Spidermen Vow Web-in

By ROGER FRIEDLAND

Spidermen are threatening to hold a "web-in" which they predict will have the administration climbing the walls before they're through.

A new student organization, The Royal Order of the Spidermen, is parodying campus political activity.

Spidermen are a group of students in Unit One residence halls who have banded together to formulate a solution to alleviate world conflict.

Ron Gordon, leader of the Spiderman hierarchy, said, "The purpose of our group is to perpetuate the ideals of Spiderman, friend of all, regardless of race, creed, color, and number of legs."

The real Spiderman stars in a comic book.

The group plans to stage a mass protest against Black Flag insect spray. Twelve thousand black widow spiders are expected to crawl down Telegraph to meet the Oakland police.

The protesters will chant, "Keep your bellies low to the ground and bite 'em in the leg," Gordon said, as he affectionately caressed the red hourglass emblazoned on his stomach.

Before the protest, Gordon said, the members will have a "web-in" inside Sproul Hall.

McIntosh Voted Rep-at-Large; Slate Loses Power in Senate

By CAROL LIEBMAN

Election results were announced (and some invalidated) last night after the smallest ASUC election in several years.

A total of 2605 undergraduates cast their votes for seven ASUC offices.

"It was a bad week for an election," Dave Engel, Elections Council chairman, said.

"People are tired of voting and they were probably scared off after the last election for Constitutional Convention delegates," he continued.

Engel originally announced three winners in the representative-at-large contest.

However, he later invalidated his announcement because of a mistake in calculating the required number of votes necessary for election.

Dan McIntosh, the top vote gatherer was the only one of thirteen candidates for rep-at-large to get the necessary 1137 votes.

Engel said there will be a runoff election Thursday and Friday among the next four top vote-getters on the list: Roosevelt Williams, Henry Weinstein (Slate), John Simmons (Slate) and Bruce Henstell (Slate).

In other contests Pete Benjaminson won men's residence hall representative position, Mike Smith (Slate) is Commuter-Independent Representative, Tom Surh (Slate) is Men's Co-op and Small Approved Living Group Representative.

There will also be a run-off election for sorority representative between Bari Bradner and Carol More.

Henry Miller was elected Head Yell Leader. Alceste Pappas ran unopposed for Associated Women Students chairman.

Before this election the Senate was precariously balanced between nine Slate senators and nine non-Slate senators.

If Slate takes both seats in the representative-at-large run-off election they will be outnumbered eleven to seven on the Senate. If they lose one seat they will be outnumbered two to one.

ASUC President Jerry Goldstein blamed part of the small vote cast on the speaker bans voted by the presidents of dorms in Units II and III.

"It's hypocritical and ludicrous and I'm disappointed in the dorm councils," Goldstein said last night.

Their actions "will make a future elections a farce," he added.

This will be especially important for the ratification of the new ASUC Constitution, Goldstein said.

Anouilh Play To Be Given

By ALISON SCHOENFELD

Don't expect Pere Noel and French carols at the Cercle Francais Christmas program today.

Instead there will be a Dauphin harried by his mother-in-law and songs of praise for Joan of Arc.

The Cercle Francais is presenting excerpts from Jean Anouilh's "L'Alouette," a play about Joan of Arc.

The cast is made up of students.

"L'Alouette" is being presented at 4 p.m. in 155 Dwinelle. There is no admission charge.

Many of the students have never acted before, and, although all are enrolled in French courses, at present a lengthy speech by the Archbishop of France is quite a different matter from a class discussion.

The play is directed by Mme. Marie-Louis Dufrenoy who teaches French here. One of her classes was studying "L'Alouette" and so she suggested Cercle Francais take on a more extensive production.

Genevieve Smith, president of the group, plays Joan. French is her native language so that aspect of the play presents no problem. She said, however, she and the Dauphin have been rehearsing every day for a month.

Senate Supports Suds

Beer Permit to Be Sought

The ASUC Senate last night made a first step towards having beer on campus.

The Senate also allocated $400 to the Constitutional Convention and placed $4400 back in the Senate operating budget.

"SUDS"

The motion on "Suds" directed ASUC President Jerry Goldstein to ask the Board of Regents for permission to apply for a license to sell beer on campus.

If the permission is granted, a request for a license will be filed with the Alcoholic Beverage Commission for permission to sell beer in the Bear's Lair or other suitable place.

If that permission is granted, a section of the Lair, or whatever place is chosen, would be set aside for persons over 21 years old.

NOT LEGAL?

Dean Arleigh Williams said he did not think it was legal for a student organization to have a license, but indicated his willingness for the Senate to pass the motion and try anyway.

Dean Williams said he thought the Lair might already be too crowded, and that there might be a problem of I.D.'s.

He added he "liked beer" and was not opposed to it.

MANY OTHERS

Men's Residence Hall Rep Steve Cornet (Slate), the originator of the motion, said there were many other schools which allowed beer on campus. The University of Wisconsin was one, he said.

It was pointed out that the "beer lobby" is very powerful in Wisconsin, and that the legal age for drinking beer was only 18.

The Senate also voted to allot $400 for the Constitutional Convention to pay for supplies, secretarial work, and other basic expenses.

RIDER

Originally attached to the expenditure for the Convention was a rider requesting the Convention to adopt a particular procedure for ratification of the constitution draft that was arrived at. The rider was first introduced in the Finance Committee.

It was defeated by the Senate, but assurances were given unofficially that such a method would be urged shortly after Christmas vacation.

The proposed plan for ratification is the same one now in effect for a constitutional amendment. It requires a two-thirds affirmative vote on the proposed constitution.

