

Where the Boys Are

By SAREDA LUDWIG

I sat in front of Sproul Hall reading a sentence in my history text for the tenth time.

The Campanile chimed noon. I looked up. A pair of dogs cavorted by Ludwig's fountain. A girl in a skirt, sweater and loafers looked dreamily up at her madras-clad athlete.

A couple—one with long hair, one with shorter hair, both in levis, army surplus jackets, and boots—stopped to exchange hellos with a similar pair.

"Time for action!" I thought. Straightening my hair, re-arranging the wrinkles in my nylons, and arming myself with a goodly number of feminine ploys, I resolved to find me a man.

First stop: Wheeler Oak, that notorious between-classes hangout of the men from fraternity row.

There they were, sitting and watching, the congregation growing larger by the minute.

"This is sure to pay off," I said to myself as I seductively dropped a volume of Shakespeare, the life story of Andrew Jackson, and an anthro term paper.

No response. I dropped a Kleenex—a pink one.

Still nothing. I caught a snatch of conversation about the pledge sneak two years ago.

"Bitchin'."

Maybe they just weren't my type. I picked up my belongings and started with resolution toward LSB. Perhaps a scientist.

I walked confidently into the first open room. It smelled of formaldehyde and fish. A young man was studiously bent over a shark whose innards were arranged neatly on the table.

"What's that?" I queried seductively.

"A dead shark. A Zoo assignment. Part of my project," came the reply. He hadn't bothered to look up from the fish's gaping gut.

Director to Speak At Groundbreaking

French film director Jean Renoir and Chancellor Roger Heyns will speak at a University meeting today to highlight the groundbreaking for the new auditorium-theater.

The meeting will be held at 11:10 a.m. in the Lower Student Union Plaza. All 11 a.m. classes are officially cancelled.

Renoir will speak on "The Place of the Arts in Society."

The meeting will be part of a program marking the start of construction of the $8,800,000, 2000-seat auditorium and theater.

The building is expected to be completed in 1968, the University's centennial year.

Joseph Kerman, University professor of music, will speak on "The Role of the Arts in the University."

The Department of Music's Brass Ensemble, conducted by Sherwood Dudley, will provide music for the meeting.

Renoir has directed more than 30 films, starting in 1947 with "Grand Illusion." He has also directed "Rules of the Game," "The Golden Coach," and "The River."

He inherited his artistic interest from his father, the great turn-of-the-century painter, Pierre-Auguste Renoir.

Three years ago, Renoir wrote a book about his father, "My Father, Renoir."

Among his numerous awards he has been given the Prix International of the Venice Film Festival in 1937, 1946, and 1951.

Renoir was Regents Professor of English and Dramatic Art here in 1960. His son, Alain, is an associate professor of English and of Comparative Literature here.

Other events of the day will include a picture taking session of models of the new structure. The architects and others connected with the project will be in attendance. This will be held at 10:50 a.m. in the north main lobby of the Student Union.

The theater will be two buildings—one, a 2000-seat auditorium to provide a good indoor facility for plays, concerts, ballet, opera, and University meetings.

The other part of the complex will be a small multiform theater seating 500 to 600 people.

DC Censure Move Fails; ASUC Senate Deadlocks

The Daily Californian was strongly criticized last night by many members of the ASUC Senate who objected to an article yesterday on homosexuality.

The criticism came during debate on a motion by Fraternity Representative Page Van Loben Sels.

The motion said the article, entitled "Ex-Student Recalls Campus 'Gay Life,'" was "in such very poor taste" that any possible benefit the article could have produced was negated.

The motion failed by an 8-8 tie vote. There were three abstentions.

The motion did not condemn the paper directly, but would have communicated the Senate's objection to the Daily Californian Publishers Board, which has jurisdiction over the Daily Cal.

Van Loben Sels said he did not intend the Senate to dictate editorial policy, but said he considered the article "irresponsible and disgusting, and not responsible journalism in any way."

He pointed out the paper goes to many readers who are not students and "you just don't print filth like this."

Rep-at-Large Bruce Henstell of Slate said he did not think it proper to "launch a diatribe against the student newspaper."

He said the matter of taste was for the individual to decide.

Daily Californian Editor Peggy Krause announced an apology to the fraternities was being issued today because the article appeared to slur them. The slur was not intentional, she said. The apology was decided on before the Daily Californian knew the matter was being discussed by the Senate, she added.

Several senators said they supported the motion because students had told them during the day the story offended them.

When asked whether the story offended her, Women's Coop Rep Andrea Snow of Slate replied, "No, I'm from Hollywood."

Representative-at-Large Ron Jones said he supported the motion because he thought the material was poorly handled and "a couple of quotes were in very bad taste."

He said he also objected to some of the language being used even though it was printed in quotes.

Rep-at-Large Brian Turner of Slate, said he opposed the measure because he did not think it proper to attempt to exercise any control over the paper by criticizing the kind of stories it printed.

When pressed by Turner, President Jerry Goldstein admitted the Senate could exercise control over editorial policy by withholding funds from the paper.

National Student Association Coordinator Dan MacIntosh said he thought the Senate had a right to criticize the paper since it was paid for involuntarily by students and the Senate represented the students.

"In this case, I think enough students were offended by the story to warrant Senate action," he said. "I felt offended myself."

Quarter Plan Change Slowed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A temporary writ blocking conversion of California state colleges to the quarter system was granted yesterday at the request of the college council of the California Federation of Teachers.

The writ does not affect the University.

Judge Raymond J. Arata of the San Francisco Superior Court granted the writ. He set next Jan. 12 as the date the State College Trustees must show cause why they shouldn't be permanently enjoined from going ahead with the shift from the semester to the quarter system.

The trustees were to meet in San Francisco today and were expected to discuss the writ at the regular monthly meeting.

The petition was filed in Superior Court by John Sperling, president of the council and an assistant professor of humanities at San Jose State College.

USF Tickets Still Available

A limited supply of tickets for Friday night's California-USF basketball game in San Francisco are available in the Athletic Ticket Department for 50 cents. Athletic Card holders will be admitted free at the door for tonight's Alumni game but must secure a ticket at the Athletic Department for the St. Mary's game on Saturday night.

Tickets for this game are free.

Apology

The Daily Californian regrets any unfortunate impressions which may have arisen from yesterday's story headlined "Ex-Student Recalls Campus 'Gay Life.'" There was no intention to slur the fraternity system or the "sports world" at the University, through quotations used in the article.

Xmas Cards from Vietnam?

"I'll bring the New Year and Christmas in with a bang, how about you?"

This and several like messages addressed to the "student body" have been received by the ASUC. According to the messages, they came from soldiers in Vietnam.

Even though the envelopes containing the messages, most of them cards, are postmarked "U.S. Navy," it is unconfirmed that they are from Vietnam.

Most of the cards have 4th

Marines (-) (Rein) 3rd Marine Division, FMF printed on the front.

An insignia, with an eagle atop a globe, showing the western hemisphere, cradled by an anchor, is also printed there.

"While Santa's bringing you toys, I will be taking bombs to Hanoi" wrote another bearer of Christmas tidings.

