

For example: in Haiti I was helping to organize the strategy for the international organization for migration, then I'll go to Geneva to help the same organization with their global health policy. Earlier in 2011 I did a project advising Mercy Corps (Portland) how to reorganize and streamline their relief structures and operations.

Over the longer term I created and edit a newsletter called "the humanitarian times..." I watch Stanford lectures on iTunes often (several this morning, in fact), and have had some correspondence over the years with my idols Paul Ehrlich and Don Kennedy.
