him, is this not the most supremely important matter in life? Moreover, in view of the testimony of untold millions that Christ has transformed their lives, don't you think that you owe it to yourself to make an honest investigation of the claims of the Bible? Why not read the Gospel of John today and as you read God's Word, pray sincerely for God to reveal Himself to you? You will find that faith which begins as an experiment will truly become an experience.

"O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him." (Psalm 34:8)

Furniture on Walls

Co-op Reflects Innovations

(Editor's note: The following is the second of a three part series on the Ridge project, a "controversial" co-ed co-op now being built.)

By KAREN SJOGREN

The furniture can hang on the walls when the Ridge project is completed in July.

The Ridge project, a $1.5 million co-op being constructed on Ridge Road, is an experiment in student living, an attempt to find out what students want rather than what they will merely tolerate.

The room arrangements and furnishings are one of the most unique aspects of the project. Experimentation on the furniture was done as part of a study on student housing problems financed by a grant from the Ford Foundation Educational Facilities Laboratory.

The furniture is composed of factory-assembled wood parts put together in such a way that the parts can easily be replaced.

Both the furniture and personal possessions and decorations can be hung on redwood hanger strips bolted to the walls. This will save floor space and make cleaning easier.

All the furniture is completely mobile and can be arranged as the student wishes. In addition, the student can use his own furniture, carpeting, and wall decorations.

Versatility has also been stressed in the dining room, which is designed for meetings, study, discussion and social events as well as eating. A roofed, open porch will extend from the south end of the dining room, where students can eat meals if they desire.

Another factor in the designing has been the consideration that the house will be largely managed and maintained by students; most of the house systems are designed so they can be maintained as well as operated easily.

Regulations as well as desired effects have determined the layout of the project. The small size of the property necessitated placing several different types of use on top of each other, each level having to meet different types of fire, ventilation and health regulations.

The increased size of the warehouse and central kitchen (which will serve all nine co-ops) will enable the USCA to buy fruits and vegetables in season and provide greater variety in the meals.

The co-op will also contain a house kitchen with a snack area set aside with coffee urns, breads, and jams.

The building is being constructed by Williams & Burrows, who are also currently building the new chemistry building.

Great Potential

In the proposed Rules Committee, the University has about the best possible plan for determining permanent student conduct rules.

Graduates and undergraduates are represented; the faculty and the administration's experience will be utilized.

The committee is planned to operate under a realistic appraisal of student desires and motives. Students are students. They want time to devote to studies, to social lives, and extracurricular activities.

Therefore, a representative committee is the only fair way to formulate regulations.

Two criticisms of this structure for determining the rules are possible. First, because of the limited number of students on the committee, the range of student opinion represented may be too limited.

Second, to give the students some control over the final product, the rules—in whole or in parts—should be put to a student body vote.

We see no reason why the administration would be adverse to either suggestion.

No matter what the committee decides, the Chancellor is not bound to follow its decision. Under President Clark Kerr's University-wide rules on student conduct which were approved last summer by the Board of Regents, Chancellor Roger Heyns cannot delegate the final decision-making power.

This does not prevent him from following the committee's recommendations, however. We predict he will follow any on the committee's suggestions which are compatible with the University-wide regulations.

The Committee's potential for fairness is great—but we will have to wait and see who is on it, how it operates, and how its rules are accepted.

Graduate Interest

Today is the last day for students to file as candidates for delegates to the ASUC Constitutional Convention. So far, undergraduates have displayed a great interest in the convention.

Graduates, on the other hand, have shown little interest in the new ASUC. Only a very small number have filed their candidacy.

We would urge any interested graduates to file as candidates. If the 23 graduate positions remain unfilled, we will have proof that graduates have no interest in joining the ASUC.

Interested persons may file in the Elections Council Office, third floor, Eshleman Hall.

Letters to the Ice Box

Inaccuracies

To the Icebox: The article about my talk on grading in yesterday's Daily Californian is poetically true to what I said, but contains errors of fact and of emphasis in nearly every paragraph.

1. I am not advocating the abolition of finals and midterms. Such examinations, in and of themselves, need not be bad. Examinations can be destructive to the teaching situation when they are written and graded by the same man who taught the course.

2. Accurate figures on attrition rates in graduate school are very hard to come by. I did not say what the national average attrition rate is—estimates for state universities have run as high as 95% drop outs before reaching the M.A.

3. Santa Cruz, not Irvine, has adopted a pass-fail system for all courses. Irvine, not Santa Cruz, offers the student the option of electing courses outside the major and related fields for pass-fail grading.