A ban on all banquets and retreats by student groups was passed by the Senate in order to place funds back into the depleted operating reserve.

This does not mean no more banquets and retreats will be held this semester, only that they will not be subsidized by the Senate.

Affected groups included the Pelican, Daily Californian, Blue and Gold, and several other groups.

The operating budget had been depleted for a number of reasons, most of which were unavoidable and unexpected, according to Vice President Tim Lyons, chairman of the Senate's Finance Committee.

He said the reserve was somewhere between minus $300 and plus $1000.

In addition to the $3000 saved on banquets and retreats, $1400 was returned by the Union Program Board. The money had been allocated for summer activities, and was not used.

No Decision on Women's Pants

No official action came from a meeting held yesterday between the Dean's Office and presidents of University Women's dormitories on whether girls can wear pants while eating dinner in the dorms.

The problem is now up to the Deans Office, according to Sue Meyer, chairman of the New Dress Standards Committee.

Mrs. Betty Neely, associate dean of students, who was at the meeting, had no comment yesterday on the matter.

Louis Lomax to Talk Today On 'Integration Into What?'

Louis Lomax, author, television personality, and lecturer will speak at noon today in Pauley Ballroom. His topic will be "Integration into What?"

A reception will follow at 1 p.m. in Stephens Room of the Student Union.

In one of his books, entitled "The Negro Revolt," Lomax wrote that "Whatever the Negro is, he is an American. Whatever he is to become — integrated, unintegrated — he will become it in America... Our lot is irrevocably cast, and whatever future awaits the Negro, awaits America."

He went on to say, "The ultimate goal of the Negro revolt is when a Negro will stand or fall on his own merits, neither hindered nor helped by the fact that he is a Negro."

Lomax now has his own weekly television show in Los Angeles on Sunday evenings.

Quarter Change Criticism Aired

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Assemblyman Leo Ryan, D-South San Francisco, Tuesday criticized the Coordinating Council for Higher Education's recommendation that state colleges speed up conversion to year-around operation.

Ryan, chairman of an Assembly subcommittee that studied year-around operations last year called the council's suggestion "hasty and ill-conceived judgment."

The council on Monday urged the 18 state colleges to convert by 1971, four years ahead of the previous deadline for the change.

"The legislature is in full support of year-around operation of the campuses of the University of California and the California State Colleges," said Ryan, "but a massive overhaul... such as this, can only be accomplished by careful planning."

News from the Wire

Indonesia's Currency Value Slashed

JAKARTA, Indonesia—Merchants closed their stores in the Jakarta market and near panic broke out among the people yesterday after the government announced it is slashing the face value of Indonesia's currency.

Radio Jakarta broadcast repeated appeals to the population to remain calm and to shopkeepers to reopen. Development Minister Chaerul Saleh warned merchants not to raise their prices and threatened to punish those who did under the subversion act, which provides for capital punishment.

The government announced it will issue a new rupiah worth 1,000 of those now in circulation in an effort to deal with the country's rising inflation.

Rusk Speaks at NATO

PARIS—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk called yesterday for greater Allied understanding and support of the American war effort in Vietnam and warned that the fate of the North Atlantic Alliance might be decided on the distant battlefields there.

The American secretary of state told the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign, finance and defense ministers that a Communist success in Vietnam might lead to new Communist adventures elsewhere.

British Defense Minister Denis Healey, deputizing for ailing Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, supported Rusk's argument.

Rusk said U.S. commitments in various parts of the world to halt the spread of communism represent a "main pillar of peace."

Rusk asked the Allies to provide doctors and engineers for Vietnam. This apparently was an appeal for a psychological demonstration of support. Further, Rusk urged the NATO Allies to give their sympathy for what the United States was doing in Southeast Asia and to end any carping and criticism.

US Proposes Peace Service

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The United States proposed yesterday the creation of a United Nations peace service including international trouble-shooters to provide the world with a substitute for war.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg made the proposal in a speech to the General Assembly's Special Political Committee. U.S. sources stressed that Goldberg regarded the proposal as basic to progress in disarmament and the search for world peace.

He spoke in support of a British resolution calling for appointment of a high-level committee representative of all U.N. members to study the problem of facilitating settlement of international disputes.

In a clear reference to Vietnam, he said that the United States had an unconditional commitment to seek a peaceful settlement even though armed conflict had broken out.

Grape Boycott Planned

DELANO—A national boycott of grapes and grape products from the Delano area is being mapped by striking grape pickers as the bitter dispute nears its 100th day.

United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther will help mark the day tomorrow when he visits the strike area.

Two groups are leading the strike, demanding recognition of the unions as bargaining agents for the grape workers, a minimum hourly wage of $1.40 and more pay for piecework.

Growers have refused to meet with union representatives, claiming they don't actually represent bonafide workers.

The boycott will be aimed at such grape by-products as wines, jams and jellies as well as the grapes themselves, Sal Gonzales, local manager of the Farm Workers Association, said.

He predicted that the picket lines around fields outside this community in the southern end of California's Central Valley will swell next weekend with the arrival of college students who have volunteered to spend their holiday vacations aiding the strikers.

Johnson Meets Pakistani President

WASHINGTON—Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan flew into Washington yesterday calling for full U.S. support for a settlement of his country's Kashmir conflict with India.

The Asian leader, here for two days of conferences with President Johnson and other officials, was responding to a White House welcoming address in which Johnson voiced confidence the talks will bring the world a step closer to peace and stability.