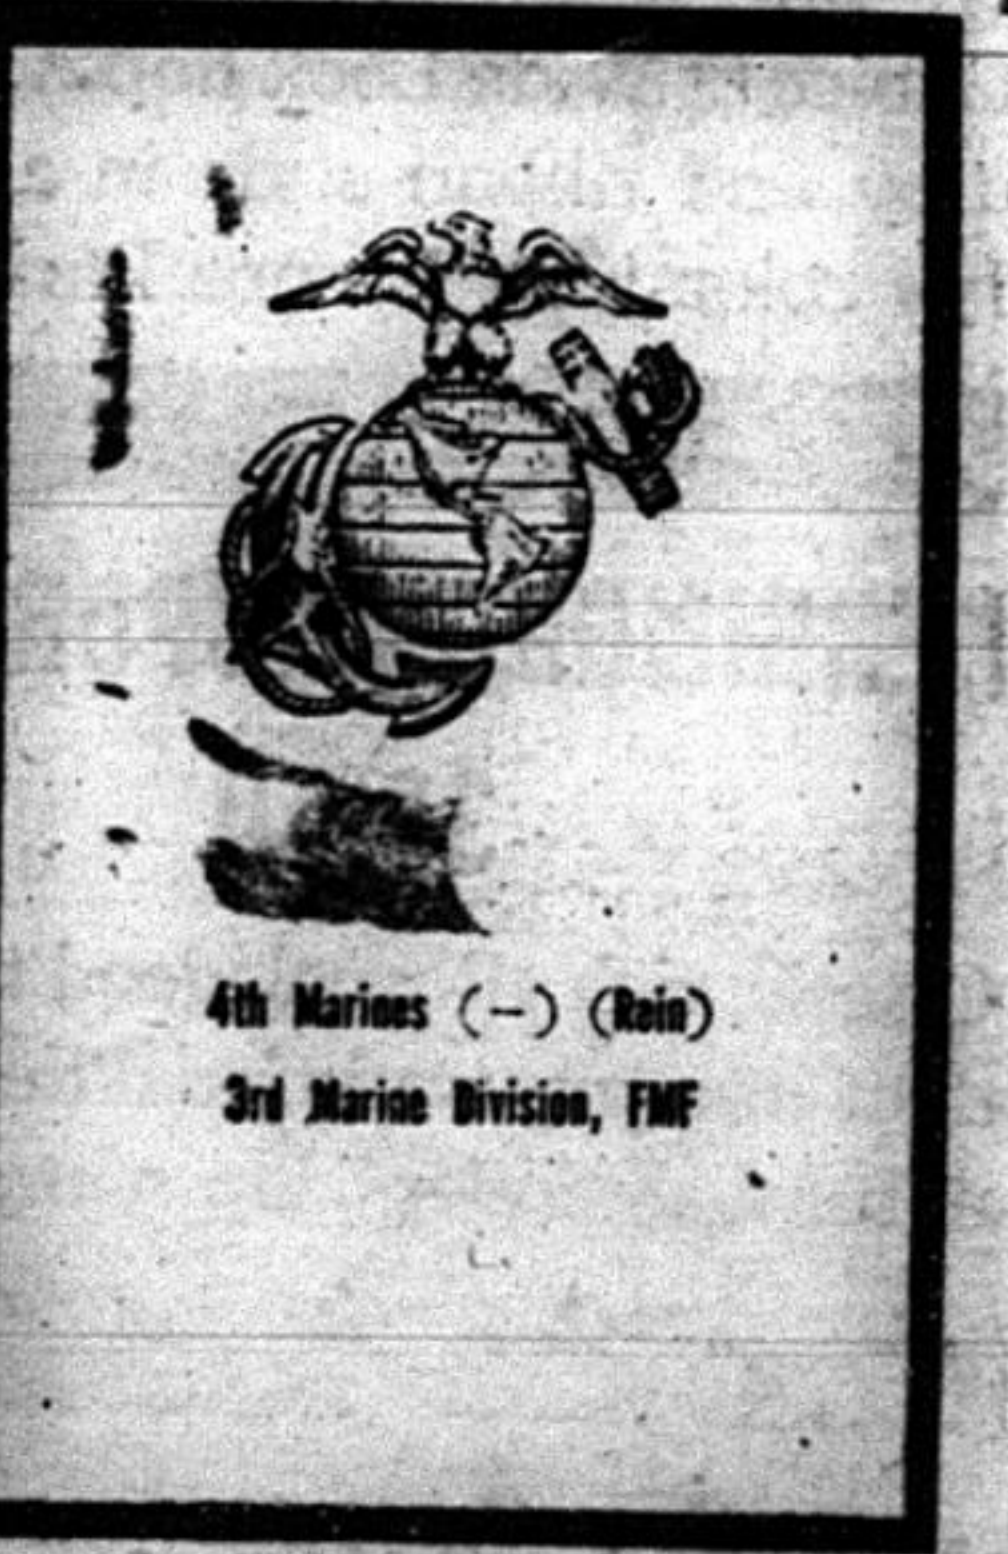

"Season's Greeting from Vietnam with Best Wishes this Holiday Season from Across the Sea," is also printed on most of the cards.

A note signed R.R.N. said: "May your holidays be as pleasant as mine. Things here have been far from pleasant — but your wonderful support makes life so much easier."

"Just to know individuals, such as yourself, are so willing, if needed, to join us here — for freedom which of course is America itself," it said.

But maybe the real message on the cards was the one that said: "wish you were here."

Bears Face Alumni In Cage Tip-Off Tonight

University of California varsity basketballers meet Bear cagers of yesteryear tonight in the opening game of the 1965-66 season. Tipoff at Harmon Gymnasium is slated at 8 p.m.

A preliminary contest will pit the Cal Blues against the Cal Frosh at 5:50 p.m.

Tonight's game will be the first of 24 regular season outings for the Bears, whose first collegiate opponent will be USF in San Francisco Friday night. Cal plays host to St. Mary's Saturday.

The Bears will participate in two holiday tournaments this season — the Kentucky Tournament at Lexington, Ky., Dec. 17-18 with Kentucky, Air Force, and Indiana, and the American Legion Tournament at Seattle Dec. 29-30 with Texas, Seattle, and Arizona.

Cal will be out to improve on last year's 8-13 record and seventh place finish in the AAWU. However, the Bears may find the going rough after losing their top two scorers of 1964-64, Dan Wolthers and Mike Henderson.

Coach Rene Herrerias has four returnees from last year in guards

Jim Ashcraft, Robby Olson, and Charlie Perkins, and 7-0 center John Wardell. Two others, guard Steve Smith and forward Myron Erickson, lettered the year before and sat out last season.

Rounding out the Bears' first ten are junior college transfers Bruce Steckel and Russ Moe and 1964-65 frosh performers Bob Wolfe and Russ Critchfield.

A leg injury to Smith may keep the talented junior guard out of action for the first week of action. Smith was just released from the hospital and has just resumed practice.

In their traditional opener tonight, the Bears will be facing a talented Alumni squad coached by '34 All-American Hal Eifert, led by 1964 and 1965 scoring leader Dan Wolthers. Guard Howard Holt will also be making his first appearance for the Alumni.

The first three forwards from the 1959 NCAA championship team, Bill McClintock, Bob Dalton, and Dave Stafford, and guard Bernie Simpson from that team will also be playing, as will Don Lauer, most valuable player on the 1961-62 squad.

BIG JOHN AND LITTLE RENE . . . Seven-foot ace John Wardell will open up at center tonight for the Golden Bears when they meet the Alumni in Harmon gym. Here he is receiving consultation from head coach Rene Herrerias.

The 3rd Half

A Tale of a Terrible Turkey

By John Rodgers

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK: Basketball.

POST-THANKSGIVING TURKEYS: Saturday after next (December 11) at 1:00 on Underhill field between Unit I and Unit II, the Terrible Turkeys of The Daily Californian will meet the Golden Goldsteinies of the ASUC Senate in the Power Bowl.

To the victor of the battle goes the spoils—the S.O.B. (Student Office Building for the unfortunates who never come to the southside of campus.) If there ever was anything spoiled or ruined, it's the S.O.B.

The Daily Cal has to be the favorites in the game as there seems to be dissension among the ranks of the Golden Goldsteinies.

First of all, they have too many quarterbacks. Everybody wants to call the signals even though the "real" quarterback is Jerry Goldstein, five year man from Los Angeles.

Goldstein is good at getting his team to compromise. When one faction wants to run the end and the other wants to run up the middle, Jerry solves it all and passes (the buck?)

Brian Turner helped the C-I's earn a great season's record in intramural play this year, but he only has one problem—every time he runs it is to the left.

When he calls the plays the squad lines up in a left-wing formation and then runs a power sweep left, running over his own people, if they block the way.

Tim Lyons used to be a long distance runner for the Golden Bears but on the Golden Goldsteinies, he is the back-up QB. Once when Jerry was recuperating from an injury, Tim really went wild.