4. Chicago, not Michigan, was the great experimenter in the area of comprehensive examinations.

5. The study following the grading patterns of six professors was not done at Stanford, but a small college in the East.

6. The last sentence which I am quoted as having said was spoken by one of the spectators.

7. Etc. I understand that your reporter tried to phone me the night the story was being written in order to clarify certain matters and that, regrettably, he was unable to reach me. I also understand that the article was edited, which may account for some of the incoherence in a few essential points.

—Stuart Miller Assistant Professor, English and Comparative Literature

Misconception

To the Icebox: As marchers in the International Days of Protest, we would like to reply to the following communication received from North Vietnamese youth groups:

... "Your noble internalist spirit has greatly encouraged us in our work or study, and our fight to annihilate the U.S. aggressors. It has also inspired the patriotic fighter in South Vietnam to wipe out more enemy forces because they have seen that they are not fighting alone but have brothers and friends all over the five continents."

Your letter to us expresses a basic misconception of our purpose. As participants in the protest marches of Oct. 15 and 16, our concern is the stopping of the Vietnamese War. We oppose any faction or group which is in favor of either escalation or continuation of the conflict.

The Eyrle

The Negro Revolution

By THEODORE JACQUENEY and DAVE LEE

Last week "Newsweek" published its latest Louis Harris poll on racial attitudes. In 1963 the Harris poll revealed that 51 percent of American whites—46 percent in the North—did not want to live next door to a Negro family.

Where do all these people with the "good" attitudes disappear to after the pollster goes home to write up his report?

Civil rights legislation to the contrary, the Negro Revolution is far from over. Any brave hoodlum in the South can still take along three friends to gun down a lone, white, female, civil rights worker and get off scot free—even if his victim is a mother of five.

John Kennedy used Harris as his pollster and Kennedy won, so Harris' polls carry some credibility, but maybe this time someone jammed his IBM machine.

Did "Newsweek" skip California? Last year nearly three out of four white Californians voted for a constitutional amendment endorsing racial discrimination in housing. Maybe "Newsweek" also skipped Seattle and Detroit, where similar plebiscites produced similar results.

In 1963 at least two out of three white people in "liberal" Berkeley voted for repeal of a fair housing law passed by the Berkeley City Council.

The Left claims that the "Establishment" promotes racism and discrimination but the "Establishments" in American government and American unions often have to fight against American public opinion to pass civil rights programs.

The racial attitudes of white Americans and the tragedy of Watts are both confirmation that the Negro Revolution has barely begun.

Everybody was "shocked" by Watts, and the year before they were "shocked" by Harlem. The "Newsweek" article emphasized attitudes on housing. Why aren't people outraged that ghetto conditions permit slumlords to charge exorbitant rents for rotten housing?

The extreme Left and the Black Nationalists, revelling in the desperation of the ghetto, seek to manipulate people's frustrations and anger. This is a betrayal of the Negro Revolution.

The Negro Revolution has been one of the things which makes this country worth living in. But, considering the callousness of most whites and the hostility of many Negroes, is it any wonder that the dispossessed are disenchanting; that there is neither trust nor hope but sometimes only hate.

be found in peace. It is your responsibility as much as it is ours to seek an immediate end to this war.

Fred Hollander, Sr. Psychology Sharon Stern, Sr. Sociology your name to this list please come

P.S. We would like to have as many people as possible to sign this letter and inform the North Vietnamese youth groups of our position. If you would like to add and 13 others to the V.D.C. table where a petition will be posted.

Loyal Angelino

To the Icebox: Just cool it Becker!

As a loyal Angelino, I resent your one-sided analysis of my home which could be truly named "a city of angels."—although I can't give a character reference for the angels. Let's take a little peek at the Frisco culture. Let me see now, don't they call San Francisco the "Narcotic Capitol of the United States?"

And man let me tell something—When you lose your love high on a hill in San Francisco, they're just whistling Dixie. The fog is so thick you had better never let go of your date's hand because you might come walking out of Hotel Fremont with the bartender.

The local beaches are real nice too. Off hand I can't remember the breed of sharks you grow out here. And what's this I hear? The smog level in the City of Oakland reached eye-irritation level on Friday afternoon. I guess every house has its skeleton in the closet. Too bad someone else had to open the closet door.

—Roger Friedland Freshman, Political Science

Hells Angels

To the Icebox:

I could only shudder at hearing that the "Republicans for Conservative Action" rallied to the legal defense of the Hells Angels' brutal attack upon Saturday's Vietnam Day march. Perhaps this gesture—by these conservatives was merely a juvenile reaction to the political Left—an impulsive move to "give them a taste of their own medicine."