All-Student Jazz Group

The all-student Lee Schipper Quintet will perform modern jazz at noon today in Hertz Hall. "It is the first jazz concert in Hertz Hall," Schipper said. He calls it "Bop Until Today" because "we've tried to include some representative jazz standards from various schools of modern jazz."

Tomorrow's concert is one of a series of noon Wednesday concerts which feature a wide range of music from ancient times to the twentieth century.

Included in the program will be compositions by John Lewis (pianist in the Modern Jazz Quartet), Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis, Sonny Rollins and Thelonius Monk.

The quintet will also play a Bach fugue containing both the master's writing and the group's improvisation.

Schipper's group has appeared all around the area, including the Sproul Hall steps last spring to promote jazz and Pauley Ballroom to promote Occident, campus literary magazine.

Schipper hopes that by playing a lot on campus the group can attract student jazz musicians' interest in a jazz ensemble.

He is trying to organize a

Berkeley Jazz Society, an informal group of student jazz musicians which could form a big band of 17 pieces and then smaller groups such as sextets and nonets.

"This kind of musical set-up allows performers a chance to play and arrangers and composers a chance to write and hear their arrangements and compositions," Schipper said.

"Ultimately," he said, "this gives the students and general public a chance to hear what the young jazz musicians around here are doing."

Schipper described jazz as a very important part of American culture.

"There is really support for live jazz; it's just a matter of organizing people to play," he continued.

"Of course, we would hope to work as closely as possible with the music department and any interested campus organizations in presenting modern jazz to the public," Schipper said.

Schipper said UCLA has such an ensemble which has very wide support, including financial support for purchasing music and traveling to festivals.

He said there were jazz festivals at the University of Kansas, Notre Dame, the University of Indiana, and San Francisco State.

Schipper added he had high hopes of a jazz festival here sometime in the future.

Schipper wants to build the ensemble from the core of the five members of the quintet: Peter Marshall on bass, a sophomore in anthropology; Bob Claire on tenor and flute, a sophomore in French; Mike Thatcher on piano who will be a graduate in English next semester; George Newcom from Merritt College on drums.

Schipper, a junior in physics and music, plays the vibes.

He said the group needs a University student jazz drummer and a trumpet or trombone player who has played jazz before so that the group could compete in festivals.

The group is also interested in composers or arrangers of jazz.

Athletes' Paradise Under Shadow of Sather Tower

By John Rodgers

CAL—THE GREATEST: If you were an athlete and had a choice of any school on the west coast to attend, why would you come to the University of California?

It is a universal fact that not only is it harder to get into Cal than most other west coast universities, it also isn't the easiest place to remain in.

Although Cal has had great athletic teams in the past, recent teams haven't been quite up to par as far as win-loss records are concerned. But athletic greatness goes around in circles. It has been at California in the past and will return.

So we have a situation of high academic standards and, presently, mediocre athletic prowess. Now if you were either Rick Bennett or Jerry Woods, two of the most sought-after football players in the state last year, why would you come to Cal.

Jerry Woods was an outstanding athlete at Sonora High School where he was the football team's star, playing linebacker on defense and offensive end. He was also the best shot-putter in Northern California, as he heaved the lead ball 62-5.

Jerry Woods came to Cal for three reasons: First was Cal's athletic program, second was Cal's academic standing, and third was family-type reasons.

"The chief reason I came here," said the 6-2, 210 pounder, "was because of the Cal coaches, who I am sure are going to build a Rose Bowl team in the near future."

Not only was Jerry impressed by the football coaching staff, but also by track coach Sam Bell who visited Jerry while the mentor was still up at Oregon State University.

Jerry also likes the Berkeley atmosphere: "UCLA and USC (two other schools he received offers from) are right in the middle of the city. Berkeley is a university town."

He also thinks Cal is one of the finest academic institutions in the nation.

And the family reasons for his coming here—his dad is an alum, and this always helps.

Rick Bennett is about the same size as Jerry, 6-1, 205, but he is a halfback—the best the state has produced in years.

Cal sports publicist Bob Steiner says that Rick is "very, very quick and possesses great balance and agility."

At Selma High School, Rick electrified the central valley by scoring 27 touchdowns in nine games, and rushing at 11 yards per carry.

Rick Bennett's story of why he came to Cal is as exciting as his running. Committed to attend Stanford because of a letter of intent he signed and mailed in to the conference, he changed his mind near the end of the summer and at the risk of losing a year of eligibility, he enrolled at Cal.

Rick lost his year of eligibility, fortunately his freshman year, but he is still glad he made California his choice:

"I like the set-up they have here. You can't beat it academically and the coaches are great."

Political activity is as much a part of Cal as is the Campanile, but coaches from other schools make it look like it is the only thing that goes on in Berkeley.

"Other schools play up the demonstrations and make it tough to recruit here," Bennett reports, "but I think the athlete is looked up to at Cal because he is not the typical dumb-jock type."

Rick's reason for changing at the last minute was that he decided he likes Cal's coaches better than any others "and I thought I'd be happier here . . . and I am."

Here we have the reasons of two top athletes on why they came to Cal, and the San Francisco Examiner reported the thinking of a high school star as he is in the process of trying to decide where to go.

The athlete is Mike Holmgren, 6-4, 220-pound quarterback from San Francisco who many people think is better than Craig Morton was at the same time.

Part of his interview is as follows:

Exam: What do you look for in a college that would make you want to attend that college?

MH: Campus has quite a bit to do with it, but most of all if it has a good department of what I am going to be interested in, and this is what I will base most of my decision on.

Though Holmgren is a long way from choosing any college to attend, this just shows the thoughts that concern him as an athlete-scholar.

