DESCRIPTION

Shortly after Michael Brown's death, riots erupted in Ferguson, Missouri. The following Department of Justice investigation led to sweeping changes in Missouri's municipal court system. Senate Bill 5 and Senate Bill 572 lowered the caps on fines for minor traffic violations and some municipal ordinances. Now, more than a year later, municipalities are still struggling to interpret and implement these new changes. This CLE is designed to create a round table discussion about the effects of these bills, both positive and negative, along with what we can expect in the future for municipal practice.