Quite to the contrary, a marcher affirmed (speaking now only of the propriety of political tactics) his belief in a moral standard, a limit to the domain of political tactics, which transcends the Oakland regulation—namely, the standard that freedom of political expression is inviolable.

Now, let's look at the "medicine" being administered by the Hell's Angels—behind which these conservatives were so quick to rally. What moral justification can they make for flaunting the legal prohibition against bodily assault? I think none. And what is alarming in this, is the implicit (and I hope unknowing) endorsement of criminality in the political arena.

Goals toward which the political process is directed, crumble before the cynical nihilism of the political means. From this, the totalitarian regimes of Caesar, Hitler, and Stalin, have been but a short step.

Forgive them, for they know not what they do. —Mike Adams Senior, Economics, Pre-law

No matter how much your child may want a Creative Plaything—we won't let him take it out of the store.

Our new Catalog Shop is just for browsing. If you like what you see, we'll order it for you. And we think you will like what you see. Because Creative Playthings are more than just toys.

Educators developed them to help a child get the most out of his early years. Particularly his first eight years, when he achieves most of the intelligence he'll have by age 17.

That's why over 40,000 schools and countless numbers of parents specify Creative Playthings for their children.

Visit our new shop. Bring the kids. Browse. Then order directly from the factory. The way schools do.

You'll find the Creative Playthings Catalog Shop is a wonderful idea. Almost as good as the idea for Creative Playthings themselves.

By LILY CHANG

A symphony of forms and textures describes the Roger Minick photographic display at the Student Union.

The exhibit of some 34 black and white photographs is an experiment in using photography and its subtle techniques as an aesthetic medium of expression.

Minick's subjects include faces, the female form, children, scenery and commonplace objects photographed from unusual angles.

His photographs of the female body in positions of repose give an almost sculptural value of form.

In one nude reclining against the ivy, a sense of the body lightly floating through the air is given. Graceful motion is conveyed.

In another nude, the flowing lines of the human form are sharply contrasted to the rough and symmetrical lines of rocks on which the nude is resting.

A touch of humor comes from a photograph depicting an elegantly dressed woman with crossed-eyes. Near this particular picture, there is another showing an elderly couple calmly sitting on the beach, ignoring each other.

A certain ironic note is cast by a picture depicting an armless man beside a foot dangling from a fence.

Play on light effects is found in several pictures, especially one of metallic clusters. The sharp contrast and the relationship of the light to the form of the objects are very distinctly brought out.

As an experiment in forms and textures, the exhibit is indeed a success. More of such experiments adapting art techniques should be tried.

(Interested? See our man on campus. He's got a career for you.)

John Waggoner B.S. in Industrial Engineering, U. of C. at Berkeley.

John's first assignment was to take over the management of an Information Operator office and its 98 employees. Using his initiative, John saw possibilities for improving operations by rearranging certain equipment and centralizing supervisory personnel. As a result, his office's efficiency greatly increased.