And that is what most of the athletes at Cal are also. They must have a 3.0 grade point average to get into Cal, or UCLA, whereas it varies in private schools like Stanford and USC, and is lower at the northern schools, Washington, Oregon State, etc.

In order to get a scholarship that offers room, board and tuition, without the usual 250 hours/semester work that is required of all athletes on scholarships at all AAWU universities, Cal offers the Wheeler award.

Other conference schools also have a similar type award but except for UCLA and Cal, you must have a 3.25 whereas the others may accept a 3.0.

So here we have the University of California at Berkeley. Its location, its coaching, and its academics all combine to offer the athlete a beautiful reason for attending Cal.

Boalt Whips Theta Delts For All-U Championship

By JAY BERNSTEIN

Led by the accurate left arm of quarterback John Wells and the fine receiving of Chip Miles and Jim Grube, Boalt No. 1 copped the All-U football crown yesterday by the count of 26-18 over Theta Delta Chi on Kleeberger Field.

Whenever the Boalt offensive machine seemed to be stalled, Wells either threw a safety-valve pass to the left flat to Grube or hit Miles short and up the middle. On the day, Grube had four receptions good for 83 yards, and Miles took in five passes for 40 yards. Even with the cold air on the hill, Wells was able to complete 21 passes for over 175 yards.

The ball was exchanged twice before either offense could mount a sustained drive. Theta Delta Chi pushed across the initial tally on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Dan Miller to halfback Don Anderson. However, the lawyers retaliated quickly, capping their drive with a three-yard pass to Dick Horgan.

The Theta Delts pushed across another six points on a 15-yard pass from Miller to center Tom Perkins. But again Boalt tied the score, this time on a 15-yard pass to halfback Chet Henshaw.

The first half scoring ended as Miller tossed an 18-yard pass to Perkins in the right flat.

With the score 18-12, Boalt scored the first time they got their hands on the ball in the second half. Wells hit Miles on a 19-yard pass for the score. Wells passed to Bill Schroeder for the only successful conversion of the day.

The final touchdown of the game was accounted for midway through the second half as Wells threw the swing pass to Grube, good for 23 yards and six points.

The Boalt defensive secondary gave nothing to Miller and the Theta Delts in the second half. Other than the 20 yards gained on runs by Miller, Boalt gave up merely five yards in the air on two completed passes.

Invade San Jose Tonight

Cubs Shoot For Fifth Win

By SUSAN ALLEN

An aggressive pack of Cal Cubs will go for their fifth victory in six outings tonight against the San Jose State College freshmen. The contest starts at 7 p.m. on the Spartan floor.

The UC Frosh hoopsters have already progressed beyond early expectations. Opposition, like San Francisco City College, looking for a weak fight from a small team with no outstanding high school stars, has repeatedly been surprised.

The Cal team comes on with extra hustle and an aggressive attitude to demoralize the taller, star-studded teams, "no matter how good they are," according to Frosh assistant coach Denny Vollum.

Personnel-wise, the Bear Cub regulars are an evenly-balanced unit. Guard Don Johnson features strong drives and lay-ups, and moves well under the basket. Guard Eric Davidson and forwards Geoff Anderson and Gary Heath are consistent scorers from the outside. Among the regulars, they have the top three field goal percentages. Heath leads with .595.

Center Wayne Stewart adds height—6-7—and rebounding talent—47 in five games. For his size, Stewart displays surprising agility and aggressiveness.

There is also plenty of reserve strength, particularly in Chris DeConde, whom Vollum credits as "the finest hustler on the floor." More power from the bench is included in 6-2 forward Mark Larson and tight-shooting 5-11 guard Dayle Carlson.

A major asset is Coach Jim Padgett—"He's optimistic and the players like to work for him. He's great at getting the guys to perform their best as a team, not just as players. Saturday night against San Francisco was a good example of this," said Vollum.

Padgett, currently on a scouting expedition for varsity mentor Rene Herrerias, is turning over the reins to Vollum for tonight's game.

The starting lineup will include Stewart, Heath, Davidson, Johnson and Anderson. Vollum expects the SJS team to be bigger—"everybody else except Santa Clara has been bigger than us"—and the Cal frosh will have to display their customary aggressiveness. "We lost to Santa Clara because of our mental attitude," Vollum said, "and we can't let down tonight like we did then."

Madrid University Students March

A repetition of last year's bitter street fighting at the University of Madrid—this time with a page taken from the tactics of the FSM—erupted over the weekend in Spain.

The Spanish government moved to enforce a decree putting all student organizations and publications under the State-controlled "Student Syndicate," and sparked a recurrence of smoldering opposition in the university.

Original announcement of the decree last year was a prime cause of the student riots which engulfed all of Spain's major universities.

Early last week students marched from the campus towards downtown Madrid to protest against the Syndicate, the all-powerful "student union" whose officers are appointed by the government.

Police dispersed the march and arrested an unknown number of students near the spot where last February they had fired into a similar demonstration with sub-machineguns.

(In Spain the ordinary police carry no arms, while the State police carry automatic weapons.)

Friday, angry students began what was to be a 24-hour hunger strike and sit-in at the administration building.

The police were ordered in, arresting some of the demonstrators and confiscating the student identity cards of the others.

(Spanish students rely on these cards for subsidized lower prices enabling them to attend the university on low budgets—the loss of the card means considerable monetary sacrifice.)

The next morning police battled some 200 students milling outside the chancellor's residence demanding they be allowed to turn in their identity cards in protest against the seizures.

Central issue in the demonstrations was, as it was last year, the Party-dominated "Syndicate's" control over all student journals, newspapers, and organizations.