Tim's favorite play is smash over right tackle from a right wing position that vacillates every once in a while. His opponents always claim that he runs too far, right or wrong, for them.

Bob Archibald is a sprinter on Cal's track squad and the younger brother of international star 440 man, Dave. Bob has been timed in 9.7 and is supposed to be a terror on the gridiron.

Bob's favorite play is the run right up the middle from any formation. No matter who calls the plays, Bob is hot to go up the middle.

Joining the above will be such superstars as Roarin' Ron Jones, Jostlin' John Roberts, Burly Bob Nakamura, and Jolly Johnny Simmons.

The Golden Goldsteinies don't know if they will have substitutes yet, as it always takes them too long to find out who will be sitting on the bench. They also have a tendency to call in ringers from Bogaloussa, San Francisco, or the faculty to help them decide on the play.

Now the Terrible Turkeys are a completely different type of team—they are good.

Led by the quarterbacking of Dave Newman, the man who is strong enough to tolerate a Regents meeting once a month, and then report on it, the Turkeys show a lot of class.

The tight end will probably be "All-ears" George Baker, the pride of Lambda Chi Alpha. George was lured away from the U.S. Naval Academy after his sophomore year by the California sunshine and the California girls, with emphasis on the latter.

The center is Andrew McCall, the ex-crime reporter on campus. Since Cal students don't break laws (except "when the operation of the machine becomes so odious that . . .") Andy retired.

The blocking backs are "Waterpolo" Jim Leonard and Bitchin' Bob Lawson. Jim is also Captain, coach, and manager of the Terrible Ones.

The guard positions are up for grabs and contrary to popular beliefs, Leslie Lafayette will not play at all—she has a cold.

Oh, yes. And yours truly will be assigned to the split end position as Coach Leonard said, "We want you to play as far away from the rest of us as possible."

UC Karate Club Duo In Tourney

The University Karate Club, co-sponsors of the US-Japan Karate tournament, will have a pair of members entered when the tourney starts on Saturday at 8 p.m. in San Francisco's Winterland.

Steve Jacobsen and Iwao Nakatani, a pair of University students, are entered, and will participate pending judgement by a tournament committee. A team of five visiting students will represent Japan in the first-ever meeting between the two countries in this type of tournament.

The Japanese students will be guests of the UC Karate club and will take a campus tour on Friday.

Awards Banquet

Relles Wins MVP Award

Tommy Relles, the senior running back from Sacramento and John Garamendi, the Mokelumne Hill block-buster, nabbed the Most Valuable Player and Lineman awards respectively at the Bear team's annual awards banquet at the Berkeley City Club last night.

Relles, who closed out his three-year career by being named Back of the Year by the Northern California Football Writers, picked up 485 yards this year in 133 carries and received the Bear Backers' Award as the MVP of the '65 Bears from former All-American halfback, Vic Bottari.

Garamendi, who was tabbed by the Nor Cal scribes as the season's top lineman, received the Brick Muller Award as the top Bear lineman from former winner Matt Hazeltine, currently with the San Francisco 49ers.

Kenny Moulton, the senior defensive back from Hayward received the Ken Cotton Award as the most courageous player from Charles Johnson. Captain Jim Phillips received the Stub Allison award from Bob Herwig as the most inspirational player.

The Andy Smith Memorial Award for the player who put in the most playing time was awarded to Jerry Mosher by Major General William F. Dean, retired.

Bob Crittenden, the San Diego who came on strong all season long, fittingly received the Robert A. Tiessier Memorial Trophy as the most improved lineman. Jim Cullom presented the award.

Randy Wilson, the diminutive halfback from Pasadena received the Dink Artel Award as the non-letterman whose loyalty, aggressiveness and spirit best exemplifies the California spirit. The Frank Störmen Memorial Award to the best all-around California athlete from southern California went to Roger Foster, the three-year letterman from Lynwood who also lettered in track.

John Beasley won the Roos/Atkins punting trophy.

Beban, Irish Head Cal All-Opponent

California's 1965 All-Opponent football team accorded recognition to UCLA's spectacular sophomore QB Gary Beban and the solid interior line of the Notre Dame offense.

Beban earned 32 of a possible 34 Golden Bear votes to take individual honors and the Fighting Irish picked up seven of 22 places on the mythical team, including offensive tackle Bob Meeker, offensive guards Dick Arrington and Tom Regner, and sophomore center George Goeddeke.

Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett of Southern California was second to Beban in the individual voting with 27 tallies, and with defensive halfback John Guillory of Stanford repeated from last year's squad.

Team representation followed the season's results closely: Notre Dame's 48-6 win put 7 men on the 22-man first team and an All-Opponent team high of 6 on the "honorable mention" squad, both UCLA's 56-3 exercise and Southern Cal's victory were good for four spots on each squad, and winning opponents earned 19 first squad and 16 honorable mention selections. Only two members of losing teams were honored on defense, one on each "squad." Kansas and Air Force, both 17-point losers, were unrepresented, and Oregon, a 24-0 victim put one man on the 44-member unit.

Investigations Blasted

'Detrimental to University'

By DAVE NEWMAN

The "nonsense" about legislative investigations and economic sanctions is "really detrimental to the University," a State Assemblyman said yesterday.

Assemblyman William Stanton (D-San Jose) commented on remarks made last week by another Assemblyman, Robert Monagan, to the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco.

Stanton said Monagan "should know better," and attributed the frequent calls for legislative investigations of the University to legislators "trying to create a political issue."

He said legislators really have neither the time or the inclination to carry out their threats but continue to call for investigations to "appeal to their constituents."

"The older generation is always greatly excited by the actions of the younger generation," Stanton said.

In spite of his confidence that the Legislature would not try to investigate or impose economic sanctions on the University, Stanton, an ex-San Jose State College professor, was somewhat less confident about the possibility of increasing faculty salaries at the University, as proposed by the Board of Regents at their last meeting.

Stanton said the election year would weigh against the pay raise, because legislators are always reluctant to vote new expenditures — and new taxes — during an election year.

Another factor, he said, is the Legislature is going to be "strapped for funds" this year and "many good programs are threatened," not just the University.

"How do you choose between faculty salary increases and a new mental health facility?" he said.

Stanton said he recognized the need for higher salaries if the University is to maintain its position as a top educational institution.

"We (the Legislature) have to recognize that the University must participate in a national market for scarce professors," Stanton said.

"The only way to compete," he said, "is to pay the going wage." "Perhaps more than the going wage," he added. "We should be leaders."

Stanton said the University, in trying to recruit professors, should make the "best possible offer."

"This includes good employment conditions as well as the highest salaries," he said, "and one of those conditions is freedom from harassment by the Legislature."

County Says VDC Protection Took 2126 Overtime Hours

The Alameda County Sheriff's office says it took 2126 overtime man-hours to provide county sheriff's protection for the Vietnam Day Committee November 20.

However, it is not known if the Alameda County Board of Supervisors plans to submit a bill to the University. It is expected, however, that the matter may come up at a Board meeting next Tuesday.

The overtime hours cost about $8,900, a Board spokesman said yesterday.

On November 2, Alameda County presented the University Regents with a bill for $96,000. The county said the cost arose out of various "uprisings" connected with the University. Included in the figure was $15,982 for police services during the VDC march of October 15-16.

Thomas Cunningham, Regents' General Counsel, said that his office had received the bill this week, and that a decision on whether the University could pay the bill would be forthcoming, possibly within two or three days.

The City of Oakland incurred costs of approximately $21,000 for overtime man-hours during the November 20 march. Unless it is later decided to bill someone else, however, those charges will be assumed by the taxpayers of Oakland, the Oakland City Manager's office said yesterday.

No statement was available from Berkeley concerning costs to that city from the recent marches.

Blast Shakes Latimer Hall

A small explosion caused by some improperly mixed chemicals last night shook Latimer Hall. No one was injured, and the blast caused only minor damage, according to University Police.

