DESCRIPTION

Email, texting, social media, navigation, web browsing – as our daily mobile device usage increases, so too does our “digital footprint.” This information can prove valuable in a myriad of cases ranging from divorce, commercial litigation, theft of intellectual property, copyright infringement, personal injury and more. If you practice in any of these areas, you need to understand what information is available, how to obtain it, what is a reasonable request for information and how the data can be produced.

This session will address all of these questions and more. It will feature an overview, a hands-on demonstration from a mobile device and Q&A.