The protestors demanded either free elections of officers to the Syndicate or the right to organize outside it.

The New York Times put the number of demonstrators at "only a few hundred" but said they "had the sympathies of a large number of others."

(In Spain the maximum penalty for agitation against the Falangist government is death, so observers feel a much greater number of students may sympathize with the protestors than is evinced by the size of the demonstrations.)

Correction

Ned Averback, Alumni Representative to the ASUC Senate, said he was paraphrased incorrectly in a story yesterday on the ASUC Financial Committee meeting.

Averback said he thinks the Senate should have no control over the Constitutional Convention.

However, he said, the Convention should have some method of ratifying the new constitution—namely Article 11 of the existing constitution.

"See thru" Tankards

At the Pub in olden days, the cavalier had to keep a sharp lookout for an enemy who, under the guise of a friendly drink, might surprise him. The transparent bottom enabled him to be ever ready to unsheath his sword and jump to action.

Or to wink a message to a beamish barmaid on whom he had an eye.

Here are 4 such tankards in silvertone finish. Each one 20 oz., and decorated with one of the fun-loving Hamm's designs below. Use order form for one or more sets.

Convention in Pauley Tonite

The ASUC Constitutional Convention will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in Pauley Ballroom.

This will be the last meeting before the winter recess.

Certain to be discussed are the proposals of the preamble committee. There have been three potential preambles submitted, and a fourth is scheduled for submission to the Convention tonight.

The temporary committee (Tom Brougham, Mike Lerner, and Jerry Goldstein) created to recommend the criteria for acceptance by the Convention of its own final proposed draft, is expected to make its report at the meeting.

It is also expected that the question of finances will be a major topic of discussion.

Registration for Sorority Rush

The Panhellenic Association has announced the opening of registration for sorority Spring Formal Rush, which will begin Feb. 4 and end Feb. 11.

Registration will continue until Feb. 2. Those interested in registering should contact the Panhellenic Association in care of the Dean of Students, 201 Sproul

Constitutional Convention

There will be a plenary meeting of the Convention at 7:30 p.m. today in Pauley Ballroom.

The Activities and Services Committee will meet at 6 p.m. today in 303 Eshleman Hall to discuss the scope and financing of future ASUC activities.

The Structures Committee will meet at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in 505 Eshleman Hall, now the Convention office.

Members of the Communications committee are asked to communicate with the committee chairman.

The first is a series of lectures and discussions on student government will be held at 3 p.m. today in Pauley Ballroom.

The series, sponsored by the Convention, is designed to inform delegates and students of alternative views of the nature and purpose of student government.

The topic of this first program is "Student Unions in Other Countries." Speakers will be Bernardo A. E. Garcia of Cuba, Tristan Ghertman of France, Carlos Dantas of Brazil, Maximo Dickmann of Argentina and Antonio Cova of Venezuela. Open to all.

Gardner thinks so, and Tuesday some university officials were inclined to agree.

Others, however, said the secretary was talking through his hat—at least, as far as their own schools were concerned.

The idea that many gifted students are receiving a sort of academic "antileadership vaccine" was advanced by Gardner in an essay made public Monday.

A spot survey brought this reaction:

Russell J. Jalbert, vice president for university affairs at Boston University, thought Gardner ought to take a closer look at the halls of academe.

"In any college peer group, no matter what the size, those willing to assume the risks of leadership arise," declared Jalbert.

Norman Topping, president of the University of Southern California, said "I think the secretary's generalization is pretty broad."

"There are many attempts to provide opportunities for student leadership through student government, student activities and political organizations within the campus, all trying to do what he is talking about," said Topping.

Dean John U. Monro of Harvard described Gardner's essay as "a useful warning and generalization."

"Society has a tendency to make people feel as though they don't count, and educational institutions must counteract it," said the dean. "However, universities are training leaders in many areas."

Radio KAL

The chances are getting better and better that Radio KAL will get its long desired FM license.

However, the only way Radio KAL currently can afford to obtain an FM license is to apply through the University Board of Regent for an educational license. Ultimately, then, the Regents would be responsible for the Radio station's broadcasts. It would be up to the Board to see that the station stays within FCC and National Association of Broadcasters regulations, which, among other things, demand equal time for varying opinions and also prohibit libel.

Such responsibility will probably mean the Board will want to exercise some control over the station—or delegate such control to the Chancellor.

Since a radio station is a news medium as well as an entertainment medium, and as a news medium would like to broadcast editorials occasionally, the prospect of control is not pleasant.

The license has not yet been granted—the Chancellor has not even requested the Regents to ask for the license. It is not certain now if the Chancellor will request the license, although we believe he probably will. Amid the negotiations for the acquisition of the license, we urge the radio station to carefully consider the problems of University control.

Fairly adequate safe-guards can be set up to insure a good deal of independence for the student operators of Radio KAL. Authority over the Daily Californian, for instance, is so delegated that there is no interference with the operation of the newspaper from the University.

This is not to say that the University has never been tempted to control the student newspaper. The Board of Regents would ultimately be responsible in a libel suit. But, the ultimate power over the newspaper has been delegated to a student-dominated Publishers Board, removing the control of the news medium from the hands of the news sources.

Such an arrangement has been partially devised in the case of Radio KAL. A Radio Policy Board has been established to advise the Chancellor on the problems of obtaining an FM license and establishing an FM station. The Board, with minor alterations, may become the Radio's ultimate governing board if the station receives its license.

Currently the Board has a majority of non-students. It is composed of four students and five representatives from the University, according to KAL manager Bob Kennedy.

