June 2019

Dear Friend,

Thank you for being part of our Marin Theatre Company family. Nowhere else in the country is there a theatre in a city of 14,000 people dedicated to the best new plays by America’s best new playwrights. Most new play theatres are in cities like New York or Chicago, but we’re setting the course for American theatre right here in Mill Valley and Marin County. You’ve been making it happen. For the past six seasons we’ve produced almost exclusively new plays and for the past five seasons, 50% or more of our playwrights have been women and/or artists of color who are writing some of the most interesting plays today.

So, what does that mean to you? It means you’re seeing great theatre in your backyard that nobody else in the country is seeing, and you get to be a part of it on the ground level – seeing these plays before they make their way to New York or to theatres around the country. You play a major role in this work – we simply can’t do it without you.

Even when we exceed our ticket goals, it doesn’t come close to paying for this important work. Without contributions from subscribers and supporters like you, MTC would have to charge a $95 surcharge on top of what you’re already paying for each ticket!

Please help us keep ticket prices affordable and continue bringing you work like the West Coast Premiere of J.T. Rogers’ Oslo, the World Premiere of Lauren Gunderson and Margot Melcon’s Christmas at Pemberley plays and the Bay Area Premiere of August Wilson’s How I Learned What I Learned. Will you help us to continue creating, developing and producing new American plays by making a donation today?

We need to raise $300,000 by June 30 and are asking you to join us in supporting MTC with a gift of $100, $500, $1,000 or more. Every gift helps.

We thank you for your support and look forward to seeing you at MTC very soon.

Sincerely,

Jasson Minadakis Artistic Director

Keri Kellerman Managing Director

P.S. – Don’t forget to send in your tax-deductible contribution on or before June 30 to partner with MTC on the best new plays!