Select Committee

"Student Participation in Educational Policy" will be the topic of the final open meeting of the Academic Senate's Select Committee on Education at 3:30 p.m. today in 2503 LSB.

Theodore Vermeulen, professor of chemical engineering, will moderate the discussion. Undergraduate Larry Davis will also participate. Students, faculty, and administration members are encouraged to attend the meeting.

Baez's Non-Violent School Wins Approval

SALINAS (AP) — Folksinger Joan Baez Institute for the Study of Non-Violence won a grudging 3-2 victory vote from the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday night.

And so Miss Baez, an acknowledged pacifist, can open the school in Carmel Valley. However, it can operate only from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

These and other restrictions were the only way the school could win the vote of board president Tom Hudson, who presided over a noisy and overcrowded meeting attended by 300 persons.

"I'm relieved," said Miss Baez, although she did complain about the restrictions. "I think that the people who have been fighting us will feel differently after they find out that we're not going to lie down in the middle of the road in front of military convoys or anything like that."

Salinas attorney Robert J. Pia presented the board with a petition signed by 450 persons, 378 who own property in the immediate area of the building, once the site of the "So Help Me, Hannah" poison oak remedy factory and a shotgun shell manufacturing plant after being closed as a public school 15 years ago.

The petitioners claimed the non-violence institute would depreciate their property values. Their position was upheld by the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, real estate men and an official of the Commercial Property Owners Association.

Augustus Pollock, a retired Coast Guard captain and former president of the California Historical Society, said he planned to build a home near the institute which he said was "no threat to moral peace or general welfare."

A challenge to the Levering Loyalty Oath requirement is now in the process of being formed. Leaders of the challenge are Charles Aronson, who was refused employment by the University because he would not sign the oath, and Barbara Garson, who was not paid for a month's work this summer because of her written addition to the oath. Both are planning to file a suit to test the oath's constitutionality.

Aronson was not hired at the beginning of this semester. But he says, "I decided to continue the course I had originally prepared to teach," he said, "being quite aware, of course, that I would not receive payment for my services."

He is now conducting the class in Dwinelle Hall. Mrs. Garson, who applied for University employment last summer, said the oath is "a plain insult to reason and dignity," but signed it because she needed the job.

She also wrote in an exception to the oath which read: "I will advocate overthrowing any government when it is feasible, desirable, and the overthrow is supported by the majority of citizens."

After a month of working for the University, she was refused a salary because her oath "was unacceptable."

"Upon signing," she said, "with my exception included, I felt I had completely complied. Luckily, I had not complied enough, and I say luckily, because it wouldn't be healthy for me to receive the salary under such circumstances."

One of Mrs. Garson's main objections is, in her words, "The oath is a method of humiliation—a method of taking the sting out of any idealistic rebellion in you. Once you know you're being paid to give up your principle, it's pretty hard to reassert your motives later."

In a pamphlet entitled "End the Oath," an appeal was made specifically to the faculty to contribute to the "End-the-Oath Defense Fund."

In this statement Mrs. Garson said, "The administrators, the legislators and the Regents understand that many sign the oath with misgivings."

Aronson views the motive behind the oath requirement as being an effort "to keep radicals off the campus or to force them into deviousness and point them out as an example of people using unethical means to obtain recognition."

'Contact' in Campaigning Urged

Two plans are in the works to get more contact between candidates and students during upcoming ASUC election campaigning.

Dave Engel, temporary elections chairman, said yesterday he is sending letters to all living group presidents, requesting them to set up times when candidates would be able to speak to their living groups.

Engel said he is also going to attempt to set aside an area in the Student Union lobby, where candidates will be able to hold "office hours."

At these "hours" students would be able to meet and question candidates.

Filing is going on this week, campaigning next week, and balloting the week after for several positions on the ASUC Senate.

Filing is on the third floor of Eshleman Hall.

In addition to the ten students who filed their candidacy Monday, the following three filed yesterday:

Men's Residence Halls Representative—Laurence Nelson Jr.; Sorority Representative—Pamela Joan Madsen,

WORLD

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The U.N. General Assembly approved without a dissenting vote Monday the convening of a world disarmament conference to which Red China would be invited. It would be held not later than 1967.

Secretary-General U Thant immediately hailed the vote as a milestone on the road toward universality of the world organization—the inclusion of Red China and other nations outside the United Nations.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg said that a world disarmament conference including Communist China might help rescue mankind from a nuclear wilderness.

PARIS—With a sideswipe at "a stupid war" in Asia, Charles de Gaulle asked Frenchmen last night to give him a vote of confidence in Sunday's election.

He said France shuns subordination to any of its allies—an apparent reference to the United States.

LONDON—An 11th hour snag last night forced Prime Minister Harold Wilson to defer an announcement of British plans for sending token military aid to Zambia.

A message from President Kenneth Kaunda, British informants said, showed some objections to certain of the conditions laid down by Wilson in his offer to provide a token force.

RIO DE JANEIRO—The conference of 19 American states ended yesterday after laying the groundwork for a sweeping overhaul of the inter-American system.

SAIGON, South Vietnam—Vietnamese troops and their American advisers fought off an attack yesterday by about 200 guerrillas on a special forces camp and militia post 90 miles southwest of Saigon.

But a Viet Cong battalion apparently overwhelmed about 200 government militiamen in the central highlands 15 miles east of An Khe, headquarters of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division.

MOSCOW—The Algerian Embassy is preparing for a visit to Moscow by Algeria's leader Col. Houari Boumediene but a date has not yet been fixed, a spokesman said yesterday.

NATIONAL

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—A former bartender testified yesterday he was ordered by a Ku Klux Klan superior officer to accompany three other Klansmen on a journey which led to the slaying of civil rights worker Viola Gregg Liuzzo.

Gary Thomas Rowe Jr., 32, who said he was paid by the FBI to join the Klan and get information for the government, was the key witness in the civil rights conspiracy trial of three Klan members—Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22, of Fairfield, Ala.; Eugene Thomas, 42, and William Orville Eaton, 41, both of Bessemer, Ala. The three are being tried simultaneously.

WASHINGTON—Chancellor Josef Klaus of Austria said yesterday he has no knowledge of any Romanian move aimed at peace talks on Vietnam.

Klaus conceded that Rumanian Prime Minister Jon Maurer talked about Vietnam when he visited Vienna earlier this month, "but in these talks, official or private, I could not discover any indication of a Romanian or Austrian mediation in the Vietnam conflict."

FT. BRAGG, N.C.—Seventeen hundred soldiers from Ft. Bragg have been called for duty in Vietnam by Christmas, it was announced yesterday.

The move followed a statement by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara that the United States will continue to send troops to augment the present force of about 165,000 in South Vietnam.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex.—Top diplomatic and military advisers will fly in from Washington Thursday or Friday to review the war in Vietnam and other world problems with President Johnson.

WASHINGTON—U.S. armed strength has risen by more than 86,000 since President Johnson ordered a buildup of the armed services because of the Vietnam war, a Pentagon report showed yesterday.

STATE

SACRAMENTO—State Senator Richard Dolwig (R-San Mateo County), has renewed the old argument on splitting California into two states. This time, he says, the people want the state divided.

SAN DIEGO—While defending U.S. policy in Vietnam, Governor Brown said yesterday he will continue to zealously protect Americans' rights to criticize that policy.

Brown was addressing graduating recruits at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here, emphasizing that they must both stop Communist aggression and protect American liberties.

SAN FRANCISCO—A top aide to Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday that his office had been turned "inside out to implement the new federal programs."

Everett Calvert, chief deputy superintendent, told the State Senate Fact Finding Committee on Education that "lack of pre-planning money has made it very difficult to put federal programs into effect without neglecting state and local programs."

Innovations in German Dept.

By ANN METZELAAR
Two innovations to teach German more effectively here are being planned by the German Department for the fall semester.

For the first time at the University, teaching assistants will be required to take a course in the teaching of German at the university level.

The German Department is instituting the required instructional course independently.

The second, tentative, innovation was described by Blake Spahr, assistant professor of German, as "a residence housing 80 students which would be used as 'German House' and have a native German as a resident director."