We hope the students on the board make the need for freedom from University control very plain and work with the other members of the board to devise a method of insuring this freedom—and then recommend such a method to the Chancellor.

Although Kennedy believes that the eventual governing board of the Station will be a revised Radio Policy Board, we hope the revisions will be significant.

To govern a student radio station, a student-controlled board is mandatory. The board must be given all powers not reserved to the station managers themselves, except perhaps finances.

Of course, the ideal situation would be complete freedom for the station. This apparently isn't possible if the station is to obtain a license through the University. We wonder if the radio managers are really considering the problem of University control. We have seen no evidence of such concern. We urge them to consider what they are bargaining for.

A news medium should fight fiercely to maintain its freedom, or it is worthless—no matter who hears it or how much equipment it has. It is possible for Radio KAL to obtain the FM license, and also insure basic autonomy. It would be a complete lack of responsibility if they did not fight to maintain that basic freedom of the press.

Letters to the Ice Box

A Convenience

To the Ice Box:

I would like to answer the two gentlemen who so "nicely" expressed their views on the pants proposal in the Ice Box. They do not seem to understand exactly what the new rules will entail. The new standards will not be abused. The girls are fully supporting the new proposal and are cognizant of the fact that this involves adhering to the regulations. For the few unanticipated infringements, there will be an enforcement policy and penalties imposed.

Also, "the lazy, ugly dogs who don't give a damn about their appearance" in fact care a great deal about how they look. Wearing capris to dinner is a convenience, not an excuse to look sloppy. There is no reason why girls will stop trying to look attractive just because they are wearing pants: actually the rushed procedure of throwing on a dress for dinner will be eliminated, and the girls may even look better. Girls who know they do not present the most flattering appearance in slacks will undoubtedly continue to wear dresses.

A lady who cares about her image is a lady all the way through—whether she is attired in capris or a formal. There is no reason that the ladies of Spens-Black will cease to exist when they put on their pants for dinner, and a real gentleman ought to be able to see this.

—Sue Meyers
Chairman of the pants committee.

Uninformed

To the Ice Box:

I was disturbed last week by the proliferation on campus of leaflets advertising a movie about the so-called "Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN)," a guerrilla group fighting the freely elected government of Venezuela.

Being a Venezuelan, I was naturally upset and wanted to find out who at Cal was supporting an insurrection in my country. I therefore had a conversation with a girl who was distributing these leaflets, in order to find out a few things about the Y.S.A., the group who sponsored the showing of this film.

It is thus easy to imagine my astonishment at the fact that this young lady, who so glibly advocates revolution in my country, freely admitted to knowing very little about Venezuela and its government.

She did not even know who the current president was . . .

—G. Muller
Junior, Biochem.

'Gentlemen'

To the Ice Box:

The "gentlemen" who attacked the "ladies" for the mode of attire which they favor might consider their own mode of attire at the dorm meals. Does a gentleman come to dinner in the levis and sweatshirt in which he has just played an afternoon of football? The odor emanating from these "gentlemen" has a far greater effect upon the enjoyment of one's food than does visual stimuli; i.e.: it is well established that odor is directly related to the taste of food. We realize that this is a small number of "gentlemen"; similarly, it is a very small number of the "ladies" involved who are "the lazy, ugly dogs that (sic) don't give a damn about

We Shall Overcome

Politics of Sin

By DON HACKETT

Just for fun, try an experiment: start a conversation with someone, and turn it to politics; find an issue the person has strong feelings about and disagree with him—the best issues being Civil Rights (though this is a little out right now), Vietnam, and censorship and morality. The odds are that you will soon find out that you are a bigot and a fascist, a baby-murderer and a fascist, or a brainwasher and a fascist (if the person is left); or a race mixer and a Communist, a coward and a Communist, or a pervert and a Communist (if the person is right.)

The point of this? Well, it's sort of fun watching someone blowing his cool. But this aside, the whole idea is to get a point across better than words can, to beat you over the head with and let you know what's happening. So, if you have time, go out and do this, and you can skip the next paragraph.

If you don't have time, or you've read everything else in the Daily Rag and the lecture still hasn't started, I'll tell you. You can't disagree with anyone hardly without him thinking you're immoral. I've seen someone called sick just because he thought that there was nothing wrong with Mexicans picking American tomatoes; I've been called psychopath by a professor who had never seen me before in my life just because I was sitting on the Goldwater table; I've seen someone called a degenerate because he didn't think Henry Miller should be banned; I've seen someone called a Communist because he didn't think the author's signature on the Kennedy half-dollar was really a hammer and sickle; and I've seen—but I don't want to bore you with another "I've seen"; think of your own.

So, with everyone back together, we continue by observing that this isn't confined to little old ladies in tennis shoes, or out patients from Napa, but extends everywhere, up to and especially intellectuals. And so last year you got the spectacle of a Presidential election waged on the level of Johnson wants to turn the country over to the commies and Goldwater wants to sprinkle Strontium 90 in little girls' ice-cream cones.

The rules of proper scholarship require that I now sit down and bore you with a history of this problem and trace it back to the Manicheans or Thomas Aquinas, but I can't and I don't want to.

What I want to do is tell you to stop doing this, and tell your friends and neighbors to stop doing this, and maybe they'll tell their friends and neighbors and before too long we'll be able to talk to each other and wouldn't that be nice. And besides, I'm getting sick and tired of all you commie perverts calling me names.

Symphony Performance Promising

By PETE STENBERG

As their second program of the year the San Francisco Symphony under Joseph Krips offered five orchestral pieces taken from Wagner's "Lohengrin," "Parsifal" and "Gotterdammerung" and Richard Strauss' tone-poem, "Ein Heldenleben." One came away wishing that the emphasis had been reversed for Krips proved to be a magnificent Strauss conductor while there were definite lapses in the Wagner.

