SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Dr. Harvey Morgan was born and raised in Savannah on East 48th Street. His parents, Annie and Marshall Morgan, were very active at Wesley Monumental Methodist Church; Harvey was a regular there until the gas rationing brought him to the First Presbyterian youth group. There he met Mary Frances Bland and fell in love. They married at First Presbyterian and remained faithful members there; Harvey jokingly refers to himself as a Methodist missionary to the Presbyterian church. Mary Frances passed away in 2000.

Graduating from Savannah High School in 1945, Harvey then served in the Army in Northern Italy for a year and a half. After serving in Italy and graduating from Armstrong College, Harvey received his bachelors and doctorate from Emory School of Medicine. He returned to Savannah and opened a private practice as a Family Practitioner. Through Harvey's medical career, he served as a family doctor, obstetrician, pediatrician, and surgeon; he practiced medicine back in the days when doctors made house calls!

Harvey's interests run the gamut – he is an exceptional wood worker and chip carver. Harvey also plays multiple musical instruments, including the piano, harmonica, accordion, mandolin, and jaw harp. His passion for flying planes via Flight Simulator can still be evidenced by the setup in his room at Summer Breeze. Harvey has always been one to take on any challenge for trying something new!

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Harvey has three children – Janie, Harvey, and Penny. When the children were younger, the family used to go camping. Many evenings were spent around the campfire, eating popcorn, with Harvey playing the family's favorite songs on the harmonica.

His Christian faith is an important part of Harvey's life. He has quite a collection of faith-based movies and welcomes visitors to watch with him!

A MOMENT IN OUR LIVES, FOREVER IN OUR HEARTS.