He added that "the German consulate has offered to donate books and magazine subscriptions."

"Of course only German would be spoken at the house," he said.

The method courses for TA's, to begin this summer, will satisfy three units of the requirement for a California State Teaching credential.

Both a course for elementary and secondary teaching and for college teaching will be given.

Klaus Mueller, a specialist in methodology and applied linguistics, will supervise TA training.

Since the student learns so much more effectively through audio-lingual instruction, Mueller said, the German department anticipates increased interest in its literature courses.

One of the first college language departments to institute audio-lingual training, the German Department agrees that "since language is primarily spoken, this is the aspect that ought to be taught," according to Mueller. Research shows that reading and writing the language is facilitated if the learner can speak the language," he added.

The audio-lingual anti-grammatician philosophy of language instruction was begun at Columbia in 1958. At Harvard there is reportedly a departmental ban on the use of the words "memorize" and "translate."

After three semesters of audio-lingual German, the student can understand the average radio program and can communicate fairly effectively in German.

Mueller said the TA's are enthusiastic.

Those beginning the training course during the fall quarter will be given an opportunity to teach two courses in the following quarter.

The training will include the use of language labs, class visitation, and use of other instructional materials.

Spahr said plans are going ahead for the German House and TA training in spite of the Legislature's budget cut and in spite of the "invisible" reduction of required language hours because of the quarter system.

Language instruction time is being cut by five instruction weeks because of the quarter system, he said.

According to Spahr, the language breadth requirement as it is now does not provide an "adequate period of exposure to a foreign language."

Mueller and Spahr both said they agree with the recommendations of the All-University Conference on Language instruction which last month advised "there should be a breadth requirement of six quarter courses."

The German Department faces two alternatives in face of the budgetary cut, either turning students away from class or having more students per class.

Spahr pointed out that the Modern Language Association recommends 15 students per class as a maximum for efficient audio-lingual instruction.

Spahr said the Defense Department's Language Institute trains its military attaches and overseas personnel for six months to one year in classes of eight, six hours a day, five days a week.

He said this shows by comparison how insubstantial the college student's language training is.

Spahr and Mueller said they believe the German House and the TA training course will train students more quickly and more thoroughly in speaking, reading and writing skills.

Thus the student will sooner be able to familiarize himself with the foreign culture.

Such an understanding of a foreign culture gives the student a "perspective on his own culture," which is the purpose of University language instruction, said Mueller.

Vietnam War Discussion

Journalist Robert Scheer will take part in a discussion on the war in Vietnam at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in Physical Sciences Lecture Hall.

Scheer, a writer for "Ramparts" Magazine, and Stanley Sheinbaum, a staff member at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, will discuss the war after a speech, "Alternatives to War," by Amitai Etzioni, professor of Sociology at Columbia University.

The discussion will be free and open to the public.

Moderator for the discussion will be Franz Schurmann, University professor of history and sociology.

The speech and discussion is sponsored by the Faculty Peace Committee.

Sheinbaum formerly worked as an economist for the U.S. State Department and the regime of the late Ngo Diem of South Vietnam.

Riverside Students Urge Campus Changes

Small living units in the residence halls, a modified language requirement, a revision of faculty evaluation to give more credit for good teaching, and several methods of improving student-faculty relations are major recommendations in the first report of the Chancellor's Student Committee on Undergraduate Education at Riverside.

Chancellor Ivan Hinderaker called the report "a thoughtful and imaginative job."

The committee of 11 students met bi-weekly at the Chancellor's Residence last spring, beginning in February. It is a continuing group, with a program of numerous additional areas for study.

Design of future residence halls around units of 40 to 50 students was urged to foster small social groups.

The language requirement at present is 12 hours. The committee recommends that this be reduced to nine, with the first six hours the same for all students and the final three divided into separate courses for majors and non-majors.

The report asserts that teaching is not now critically evaluated by those charged with recommending faculty promotions, and that consequently the determining factors are research, professional activity, and public service. The students recommend classroom visitation among faculty members, evaluation of teaching in definite evidence only, and study of a program to use student evaluations of faculty performance.

An increase in the use of team teaching in introductory courses was favored, and continuation of the use of teaching assistants was recommended, provided there is also a continuance of careful supervision by experienced faculty members.

Other recommendations include establishment of faculty-student lounges in academic buildings, small social funds in each department to encourage faculty-student interaction, additional seminar-type courses, and comfortable lounging areas outside several buildings.

The Intellectual Approach to God

Every generation produces its scholars and students, whose keen minds lead them deeply into philosophy and religion. Books on comparative religion flood the stands, yet the Power Beyond seems untapped and remote, unavailable to man. To raise questions is one thing, to supply answers another; and today's theologians and religious philosophers have still not told us who we are or how to overcome.

But the God of the Bible is neither dead nor unapproachable, neither remote nor unavailable. To the intellectual Greeks of Athens Paul said, "The God who made the world and everything in it, being Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in shines made by man, nor is he served by human hands, as though he needed anything, since he himself gives to all men life and breath and everything. And he made from one, every nation of men to live on all the face of the earth, having determined allotted periods and boundaries of their habitation, that they should seek God, in the hope that they might feel after him and find him. Yet he is not far from each one of us, for in him we live and move and have our being" (Acts 17:24-28).

But to a skeptical, unbelieving age and to the intellectually proud, unwilling to discover the facts of faith, the sovereign God remains far off, available only to those who come to Jesus Christ in simple, humble faith: "The word of the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God . . . for, since, in the wisdom of God, the world did not know God through wisdom, it pleased God through the foolishness of what we preach to save those who believe. For Jews demand signs and Greeks seek wisdom, but we preach Christ crucified . . . Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God" (1 Corinthians 1:18-25).

Tired of intellectual answers which don't work and never satisfy? Why not settle for the wisdom of God and the mind of Christ, which are yours for the asking. . . the free gift of God is eternal life in Jesus Christ our Lord. Why sit on the sidelines of life with the skeptics?

German Legislator Urges 'Love-Not War'

Advocating "Love — not war," Gustav-Adolf Gedat told a sparse audience in the lower plaza of the Student Union yesterday of his visions of a united German government. Gedat, a member of the German Parliament in the party of Konrad Adenauer since 1953, said: "All we are asking for is a free international control election of a united German government. We want the whole people of Germany — both east and west — to elect a government under international control . . . Such an election would be political suicide for the Communists, of course."

University students planning to visit Western Germany were accorded an invitation by Gedat to visit him at an old castle in the Black Forest — the "International Forum Burg Liebenzell" — which has been rebuilt with the cooperation of more than 40,000 young men and women from 98 countries.

The castle is the headquarters of the German International Christian Leadership movement founded by Gedat in 1953.

Gedat said world peace will only be brought about through a uniting of the world in "politics, economics, and military defense" . . . "This unity can only be brought about after there is a united Germany and a united Europe." He pointed out the differences between the farmers in East Germany, where everything belongs to the State, and Western Germany, where the farmers are allowed to own their own farms and therefore have a better incentive to produce. "If the East German people are so contented with the government of the State, why does there have to be an Iron Curtain to keep them from fleeing to the West?", he asked.

Briefly, Gedat told of his background . . . the fact that he was the first exchange-student to come to the U.S. from Germany following the First World War. Afterwards he became a co-worker with John R. Mott in the Christian student movement, national secretary of the German YMCA and a member of the World Council of the YMCA in Geneva.

In 1938 he was denounced by Hitler as "Enemy of the Reich" and was prohibited from lecturing and educational work in his homeland. He was placed under constant surveillance by the Gestapo. Following the war he began again his Christian educational work and founded with some friends the Christian Boys Town Movement in Germany, which now has 40 facilities throughout Germany's Federal Republic.

His current trip in America, about a month in length, is taking him to Alaska, Nevada, Arizona, Louisiana, Florida, Washington, D.C. and California.

'Blue' Objects May Lead to Answers in Space

Evidence that recently discovered quasi-stellar "blue" galaxies may still be rare objects in the observable universe was reported Friday at the University's Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton.

