

Food, Wine and Soil: Kindling a Sense of Terroir at the Table

A lecture by Dr. Alan Busacca
Director of the Center for Enology and Viticulture,
Walla Walla Community College

Thank you to our sponsors:

Skagit Innovation

-Lecture Series-

February 12, 2014

6:30pm

WSU - Mount Vernon

Alan Busacca is known to many people around the Northwest and beyond as 'Dr. Dirt'. He is a soil scientist and geologist who some years ago shifted his passion for pure research on agriculture, soil formation, and Ice Age geology toward the applied science of growing grapes for fine wine and helping others to do the same. Alan now co-owns Volcano Ridge Vineyard and consults on land evaluation, gives talks, and leads field trips. The newest chapter in Alan's life is as the Director of the Center for Enology and Viticulture at Walla Walla Community College – the premier 2-year winemaking degree program in the Pacific Northwest and the first community college program in America with its own bonded winery, College Cellars.

Please join Dr. Busacca in a discussion on capturing terroir in Skagit Valley and the region.

16650 State Route 536
Mount Vernon, WA 98273
360-848-6120