

Lang Di Fintech Conference 2016 Announced Over 50 Confirmed International Speakers to Stage the Ground-breaking Fintech Event of the Year

New York and Shanghai, June 15, 2016 --- LendIt, the world's most influential Fintech event, today announced over 50 confirmed international speakers for its inaugural conference in China, the Lang Di Fintech Conference. For the first time in the history of Fintech sector, industry leaders from the global Fintech community will convene in Shanghai to share best practices and learn about the latest trends in Internet finance. Broader in scope than any prior LendIt event, the Lang Di Fintech conference will focus on the future of Fintech within China and beyond its borders. The conference will highlight the companies and technologies driving change in financial services around the world; showcase innovations in areas including lending, payments, blockchain, insurance, and wealth management; as well as provide the opportunity to meet key decision makers. This conference also provides ground-breaking opportunities for leading international Fintech companies and leading Chinese Fintech companies to explore cross-border partnerships, product co-development, technology transfers, mergers & acquisitions and much more.

“We are delighted to be playing an integral role in bringing the best-in-class international fintech pioneers to China, the world's largest Fintech market with a robust growth of innovations, in order to strengthen the position of China's exciting Fintech sector on a global scale,” said LendIt's Co-Founder and Chairman, Peter Renton. “The fintech sector finally has something big to celebrate. The scale and quality of attendees for this conference is unprecedented. This truly will be a meeting between global thought-leaders, so anything could happen. We're very excited,” he said.

Among the confirmed international speakers are Ron Suber, President of Prosper; Al Goldstein, Founder and CEO of Avant; Giles Andrews, Co-Founder and Executive Chairman of Zopa; Christine Farnish, Chair of the Peer-to-Peer Finance Association (P2PFA); Ram Ahluwalia, CEO of PeerIQ; and many more. A full list is available on the conference website.