The new finding has important bearing on astronomers' efforts to understand the nature and origin of the universe.

An estimate that the new objects might be relatively plentiful in the sky population accompanied the initial report of their discovery issued last May from Mount Palomar Observatory in California.

The new quasi-stellar galaxies (QSG's) are believed to be very bright galaxies so distant that they appear as stars, and they are receding in the universe at high velocities.

The idea that they might be plentiful raised hopes that astronomers might rapidly develop new understanding of key cosmological questions—for example, on the curvature of space, the expansion of the universe, and the controversy between the "big bang" and steady state theories.

The new work at Lick Observatory indicates that most of the objects believed to be QSG's in the earlier estimate are actually stars in the Milky Way galaxy (the great wheeling stellar "island" in which the sun is a minor member).

While the new objects at infinitely greater distance may hold important clues to knowledge, the work at Lick indicates they must still be regarded as rare discoveries rather than as members of a large new astronomical class.

The report of the new study by Thomas Kinman, astronomer at Lick Observatory, is published today in the current issue of the Astrophysical Journal.

In essence, Dr. Kinman's research (supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation) was a careful survey of "blue" objects in selected sky areas.

Many of these objects, according to the Mount Palomar estimate, should be counted as QSG's.

But following standard astronomical techniques for determining their character, Dr. Kinman found that all of the "blue" objects in his survey could be counted as stars.

Since the discovery of QSG's announced last May by astronomer Allan R. Sandage at Mount Palomar, interest has centered on an astronomical class known as Haro-Luyten objects.

These are abnormally blue objects surveyed earlier by Astronomers G. Haro, Willem Luyten, and others, who calculated their relative abundance at varying degrees of brightness. In general, these earlier surveys showed greater numbers of the blue objects at fainter magnitudes.

Detecting color changes at a certain point (magnitude 14.5) in the decreasing scale of brightness, Dr. Sandage estimated that the majority of the fainter Haro-Luyten objects were QSG's rather than stars of our galaxy.

Co-ed's Manhunt Fails—Where ARE the Boys?

Thinking quickly, and recalling from page 83 of "The Facts of Life and Love for Teenagers" that ability to converse on a common topic is an asset in the initial phases of a fruitful relationship, I murmured, "Oh, I learned all about those things in Zoo 10."

"Uh-huh," he replied as he wrapped the shark in plastic, washed his hands, and replaced the wedding band he had removed for the operation.

Chagrined, perturbed, but still undaunted, I forgot my hoped-for experience in ichthyology and headed for The Terrace to seek intellectual warmth and companionship.

I spied my prey immediately: a moustached, bare-chested bod reading Zen and drinking coffee.

Colorado River Film to Be Shown

Four films will be shown at the Active Conservative Tactics meeting at 7 p.m. today in 390 Hearst Mining.

The first will be "Glen Canyon," concerned with the damming of the Colorado River.

Also to be shown will be "Wilderness Alps of Stehekin," "Island in Time" and "Sands of San Francisco Bay." There will be no admission charge.

"That's pretty good stuff, the book, I mean," was my opening line.

"Yeah . . . yeah," he responded, looking up momentarily through orange sunglasses.

I rejoiced. He'd taken the bait. I tried for more. "What do you think of Negroes and Vietnam?"

No reply. He was blankly staring at a cubic foot of empty air slightly to the left of my shoulder.

Shy type. All he needs is a little push. I had him pegged. No time for beating around the bush.

"I really must say I do like coffee," I hinted.

"Huh? Oh . . . yeah . . . yeah. Here. Have mine. I've gotta split." He got up slowly and wandered away.

Noble, touching, and generous. Gallant. But I don't take cream and sugar in my coffee, and besides, it was cold.

I hit Heller Lounge, thinking of letting the males have one last chance.

I found what I was looking for: a sofa shared by four young men who were quietly conversing. The gleam of victory was in my eye. Restraining a joyous cry, I salaciously wedged myself between two of them.

But through no fault of my own, mind you, they were getting ready to leave at just that moment. Exit they did, and without any sort of fond adieu.

I followed suit. Downstairs to the ASUC store to pick up the latest issues of "The New Yorker" and "Dig" (Complete with a full color foldout of Dino, Desi, and Billy).

Tomorrow—another day.

Student Participation?

The Academic Senate Select Committee on Education meets today for its final discussion session with students.

The ninth and last session will have an appropriate topic, "Student Participation in Educational Policy." For eight weeks the committee has been discussing various aspects of the educational system. The purpose of the discussions has been to gather comments and original ideas from students and to discuss some of the committee's findings.

Hopefully, the students became informed on educational matters through this series. Student interest was taken for granted—didn't the students spend all last year asking for a voice in their own destiny?

And what is more important to their life at an educational institution than their education?

Therefore, it has been somewhat of a disappointment that attendance was generally low at these meetings.

Today's meeting may be the most important one yet—it should prepare the ground and define the means for further student participation in educational matters. We hope the attendance will be greater.

The means that students have to participate in making educational policy decisions are now basically weak. The ASUC Student Education Faculty Relations Board has studied various problems relating to education. Slate has organized an evaluation of individual courses. A few ad hoc student groups have also attempted to influence policy makers on topics such as the quarter system or new education programs.

These means would be adequate if enough students cared since the voices of these groups are only as powerful as the students backing them.

We wonder at the student apathy on educational matters and conclude that part of it can be blamed on the status of the student. As a freshman and sophomore he is generally awed by the system and unaware that he can criticize it or has any right to ask for changes.

Once a junior he may attempt change, but by the time he becomes a senior he realizes that any changes he may institute will only benefit those that come after him. Graduate students operate under a completely different educational system and therefore have little reason to agitate for change in the undergraduate teaching system.

That the issue is undramatic also results in apathy.

Perhaps there are answers for these problems—the necessity of change, the need to ask for it, and the apathy of students which stops them from asking.

If there are answers, the committee meeting today should help find them. We urge students to attend and enter into the discussion.

Letters to the Ice Box

Natural Rights

To the Ice Box:

In reply to Don Shakow (Nov. 9); given his premises, he's right. But his premises are wrong: where he and people like him err is in their belief that a man may not act unless his action has been condoned as a right, de jure, by some assemblage. They forget that man has a nature with its own morality and rights, de facto: "To live free and be happy is my right; to resist slavery and death must be my morality." De facto rights precede (and should constitute) de jure rights. I merely maintain that de facto rights—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—are universal rights of all men, and not, as Mr. Shakow would have us believe, "sociological prejudices" endemic to the United States. If one accepts my posit, and obviously there are people like Mr. Shakow who don't (tragically enough), then it follows that abrogation of these rights is a de facto crime, attendant upon no "representative international body," for its proscription, de jure.

It is my second posit that a man or nation is morally negligent in not aiding the victim of this transgression of natural right, or, conversely, is morally justified in aiding the victim. From this posit, I maintain that civil rights workers need no right, de jure, to aid Negro victims of white supremacists because they have the right, de facto; it's why I also maintain that the U.S. needs no right, de jure, to aid victims of Communist aggression, because they have that right, de facto; and it's why I consider the VDC morally negligent; (I'd believe and support Uncle Ho if his own totalitarian North Vietnam didn't make him out the liar; dictator Ky must go).

One may call my morality an "arrogation of international police power." I call it a response to duty. One may call my rights "specious." I call them natural—inherent in the nature of man.

Less Impersonal

To the Ice Box:

Regarding Church and State, I would like to answer Mr. Wolf's letter printed in the "Daily Californian" on Nov. 30.

It is true that the University's use of Christmas decorations may violate America's doctrine of separation of Church and State. If a person truly objected to this use of state money, he could make a federal case of it.

But why go to all the trouble? Is such rigidity necessary or desirable?

I do not believe that the University does wrong in celebrating Christmas. Many people here complain about the impersonality of this huge university, and I heard that this was a crucial issue in the Free Speech Movement last year. But a Christmas tree and a few decorations in the cafeteria seem to make the University a little less impersonal, although in a symbolic way. Somehow it seems less drab, less isolated from the rest of the world. I would not object if the University commemorated holidays of other religions besides Christianity.

