At the CWCCC, a priority objective is to advance higher education retainment and career readiness goals in some of America's poorest rural regions through working with students, teachers and communities. One way we get to make this goal happen is through the Middle School Writing Conference for grades 5-8th.

At this conference, students get to come to Missouri State's campus and experience an entire day of interactive writing workshops to improve their writing skills.

With your help, we can make this opportunity a reality for students who cannot afford the $45 fee, which includes lunch, supplies and administrative fees. Your contribution can help make a significant difference in the future of students in Southwest Missouri.

- A contribution of $45 can send one student in need to the writing conference.
- A contribution of $135 sends 3 students to the writing conference.
- A contribution of $225 sends 5 students to the conference.
- And an executive level sponsorship of $500 or more would send over 10 students to the Middle School Writing Conference.

With your tax-deductible, you can provide area students with opportunities to improve writing skills that have been proven to help lead to future academic success. Your donation can help bring a student to a college campus for the first time and open up a world of possibilities.

Please donate today to help the CWCCC make this possibility a reality.
