“HEADING HOME”

As my trip through life Slowly began to fade
I took stock of my journey And the part that I played.
With all the good times Winning battles I fought
But when bad times prevailed It was God whom I sought.
As the final hurdles began to appear In my race with father time,
I looked forward to God’s kingdom With a vision of life so sublime.
The final chapter now came into view With little time remaining to roam
I prayed for God to heed my call As I began “Heading Home”
