ASKING PRICE $950,000

Set in a remarkably private position, this classic 1970s brick home is the sort of property buyers often hope still exists - solidly built, generously proportioned and sitting on 3.7ha of usable lifestyle land.

The home offers approximately 240sqm of floor area, with three bedrooms, spacious living and wide rural outlooks. Downstairs, a large lower-level rumpus opens up real flexibility - use it as a second living area, guest space, teenage retreat, hobby room or additional accommodation, subject to your own plans and requirements.

This is not a polished showpiece. It is a rough diamond - honest, substantial and full of upside. The bones are here, the setting is superb, and the next owner has the opportunity to modernise, refine and create something genuinely special.

The land adds the real lifestyle credibility. A huge shed with three-phase power, seven paddocks, cattle yards, bore and rain water supply, a spring-fed dam and even a small spring-fed waterfall give the property both practicality and character. With grazing, established shelter and areas of pines, that could create an income, it has that old-school Kiwi lifestyle feel that is increasingly hard to replace.

For buyers wanting privacy, land, infrastructure and potential without starting from scratch, this is a serious opportunity.