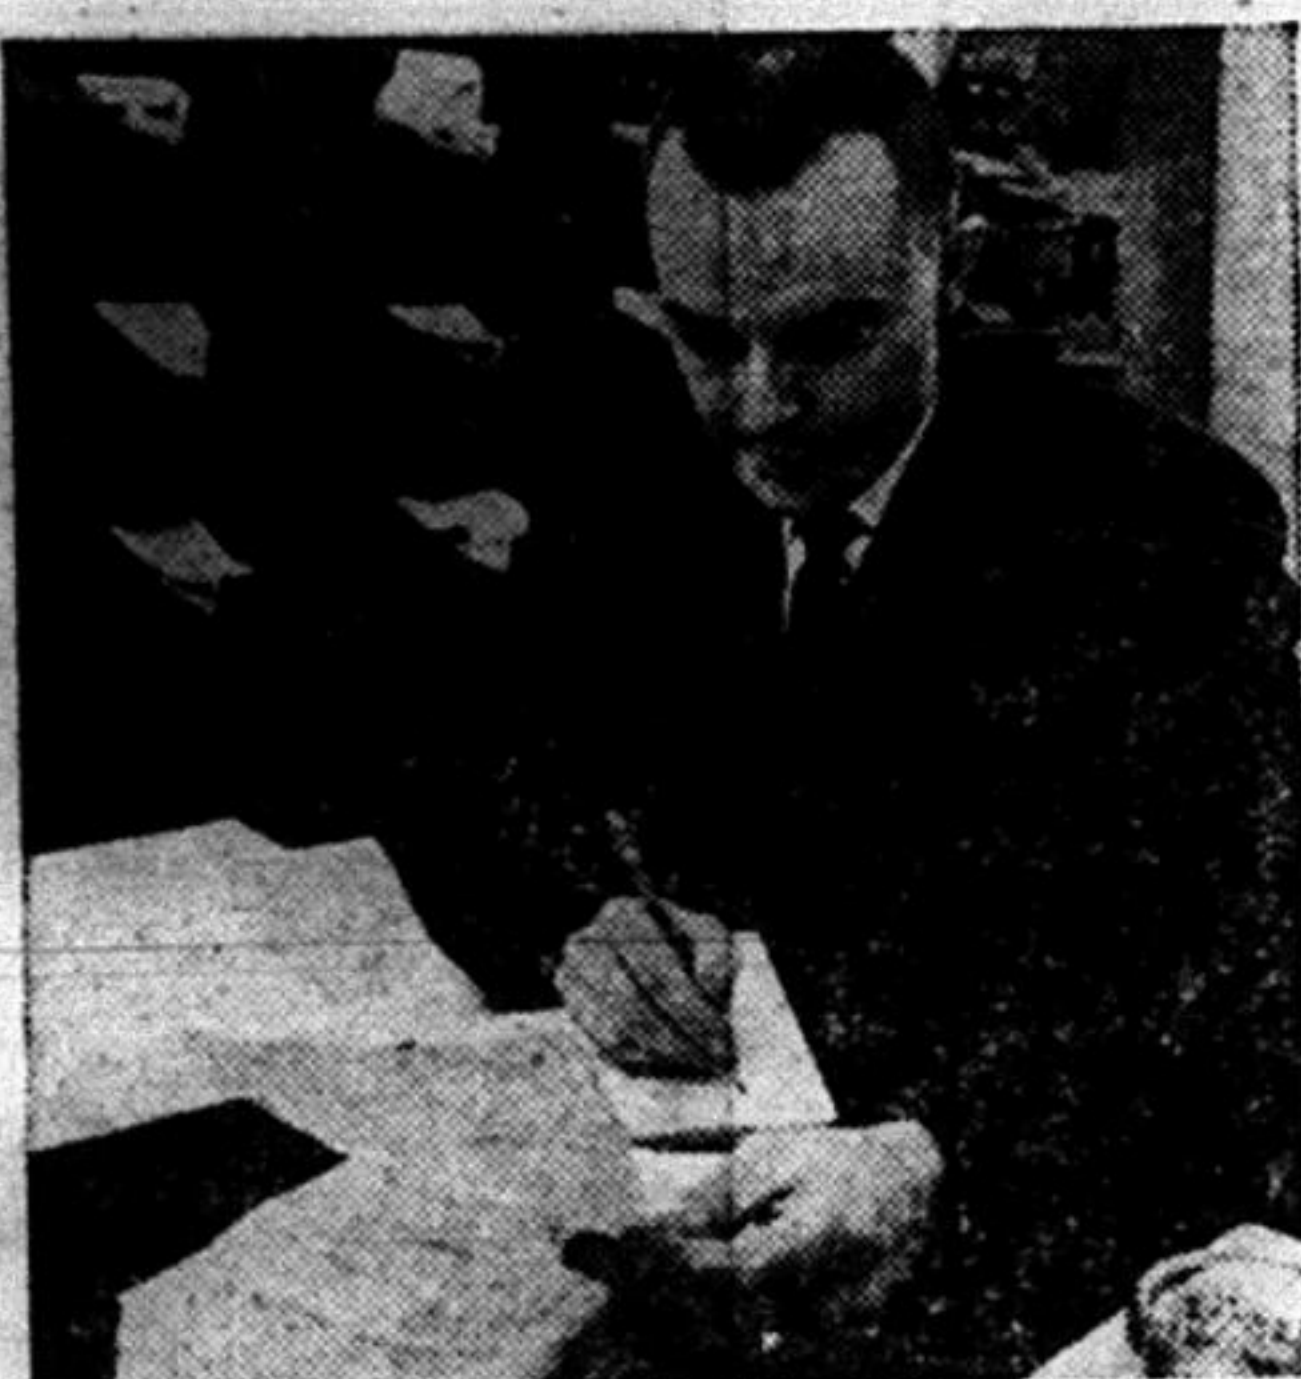

Bob Goldsmith B.S. in Electrical Engineering, California State Polytechnic.

Bob has a nine-man plant service crew all his own. Together with his men, he's responsible for seeing that over 2,000 complex customer accounts always have smooth and uninterrupted service. He and his crew are also responsible for the maintenance of vital defense communications systems at two military bases.