Perhaps the program itself was partly to blame. Five consecutive works of Wagner's most mystical, pretentious music leads to a certain monotony of tonal structures and harmonies. Certainly a great deal of this is beautiful, moving, even spectacular music, but there is no great change in sound between the prelude of "Lohengrin" and the prelude of "Parsifal." On the other hand, a whole world lies between "Heldenleben" and the orchestration to Strauss' "Four Last Songs."

Krips and the orchestra seemed to lose direction, especially in the Good Friday Spell music from "Parsifal," where the pulse of the work was not clearly stated by Wagner through dynamic markings or constant beat. This led to a lack of electricity and a general feeling of unexcitement until the return of more evidently spectacular motives. Only in the prelude to "Lohengrin," which was given a very eloquent and moving reading by Krips, and Siegfried's death music from "Gotterdammerung" was interest maintained throughout.

This all seemed to be an introduction to the Strauss work, which stood alone after the intermission. "Heldenleben" is a virtuoso orchestra piece, its moods funning from the vital youthful braggadocio of the battle scene to the very quiet lyricism of the violin solo in the love scene. The conductor must be able to maintain the driving force of the work, while allowing the lyrical respites to attain their full beauty. This Krips achieved to perfection and the orchestra really rose to the call.

All the lack of precision and dynamic control was brought into focus in the hero's journey through life. The power of the challenge scenes was beautifully counterbalanced by the virtuoso violin playing of concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick. The orchestral sound is very fine and there is power to spare. This should be a big year for Straussophiles with three more Strauss works on the bill, for this is a topnotch Strauss conductor and orchestra.

Perhaps a word should be added about the price and availability of tickets, for many students are scared away from the opera house permanently during the opera season. But the situation is much more reasonable with the symphony. Tickets are available and the prices range from $4.50 for the orchestra to $2.50 for balcony. In view of some of the outstanding upcoming programs, this is a real bargain. There is also a half-price season ticket for students.

Spidermen Threaten 'Web-in,' Spin Plans for Protest March

Gordon, known by his co-workers as the "Imperial Black Widow," said his organization has supporters throughout the world. He believes their strongest ally is the Royal Order of the Pink-Bellied Daddy Long Legs centered in North Vietnam.
The group plans to sell pickled spider webs to University students in order to raise enough money to send venom to Asian Spiders.
All members are expected to contribute according to their capabilities, Brook Patterson, treasurer of the group, said.
The highly secretive movement plans to lay poisonous webs across the Black Flag stockpile in Oakland if production rates there continue to soar, Gordon said.
When asked about their position on the upcoming ASUC election, Gordon said, "We oppose further entrenchment of Slate into the University political structure."

"Slate, to us, represents the pseudo-image of intellectualism of the petty, bureaucratic, bourgeois pest exterminators."
"Furthermore," he said, "we endorse a more humane alternative to birth control: random distribution of black-widow spider eggs into Gerber's Baby Foods."
Lynette Crapuchettes, fashion designer for the group, said the well-dressed Spiderman owns a pair of official spider shoes for climbing up walls. She added, "They're cheaper by the eight."
So when you hear the rhythmic chant, ". . . front left, front right, middle center, back right, left back . . ." it's the Spidermen as they march to save the world or something.

A lecture on Irish and American literature, will be given at 8:15 p.m. today in 145 Dwinelle Hall.
Benedict Keily, Irish author, journalist, and authority on various aspects of Irish culture and politics, will speak on "Mary Lavin and Flannery O'Connor: Green Island and Red South."
Born and educated in Ireland, he has become increasingly well known as a novelist, short story writer and literary journalist since the 1940s.
He is a Council Member of the Irish Academy of Letters and has lectured extensively in the United States. Currently, he is a visiting professor of creative writing at the University of Oregon.
Thomas Flanagan, associate professor of English, an authority on Irish Literature will introduce Keily. The lecture is being sponsored by the Department of English and the Committee on Arts and Lectures.

Open Discussion About Christmas

"The Meaning of Christmas in a World Where God Is Dead" is the title of an open discussion to be held at noon tomorrow in the Tan Oak Room, 406 Student Union.

"This is something new and experimental," said David Chance, chairman of the Educational Commission of the University Church Council.

"Perhaps people might find some benefit in gaining a perspective on this subject," he added. Readings from Nietzsche and Hemingway, interspersed with recordings of Dylan Thomas's "Christmas Carol" and Ramsey Lewis, will precede the discussion.

Play, Film Probe Social Problems

Jack Gelber's "The Connection" will be presented by Campus Progressive Labor at 7:30 p.m. today in 155 Dwinelle Hall. "The Connection" is an improvised play dealing with dope addiction.

Also to be shown is a film short, "People," which is an observation of life and people that results in criticism of contemporary society.

French Classes to Give Anouilh's 'L'Allouette'

Peter Flinders plays the Dauphin. "I've learned a lot more French during the last month," he said.
He'd never acted before and didn't think he could, Flinders said until Mme. Defrenoy suggested he take the part.
The pomp of the French court will be reflected not only in the language but in the costumes designed by drama professor Henry May.

The play opens with the scene in which Joan hears voices. Then the Dauphin becomes the center of attention as he is argued over by his mistress, wife and mother-in-law. Joan comes in and identifies the Dauphin although a page has been put on the throne.
Probably the most demanding scene in the play is the dialogue between Joan and the Dauphin in which she persuades him to be crowned.
The climax comes with the crowning itself when not a word is spoken. Then there is a song in praise of Joan and France. Fin.