As for the cost of these decorations, and the possibility of a more appropriate use of the money: I do not think that the amount actually spent is great enough to make much difference. Money is not everything in life; nor even principles, when they destroy more than they create.

Your Choice

To the Ice Box:

The fragile underpinnings of liberty are balanced so minutely that they sway precariously in the slightest breeze of negativism. In our harrowing journey over the sloppy quicksands of time; in our struggle to reach a juxtaposition with the Political Nirvana, can we afford to sit here and absorb the bombast of grandiose professors, who in their spread-eagleness do little but sidestep our own objections, or should we heed the meaningless palaver of neo-activist students, who, while spouting grandiloquence, become inwebbed in their own pall of ineptitude? Phooey! Life is too precious, time is too fleeting, our hearts are too mellow to allow such blatant misuses of civil liberty. Such surfeit-gorged admonitions can be productive only if apostasy is banished and the subtle dangers to our country are clearly recognized. So what are you, as a citizen, going to do about it? Cui bono! The starry heavens may be visions to our eyes, the dancing feet of Patti Tyre may be honey to our balance organs, and the intricate digestive processes of the Reticulitermes hesperus may stir our respective intellects, but none of them will be any good in an "insegrivious" Hell, especially the dancing feet. In the words of the noted English philosopher H. Desmond Reaves, "The orb'd countenance of God looks not kindly upon freedom's deceivers, clothed only in an unwashed aura of base intellectual carnality." I ask you, shall we stand up like men and drive toward our goal, or will we flounder in the chuck-hole of our own moral decay? The choice is yours, my friend.

—Jerry Osborn
Junior, Geology

Step Forward

To the Ice Box:

While the Regents have been suppressing civil liberties, the Trustees of the California State College System have quietly moved to expand freedom of advocacy.

On August 13, they adopted this policy: "The personal soliciting, selling, exposing for sale, or offering to sell by ANY PERSON or persons, of any books, newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, and similar published materials SHALL BE PERMITTED on a State College campus, provided that such published materials are not available for sale at the college bookstore; subject, however, to reasonable regulation by the respective State College president as to the time, place and manner thereof."

In other words, the distribution and sale of printed matter is recognized as a civil right, and is extended to non-students as well as members of the campus community: Black Muslims, the Sexual Freedom League, Jehovah's Witnesses, everybody.

Of course there will be local variations in the administration of this policy. Local interpretation is quite liberal at SF State, but presumably not so at campuses in the "West Dixie" region around Los Angeles.

But the system-wide policy is a great step forward. It brings state colleges into line with such Supreme Court decisions as Marsh v. Alabama, where the court held that free speech was more important than the property rights which employers exercised over a company town. The Trustees have agreed that freedom will be respected by the state in its role as landlord of the state college campuses.

The Trustees have set a precedent which the Regents can and should follow. ASUC, FSU, Daily Cal, and the student body of UC might well raise their example in a demand for equal rights on University campuses.

We Shall Overcome Fellow Minority Groups

By DON HACKETT

It is probably impolitic to say what I am about to say in the time of crisis for the University (and what time in the last year or so has not been a time of crisis for the University—the greatest boon for the Chronicle's headline writer since the disappearance of Judy Williamson, but two years of silence weigh heavily on my conscience and I must now speak out.

For the past two years I have been a card-carrying member of the Flat Earth Party. Do not draw away in disgust, gentle reader; I realize that 473 years of incessant propaganda has hardened your heart against my position, but please, give me a little energy, an act of will, something that will clear the clouds from your mind—an exercise of tolerance, of simple human understanding. No—this is not enough; it is necessary that all decent persons undertake an active defense of me, and the others like me who have not seen fit to reveal themselves, from society's persecution.

We are not being persecuted by the great organs of suppression—HUAC, the FBI, etc.; would that we were, for then we would need only shout "Free Speech," and before the completion of the magic incantation "military-industrial-complex" we would have awesome manifestos from the ACLU, a Campus Friends of the Flat Earth Party, and a Committee for the defense of the Columbus Act Defendants (jealousy; though they have nothing for me, I have at least sympathy for the victims of these Inquisitors.)

Our persecution is more insidious; it is conducted by society as a whole, and by every separate part of it. The soft sickening grey cloud of American Establishment-oriented conformity has choked off debate on this subject, and the Columbus orthodoxy stomps unhindered about the landscape.

It is against this monster that we must do battle. The students of Cal have shown that they have no fear of the instruments of organized oppression. Today the struggle for freedom must take a new turn. The enemy is not conveniently located in one or two institutions that can be held up for ridicule; the enemy is nothing less than all of organized society, and especially the great centers of learning who hide their persecution behind the cloak of "intellectual pursuit."

The time to strike is now. The campus has reached a high level of commitment on the Vietnam issue; this commitment has to be turned to substantive issues. As the first in this campaign I call for a giant rally on Sproul Steps to celebrate the burning of every globe in Berkeley.

Spirit Problem for VDC?

The Vietnam Day Committee's "victory" at the Oakland City line during their march earlier this month may prove to be a dangerous one for the protest group, as both observers and the VDC's own inner councils ask, What now for the VDC?

In the comparative lull in activity since the march, the VDC leadership had been wrestling with a decision between a continued activist or "focal" policy or a switch to a quieter, more behind-the-scenes program.

Like all organizations of the political and social left, the VDC is plagued by the paradox of temporary victories threatening to cause a tremendous sag in spirit and support, as the tension generated by the Oakland-march issues evaporates.

History Professor Martin Malia, during the International Days of Protest march last month, declared the greatest single impetus to the march's support was the Oakland attempt to block it.

Without that resistance by the authorities, he said, there would very likely have been no massive turnout, no multimedia publicity, no burning issue (the right to protest) for the VDC to add to their own banner, and no "martyr" status for the marchers.

Resistance—easily identifiable, intransigent resistance, preferably with shaky legal and moral justification—is absolutely vital to organizations, like the VDC, trying to agitate for discussion of an issue which, if not debated, would automatically be settled in a manner unacceptable to them.

In addition to raising the spectre of disintegrating activism after a temporary victory, "successes" like the Oakland march pose another headache for the protest planners.

From now on, in order to receive again the press coverage they enjoyed during the march, the VDC will have to take—one by one—significant steps towards radicalism.

The press becomes jaded; it takes more each time to impress it.

It was against this backdrop that Paul Ivory, acting assistant professor of economics, earlier this month outlined the choice confronting the VDC: between the radical course which brings publicity and the quieter day-to-day work which "never makes the papers."

"Publicity is usually hostile," said VDC's Bill Miller, commenting on the Committee's debates over tactics for the near future.

"But it's free—and it's always better to have people talking about your issue, even if they're going to oppose it, than not to discuss it at all."

The debate presumably continues within the VDC councils: both goals are vitally necessary to them—publicity, even at the cost of radicalism, and effectiveness, which is dulled by radicalism.

However, the flow of statements, press releases, on- and off-the-record comments that comes daily from the crowded VDC office reveals what can only be interpreted as a decision to move—for the time being, at least—away from the glare of "focal" activities like the marches and the troop-train incident (expensive in terms of public sympathy even though effective in seizing the spotlight).

"We are most definitely not an ad hoc committee," said Miller yesterday, in response to a question about "letting up" on activities.

"We don't exist just for the purpose of having marches and other public-focus events. Right now we're broadening our movement, experimenting with tactics."

Miller warned not to discount the possibility of a continued or even stepped-up program of "focal" actions, and said many are being definitely considered now.

But he outlined a program for the near future moving toward "day-to-day slow work" through labor unions, teachers' organizations, political candidates and coordination with other peace groups to "continue putting an opposing view of the war in front of the public."

of paper, apparently from a lance corporal stationed, the letter said, at Danang, South Vietnam.

The letter tells about a friend of the writer who was killed in September while checking a communication line.

