Founded in 1905, Concordia University-Portland is an accredited, nonprofit, Christian liberal arts university committed to sharing our Lutheran values of open discourse, intellectual inquiry, justice, compassion, diversity, and inclusion to prepare leaders for the transformation of society.

Concordia University’s College of Education is one of the most respected names in learning today. Using forward-thinking knowledge based on emerging research, Concordia-trained professionals continue to change the world student by student. Connected through an active, professional network already 10,000 alumni strong, our educators represent one of the nation’s largest groups of MEd recipients (IPEDS 2016) with growing numbers of EdD graduates elevating our impact each semester.

CONCORDIA UNIVERSITY’S
MASTER OF EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Our MEd programs offer relevant curricula designed and taught by an engaging faculty that includes teachers, superintendents, and principals in the field. Our five-week classes can be accessed completely online—anytime, anywhere. That convenience paired with clearly defined coursework, realistic deadlines, and the ability to immediately apply what you learn in your classroom are what make our degree programs doable and ideal for your busy working lifestyle. The potential career benefits—from higher pay to promotions—are second only to the reward of realizing the everlasting impact you’ll have on the lives of your students.

The MEd in Curriculum & Instruction core courses and capstone experience are the foundation for this program. You’ll receive individualized instruction that supports your professional and personal goals as you develop your skills as a high-impact educator.

If you’re passionate about next-generation learning, Concordia is the university leading the way and shaping the future of education.
The ESOL program at Concordia will help you develop instructional strategies to promote learning for students whose native language is not English, from pre-kindergarten through high school. Your coursework will capitalize on the uniqueness of learners and will focus on creating vibrant learning communities.

ESOL vs. ESL: It is hotly debated at conferences and forums, and in education journals around the world, whether the needs differ between students designated ESOL (English to Speakers of Other Languages) and those designated ESL (English as a Second Language). Concordia has defined ESOL- and ESL-focused courses as appropriate for students of any age who need to learn English fluency because they are living in a country where English is spoken widely as the native language, and as the language of commerce and education.

 COURSE DESCRIPTIONS
Concordia University-Portland’s Master of Education in Curriculum & Instruction: English to Speakers of Other Languages is a 31 credit-hour degree program.

CORE COURSES

EDGR 502
Developing Character Through the Curriculum
3 credits

This course will provide teachers with the resources and skills necessary to integrate character themes and character development into their school curriculum. It provides a forum in which to discuss and develop one’s own moral perspectives on the basis of generally accepted criteria.

EDGR 535
Theories of Teaching and Learning
3 credits

This course is designed to provide leaders with the latest psychological research about learning and guide them in exploring ways to directly apply these precepts to their current work setting. Topics will include cognitive science, learning theory, and relevant teaching theories that utilize this information. The course will fuse the latest biological and psychological understanding of how the brain learns so candidates can harness this knowledge and apply it directly to learning situations.

EDGR 595
Community of Learners
3 credits

Relationships constructed on trust are critical for an efficient, collegial, collaborative workplace. This course challenges candidates to confront the tremendous diversity in their current environment and develop strategies to build community in the midst of the social, ethnic, economic and alternative lifestyle differences that permeate today’s 21st century workplace. In sum, this course stresses the critical importance of creating community in the workplace and illustrates how that community, once established, can generate an efficient, supportive, and positive work place.

EDGR 602
Contemporary Educational Thought
3 credits

Candidates identify, review, and analyze major trends and issues impacting the contemporary state and national educational scenes. Each class session provides students with an opportunity to evaluate the advantages and liabilities of current educational reforms and issues from the perspective of prevailing educational research as well as from their own personal beliefs and current work environment. Candidates will also consider how they can impact and influence change in their own workplace.
CONCENTRATION COURSES

EDEL 531
Strategies and Materials for Teaching English-Learners
3 credits

This course helps students develop skills needed to teach English to speakers of other languages. These skills include the ability to implement various methods of language teaching, the ability to develop curriculum materials in ESOL, the assessment of student proficiency in second language use, and the ability to involve parents and the community in second language education programs.

EDEL 532
Linguistics
3 credits

This course provides an introduction to language as a system emphasizing the interconnectedness between linguistics and PreK-12 teaching and learning. Students explore the principles necessary to teach language, including phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics. Emphasis is placed on the four language skills (listening, speaking, reading, and writing). The course is designed to assist candidates in making linguistically informed decisions about first and second language teaching.

Additionally, candidates are introduced to various grammar points that may pose difficulty for English language learners. The course covers various aspects of language from a historical, cultural, and sociolinguistic perspective.

EDEL 533
Language and Culture in the Classroom
3 credits

This course introduces the student to the theories and practice of multicultural counseling and intercultural communication by examining the cultural diversity in our classrooms and communities, defining similarities and differences in perceptual and communication style, and investigating cultural adaptation and intercultural communication skills. It examines parent and community involvement as resources that enhance the multicultural counseling and education processes.

EDEL 534
Language Acquisition
2 credits

This course examines various factors, concepts, and theories regarding first and second language acquisition processes and their interrelationship with each other and the teaching/learning process. Additional topics include Oregon’s English Language Proficiency Standards, the Forms and Functions of language targeted in state assessments, and the impact of language proficiency on evaluation for TAG and Special Education services.

EDEL 535
Assessing English-Learners
2 credits

This course will present an overview, rationale and framework for assessment of English-learners at the K-12 level. Students will be introduced to the variables that come into play when assessing students whose native language is not English. The primary focus is assessment of English-learners for identification, program placement, and exiting from service. Also covered will be identification of ELL students for Special Education and TAG, ongoing language proficiency assessments, standards-based assessment measures, and classroom-based assessments.
Concordia keeps up with the changes in society by providing students with the education and experiences needed to prepare and help them work more effectively.

- Kayvonna Stigall ‘15, MEd in C&I: EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION
This course provides students with the basic competencies necessary to understand and evaluate the research of others, and to plan their own research with a minimum of assistance. This course includes the basics of both qualitative and quantitative research.

The Master of Education culminates with the choice of either EDGR 698-Action Research or EDGR 696-Practitioner Inquiry. Either option provides candidates with an understanding of the role of research in the field of education as a tool to solve problems and as a way to improve student learning.

EDGR 601
Educational Research
3 credits

EDGR 698
Action Research (capstone)
3 credits

Action Research is one of the capstone projects for the Master of Education program. During this five-week course, candidates will learn more about the action research methodology, complete final edits of the Literature Review, and design a complete Action Research proposal including data collection methods and analysis approaches. (During this course, the proposal will NOT be implemented with students/participants.)

This design provides students with the requisite skills and means to pursue the transformative practice called “Action Research” in their classroom, school, district or other work environment. The design method for the capstone project closely aligns with current classroom realities, with district and school requirements, and the needs of teachers and students.

Prerequisite: Successful completion of EDGR 601 Educational Research

EDGR 696
Practitioner Inquiry (capstone)
3 credits

Practitioner Inquiry focuses on the reflective acts of the candidate as an educator seeking to improve teaching practice. Premised on the self-study research methodological traditions (Samaras, 2011), Practitioner Inquiry provides the opportunity to reflect on teaching practice and generate improvements based on classroom observation. Practitioner Inquiry focuses on the educator and her/his own practices, developing skills of inquiry, observation, reflection, and action in teachers.

Prerequisite: Successful completion of EDGR 601 Educational Research
