CAREER STRATEGY & COACHING

LIVE YOUR DREAMS TODAY

It's exciting to see clients get direct results from the guidance and coaching I've offered, as a resume writer and most recently, a coach. I am particularly inspired and motivated to help my female clients who hope to one day be moms or who are re-entering the job market or preparing for a career transition to better match family needs. Your success is my passion, my inspiration.

Too often we settle for "good enough" and take the first job or work that comes our way because we "think we should." I believe that humans both love to work and that we can find work and workplaces we love. As your career coach, I am both your guide and your champion. I support you in not only chasing your dreams but making them a reality.

I serve a diverse clientele from various backgrounds; inclusive of individuals both underrepresented and under-supported in corporate culture.

My support successfully supports women in career transition; women desiring to make or plan a career pivot; parents re-entering the workforce; creatives; digital nomads; and, individuals who wish to achieve work/life balance.

I work with you to identify your strengths and your needs, to orient your career compass so that you find work that builds off your passions and that provides you the financial and physical foundation to live a life you love.

12 Coaching Calls + Mindset Exercises + Goal Setting +
Professional Narrative Work (LinkedIn, Resume, Etc.)

A customizable 3+ month program explicitly for career women. This package is designed to help you rediscover confidence, identify your strengths, see what experiences are transferable while guiding you to aligning your work with your professional compass and purpose to find fulfillment and work/life balance.

We will explore your career history and then identify and map your values, experiences, strengths, needs, and link them to your purpose. I ask you powerful questions to help you uncover your confidence and make the choices you need to find the right career path beginning from where you are right now.

Once you've found clarity about your path, I then work with you to set goals and build in the pivot points to use your career compass to guide you in setting goals and defining your own success. LinkedIn Profile, resume or CV included.

Career Strategy Guidance

Need help with your career strategy? Sending out resume after resume without success? Wondering what you need to do to improve your networking skills?

If you need career strategy guidance, I provide 60-minute personalized coaching calls to cover a variety of career strategy subjects from helping you find your focus, target your job search, plan for a performance review, and prepare for interviews.

If you require more than two calls, it's likely we need to develop a more robust coaching package to more profoundly address your needs.

Tailored Coaching Packages

My coaching packages are thoughtfully tailored for each client. Each coaching session includes a 60-minute zoom video call and additional email support, personalized coaching materials, worksheets, and tailored career strategy guidance.

Packages consist of a minimum of four sessions within a two to three month period. Custom packages address your unique career challenges and build in goal setting for accountability. May include my custom job search tool-kit, including a resume, and LinkedIn profile, as needed.