"None of us really want to be here. We're doing a job that we were told to do," the letter said.

"What's more . . . we all think (the job) is an important one because we love our country and our way of life enough to defend it and help the people of Vietnam fight for the freedom that most Americans take for granted," it added.

The letter said he writer isn't looking for a shoulder to cry on. He will continue protecting the people who demonstrate "against us and our fight," he continued.

However, he was one of the few writing who seemed to believe in a reason to keep fighting.

One of the most lonesome messages was: "Drive safely over the holidays for you may be my replacement."

Beer in the Bear's Lair?—It's Legal, but . . .

You could buy beer in the Bear's Lair—it's legal—but the Regents would have to approve it.

However, it is more complicated than that.

ASUC Executive Director Forrest Treggea said that to sell beer in the Lair the ASUC Senate must direct him to make an application, with Regents approval, to the California State Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC).

There must be regental approval, since all University property is owned by the Regents.

But it is legal to sell beer on campus, or anywhere else, as long as a license is issued by ABC.

However, it is difficult to secure a permit. The Men's Faculty Club submitted an application to the ABC last summer.

"We haven't heard anything. We assume there is a possibility for its passage," said Forrest Mc-for its passage," said Forrest Mc-

Any individual could submit a proposal to an ASUC Senate member to bring the question of the beer to the Senate floor.

Beer has long been in the history of the Student Union. Ar-leigh Williams, acting dean of students, reminisces about a tap room in the old Stephens Union.

"Sawdust on the floor. A bar and two bartenders," he said.

However, sold in the tap room was "near beer," a prohibition-derived brew which tasted like beer but has less alcoholic content.

Williams pointed out that a major objection to the serving of beer in the Lair would be its regulation—keeping it from minors.

Williams suggested that the only feasible means to keep this regulation would be to convert the Lair or parts of the Lair into a club for students only over 21.

This would meet serious objections as it would keep a large segment of the campus community from using the Lair, he said.

There is already a movement at UCLA to have beer sold in their student union.

South African Speaker Sees Eventual Bloodshed in Rhodesia

An exile from South Africa, I. B. Tabata, will speak here today, seeking support for South African political prisoners.

Tabata is speaking at noon in Wheeler Auditorium, sponsored by the ASUC. He was interviewed yesterday in San Francisco by The Daily Californian.

Tabata said the main difference between racial discrimination in this country and in South Africa is that here people who commit atrocities are breaking the law.

"In South Africa, the law not only permits but actually sanctions brutality against the population."

There will eventually be bloodshed in both South Africa and Rhodesia, Tabata said. "Ian Smith (prime minister of Rhodesia) has pulled the trigger."

"In South Africa, the government has made it plain there is no possibility of the white man abdicating power in the foreseeable future," he continued.

South Africa's minister of defense, according to Tabata, has said that before the white man gives up his position of power, rivers of blood will flow.

According to Tabata, Smith will not be able to stifle the native population.

I. B. TABATA

"He's starting too late." Tabata said the British government could have prevented Smith from declaring unilateral independence.

"No other colony has ever gotten away with it. Even the thirteen colonies didn't manage it without a fight."

Tabata is president-in-exile of the Unity Movement of South Africa, an organization regarded with strong disapproval by the South African government.

When asked if his group was actively engaged in rebellion, Tabata smiled and said "if you were in my position, would you answer that question?"

"South Africa should be controlled and governed by all South Africans. In matters of government, skin pigmentation is irrelevant," Tabata emphasized.

Tabata is here to publicize the efforts of the Alexander Defense Committee. The committee is named for Dr. Neville Alexander, being held on Robben Island, a former leper colony, along with more than a thousand other political prisoners.

The committee is trying to raise money for the defense of Alexander and other political prisoners and for the support of their families.

Quarter System Survey Return Asked

Students who have picked up the Honor Students Society questionnaires on the quarter system are requested to return them as soon as possible to the Honor Students Society office in the Eshleman Hall basement or to the box in the Reserve Book Room of the Main Library. Students are asked to return questionnaires by today, although late questionnaires will be accepted through Friday. The questionnaires concern the major programs outlined in the Provisional Catalogue for 1966-67.

Copies of this catalogue are available in the periodicals room of the Main Library. Those having questions or wishing to help evaluate the questionnaires may contact Alice Singer (TH 9-2725) or Vivian Hara (TH 8-5900).

USIA Has Positions Available

The U.S. Information Agency now has openings for Grantees to man its Binational Center Program. Those interested may contact David Stewart, Educational Placement Officer, 2120 Oxford St. Specific vacancies exist in the following categories: administrator or director, director of courses, director of activities, and student affairs grantee. All positions require proved conversational and written fluency in Spanish, Portuguese or French.

Daily Cal Want Ads

READ AN USE THE WANT ADS

This newspaper fully supports University policy on housing. Therefore, classified advertising relating to housing is only available to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry. Individuals with a valid complaint concerning housing discrimination are asked to report the matter to 204 Eshleman Hall. The Daily Californian screens all classified ads. However, neither the newspaper nor the ASUC can be held responsible for misleading ads inserted. If there are any illegitimate complaints regarding ads, these will be withdrawn without further notice.

Outlook on Sex

'Part of Total Relationship'

The following is the third of a number of articles on homosexuals in an extended Daily Californian series on minorities — racial, sexual, political, and religious.

By KONSTANTIN BERLANDT
Feature Editor

The attitude of Cal students towards "sex in general" results in more bisexuality, according to one 24-year-old homosexual, a University student in the social sciences. "It's quite possible on this campus to talk someone into having sex," he said.

"But it's certainly not the usual cruising-pickup scene of other universities and cities — there's more bisexuality.

"... sex is part of the total relationship with other persons, to be enjoyed and not called 'sinning'."

He said he had had an affair with a woman this summer, "but girls don't generally excite me as much as boys. I don't tend to see a girl as being a sex object, though I can conceive of her as being one."

The Kinsey Report on the Sexual Behavior of the Human Male presents a sliding scale of homosexuality.

According to Kinsey, every other man has felt desire for or arousal by, another man.

One out of every three men has had at least one overt homosexual experience to the point of orgasm, and one out of every eight men has had a majority of his sexual experiences over at least a three year period between 16 and 55 with people of the same sex, Kinsey's report said.

One in ten men studied had most of their sexual experiences with men by choice rather than opportunity.

Kinsey found that only four men in 100 were entirely homosexual, never having had sex with women.

The University homosexual tried to explain the lack of obvious homosexuals here.

"My experience at another state university was that a majority of homosexuals were very weak intellectually," he said.

"They tended to devote more time and thought to the fact that they were homosexuals and to sex in general then they did to intellectual pursuits.

"The problem (of ignoring intellectual pursuits)," he said, "is involved with the change of 'coming out' as they say, some sort of traumatic experience."

"Coming out" is the entering of gay life and gay society. It is frequently combined with the self-classification that one is a homosexual and the inner-turmoil often generated by that admittance.

"I think it's possible for somebody here to have homosexual experiences but not go through this identity crisis," he continued.

"I can't conceive of somebody who is a student and who is interested in politics and social change — as Cal students are to a certain degree — ... all of a sudden going into the non-intellectual homosexual world, dominated by homosexual experiences.

"Therefore," the student said, "he won't become as set in the role of a homosexual as the person that finds out he's a homosexual and immediately moves into the homosexual underground world where other homosexuals convince him not to like women, etc."

He knew of no gay community at Cal. He admitted it was quite possible there was one, "but if it is, it's very well hidden."

There was "much more freedom," he said, "for the homosexual here within the student society where there is a much greater tendency to accept homosexuals as persons and not as part of a strange group of people who are deprived.

"Nevertheless the University is not a center of open homosexuality."

He added, "a lot of the obvious aspects of cruising may be drawn off to the city to a certain degree.

"It is possible to meet people on Telegraph," he said, "but it's a chance sort of thing.

"There's not a permanent group of people there all the time cruising. If you go to the City there's not the chance involved; within one evening you can easily meet somebody."
