

International Women's Day

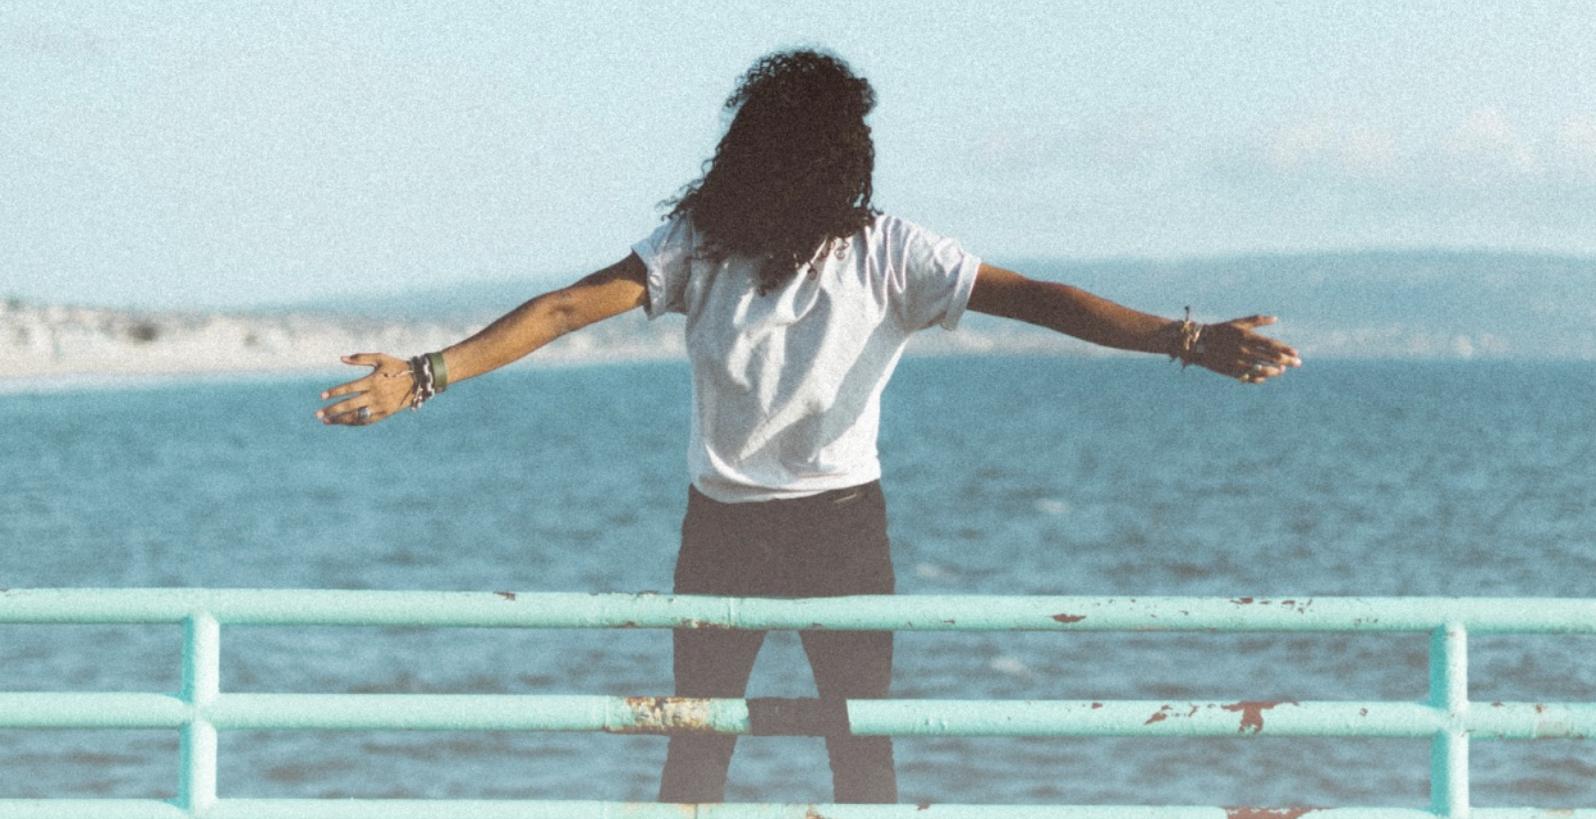

Junglecreations

Teacher Resource Pack

This teacher's guide was created for teachers and youth leaders to use alongside the Jungle Creations and International Women's Day video 'What if men and women switched for a day?'

It is mainly discussion based, aimed at sparking thoughts and ideas amongst young teens.

What is International Women's Day and why do we celebrate it every year?

“International Women's Day is a global day celebrating the social, economic, cultural and political achievements of women. The day also marks a call to action for moving towards gender parity.”

- International Women's Day website

Task 1.

Split the class up in to small gender-based groups (groups of girls and groups of boys).

Each group should have a copy of Sheet 1.

Each group should consider the benefits of being the opposite gender to what they are and write them down, followed by the perceived disadvantages of being the opposite gender, writing those down too.

Task 2.

Combine the groups so that they are now made up of mixed genders and ask each group to discuss their thoughts/ ideas and whether they are well-founded / accurate.

Task 3.

Show the “What if men and women switched for a day?” video:

<https://www.facebook.com/JungleVT/videos/2455688611239633/>

Task 4.

Use the following questions to start a group discussion:

- Which fact was the most shocking to you, and why?
- Which facts didn't shock you, and why?
- How many of the things in the video are in line with your earlier thoughts and discussions?
- As young people heading into the world of work in the future, what can you do to help change things?

Sheet 1.

Each group should consider the benefits of being the opposite gender to what they are and write them down, followed by the perceived disadvantages of being the opposite gender, writing those down too.

Positive things about being the opposite gender	Challenges of being the opposite gender