Aided by these program notes and with the knowledge that this is a distinguished play, "L'Allouette" could be worth seeing even if you don't understand French.

Cornell Calls For Talent

ITHACA, NY (CPS)—Last year, Cornell University announced it would institute a special program with a highly selected group of students who would move from the freshman year through to a Ph.D. in six years—cutting about three years off the traditional course.

Last week, the school launched a nationwide search for 40 superior students to commit themselves to the program when they enter Cornell next fall.

In the talent search, the call for students who are able to read two languages, have "some acquaintance with calculus," rank near the top of their class, and know they want a Ph.D.—even if they don't know in what field.

As a new grad, do you know where you want to be 15 years from now?

As a Pan Am Range Professional on the ETR you'll have a pretty good idea after the first year or so. Pan Am is responsible for specifying almost all the range instrumentation hardware and systems for the nation's space and missile launches at the Eastern Test Range. It's a vast technological operation giving you exposure to a great diversity of advanced tracking, telemetry, communications, data handling and display systems which will help you choose—in a fairly short time—where your career interests lie.

Even when you do decide, you aren't tied to your first area of discipline. Quite the contrary. The nature of the new range technology produces—and Pan Am encourages—a multi-disciplined individual who works in many specialties (radar, telemetry, electrical, optics, command/control, timing, hydraulics, statistics, infrared, orbital mechanics, structures, air conditioning, instrumentation, communications and many others).

At the onset you have several main directions open to you.

You may find that systems engineering is what you're best qualified for. In our Engineering Group, you'll be developing specifications for range instrumentation systems, evaluating bids from industry, providing technical guidance for future development, monitoring manufacture and installation, and phasing systems into operational status.

Or you may be best suited to the front line as an Operations Engineer—a real-time monitor of vehicle flight performance at one of the down-range tracking stations from the Bahamas to the Indian Ocean, or on one of the fleet of advanced range instrumentation ships.

On the other hand, you might qualify for our engineering administration groups involved in technical management, industrial engineering, environmental operations control, production control, industrial support, instrumentation and facilities planning.

Whatever your initial preference, you'll be seeing the entire range in operation.

For further information, see your Placement Director. Or write to Manager of College Relations, Dept. 301.

Hunger Strike in Third Day—Support for Criticized Priests

A bread-and-water "hunger strike" by students at the University of Notre Dame goes into its third day today as some 15-20 fasters pledged to continue "indefinitely" to protest Catholic Church criticism of priests who participated in anti-war and civil rights demonstrations.

The students gathered in a dormitory chapel Sunday night and issued a statement declaring that their strike was in sympathy with a similar three-day protest by students at Manchester, New Hampshire.

The Manchester demonstrators had been persuaded Sunday by a priest to abandon the strike because of "the harm (it) was causing the Catholic Church."

Notre Dame's Vice-President, Father McCarragher, however, said the demonstrators at the university would be allowed to continue "although the university does not endorse their protest."

Leonard Joyce, one of the strikers and a member of the Student Senate, said the Senate was voting on a resolution endorsing the fast and protesting the Church's censuring of priests who took part in demonstrations.

Joyce said he had eaten only two slices of bread since the fast began Sunday.

Most of the fasters came and went from the chapel to attend classes, but Phil O'Mara, a graduate student, stayed continuously in the small room, declaring he would continue "at least until Thursday," when Christmas vacation begins, and possibly longer.

The Manchester fast, which sparked the protest, began when two New York priests were disciplined for criticizing N.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Joyce said nine specific priests had been similarly censured for such views or for civil rights participation, "and the list is growing."

The statement issued by the fasters lashed out at "a dangerously distorted notion of obedience" in the Catholic Church forbidding such dissent.

Texas Loyalty Oath Case

By NANCY KOWERT
 AUSTIN, Tex. (CPS)—A retired Harvard English professor and Pulitzer Prize-winning author has broken an agreement to teach at the University of Texas because he refused to sign the state-required "Loyalty Oath."

Howard Mumford Jones, who described the oath as "thoroughly vicious," was to be a visiting professor of English during the spring semester. He had taught general literature at Texas from 1919 to 1925.

It was the second loyalty oath case this fall. Earlier, Bayard Rustin, a controversial civil rights leader, refused to sign the Maryland loyalty oath before appearing at the University of Maryland. Rustin did speak after the state's attorney general ruled the oath was not necessary for one or two appearances.

The 73-year old Jones, an expert on American literature and culture, had made arrangements with the Texas administration to come to Austin next February.

"Then, they sprang the Loyalty Oath on me," Jones said. "It's a disclaimer oath, not a loyalty oath," Jones told the Daily Texan by telephone, saying he feels such oaths "assume a person is guilty until he proves himself innocent."

The oath, in its present form, was passed by the Texas legislature in 1953 and requires that every potential state employee (which includes all university personnel):

- . . . Is not and never has been a member of the Communist Party;

- . . . Has not during the preceding five-year period been a member of any organization which the U.S. Attorney General has designated as totalitarian, fascist, communist, or subversive;

- . . . Has not during the preceding five-year period been a member of any communist political or front organization.

A similar oath required of student employees omits the word "communist" and reads, in part, "I swear or affirm that I believe in and approve of the Constitution and the principles of government therein contained . . . and will not aid or assist . . . movements to subvert or destroy the government."

"This faculty oath violates the principles of the American Association of University Professors," Jones wrote in a letter telling Chancellor Ranson of his decision.