Terry Westbrook B.S. in Electrical Engineering, Stanford.

After only a few months with the company, Terry was made Traffic Operating Manager of the Marysville Long Distance and Information office. On the job he supervises 120 employees who handle over 18,000 calls a day. In his position as manager, Terry is also responsible for the quality of service, labor relations and administrative activities connected with an annual payroll of more than $425,000.

Lloyd Thorsen B.A. in Philosophy, College of the Pacific.

Lloyd was assigned a particularly knotty problem. How could the procedure for disconnecting telephones be improved? Lloyd made a study on his own and came up with a set of recommendations. They were accepted and put into effect. Performance indexes showed a marked improvement, customers received better service and Lloyd was subsequently promoted.

Daily Cal Want Ads

This newspaper fully supports University policy on housing. Therefore, classified advertising relating to housing is only available to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry. Individuals with a valid complaint concerning housing discrimination are asked to report the matter to 204 Eshleman Hall.

The Daily Californian screens all classified ads. However, neither the newspaper nor the ASUC can be held responsible for misleading ads inserted. If there are any legitimate complaints regarding ads, these will be withdrawn without further notice.

Honor System Ended in Psych Prof's Class

 terested in using the honor system for their midterms. If a majority agreed, the honor system would be put into effect.

Sherriffs' belief in the honor system comes "with the prejudice of my own experience." An alumnus of Stanford, Sherriffs took tests under the honor system for nine years.

"This plan promoted a climate in which one would not possibly want to cheat," he said.

At Stanford the students worked to get the system accepted, and seniors came early to school each semester to relay to new students the demands and the benefits of the honor system. Sherriffs also cited Davis as a University campus where the honor system is effective. According to surveys, Davis has a lower degree of cheating than Berkeley.

One of the objections Sherriffs was given when he brought the idea of an honor system to University officials was that the University "was too big."

"But it's not a matter of size," said the psychology instructor. "God help our total society if it is."

Other questions arose about the honor code such as "whether you turn in someone whom you see cheating."

Sherriffs felt this was not the point of such a system; it should be analogous to society. The students themselves must establish certain values, he said; the idea for an honor system must come from the students.

Sherriffs ascribed the lack of impetus to instigate the honor system last fall in part to the numerous changes in administration at that time and the too hasty "indoctrination" of new students at Cal Prep.

"That was not the ideal time to give the honor system an opportunity to fail," he said.

Sherriffs indicated that as soon as the political turmoil settles down on campus he hopes he and the other faculty advocates of the honor system can keep working to install it in the University.

"It is nobody's fault that it failed," he said, but there should not be a necessary conflict between the turmoil at the University and the honor system.

Emphasizing that the idea of an honor code should come from the students, Sherriffs said he would not ask his students before today's midterm if they would like to employ the honor system.

"But if a student comes up and asks me if we can use it, and if a majority of students are in favor of it, we will use it," he said.

Sherriffs admitted he might be a "sentimental idealist," but he said it "feels good" when students have used the honor system and used it effectively.

"I hope the students ask for the honor system" in this midterm, he concluded.

ASUC Vice-Prexy Downs Slate's 'Sovereignty' Petition

ASUC Vice President Tim Lyons Wednesday night turned down a Slate-sponsored petition calling for a referendum to be placed on the Constitutional Convention ballot in November.

Lyons was acting for ASUC President Jerry Goldstein who is attending an out of state conference.

Passage of the petition, Slate says, would give sovereignty to students and would discontinue positions now held by non-student Senate representatives from the Chancellor's office, faculty, and alumni, and eliminates non-student members of the finance committee.

A motion was defeated at the Oct. 19 Senate meeting which said the Constitutional Convention must follow the principles that "government shall be of students, by students, and for students" and "only students shall be members and only members shall have a vote in the affairs of student government."

After the defeat, Slate circulated the petition and attained the necessary number of student signatures to place the question on the ballot.

However, Lyons refused because of the constitutional provision that the question shall be placed "on the next general Association election . . . or at a special election called for that purpose."

Lyons said placing this issue on the ballot could be unconstitutional since the special election was not called for that specific purpose.

He pointed out, however, that his decision could be appealed to the Judicial Committee. Its ruling would settle the question of constitutionality while there is still time to put the question on the ballot, he said.

Marston Schultz, Slate ASUC Senate Vice-Chairman, said, "I'm sure we won't have any problem with J-Com since Tim just read the Constitution literally and it didn't occur to him that you can have two special elections at one time."

Slate member and convention candidate Hobin Room said adoption of the provisions of the Slate petition are "a necessary prerequisite from which the convention would start."
