HOLIDAY ACTIVITY IN 2ND WEEK

Bond Sales Far Exceed Quotas

Over the top in ten days—double the quota in twenty days—that is the record set by H.E.W. workers for the Sixth War Loan.

All Over Quotas

As of last Saturday, the Project quota in extra War Bonds had been doubled by the enthusiastic buying of H.E.W. war workers. During the preceding week the last craft had passed its quota mark, making it 100 per cent for every craft and department. Among the crafts, the Carpenters held their lead by purchasing enough bonds to triple their quota, while Reinforcing Steel gave them a run for their money with two-and-a-half times their quota.

Aim Higher

Among the non-manual departments, Field Engineering had a lead none could hope to match, with over five times their quota.

Those who are responsible for the bond drive are hoping that this week will bring a final rush of buyers to the banks and bond wagons so that when the drive ends tomorrow, construction purchases of extra bonds will have passed the million mark.

IT'S KAY KYSER

Flash!

"The College of Musical Knowledge"—MC'd by Kay Kyser, the old professor himself, is coming to Hanford tonight at the Auditorium in a show that's FREE, according to the Employees Association, sponsors of the special pre-Christmas program. The show will start at 7:30 p.m. and will precede the dance (for which there is the usual charge) at which Ted Weems' orchestra is playing.

Complete with Georgia Carroll, Ish Kabibble, Sully Mason and all the specialties and treats that the Kay Kyser outfit is noted for will appear on tonight's gala free feature.

Unveil Nativity Scene on Plaza

Christmas lights will flash on all over Hanford at 7:45 Monday night, heralded by a short ceremony on Kadlec Plaza.

Brief Program

After a brief dedication speech by G. P. Church, field project manager, a traditional Nativity scene will be unveiled—a mother and child at the manger, surrounded by shepherds, animals and palms.

Tree Lighting

Simultaneously, lights will glow on a huge Christmas tree on the Plaza, and on the evergreens which will decorate the buildings and streets during the holidays.

The H.E.W. band will furnish Christmas music for the 15-minute program, which is being planned by the Employees Association.

Church Program Tonight

The Sunday School of the Lutheran Church of Hanford will present a Christmas program tonight at 8:00 in the White Chapel. It is entitled "Light of the World." The public is invited to attend.

Announce Plans for Christmas Dinner at Hanford Mess Halls

Weems Returns For Two Dances

Returning tonight and tomorrow night for another two-night stand at Hanford, Ted Weems' top-notch band comes to the Auditorium for dancing from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

Rhythm Kings

Notable in its performance here two weeks ago, the band, known as "radio's number one rhythm band," played to large crowds of appreciative Project dancers.

The band, plus several featured soloists, returns to Hanford through sponsorship of the H.E.W. Employees Association. Admission is 50 cents and $1.00.

Final Forum Lecture Today

Last in the Fall Forum Series will be given tonight in the Conference Room, Training and Relations Building, B Avenue between Division and First streets.

Dr. Gates Speaker

The speaker will be Charles M. Gates, Associate Professor of History in the University of Washington, and his topic will be "Americans Are Like That."

As an historian, Dr. Gates finds in his studies the key to an understanding of current issues, both national and regional, and to an appreciation of our national character as Americans.

Tonight at 7:30

A student of United States foreign policy and editor of the Pacific Northwest Quarterly and of several source books dealing with the historical development of the American Northwest, Dr. Gates holds degrees from Yale, Harvard and the University of Minnesota.

Tonight's lecture will be at 7:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the H.E.W. Employees Association.

Patrol To Issue Passes

Passes required for travel of restricted roads going through the Project are now issued to eligible applicants from Hanford Patrol Headquarters, First Street and B Avenue. Formerly the permits were issued from Traffic.

A free Christmas dinner for Project employees who are residents of Hanford will be served in the Mess Halls Christmas Day, admittance being by badge, it was announced today.

Limit Guest Tickets

Employees actually living in Hanford may purchase guest tickets at $1.00 each plus tax, so that they may bring members of their families or guests to the Christmas dinner. Guest tickets will go on sale at the Trailer Camp Office, the Board Roll Department and Barracks 11-A today, and will be on sale through December 21—or while the supply lasts. Trailer Camp Office tickets will be on sale from 12:00 noon to 9:00 p.m. The Board Roll Department and 11-A will be open their usual times.

The number of guest tickets will be limited so that the capacity of the Mess Halls will not be exceeded. And for this reason it will also be impossible to serve Christmas dinner to any persons living outside Hanford.

Operations Eligibles

Operations employees living in Hanford will be issued complimentary tickets through the Board Roll Office and will be admitted to Christmas dinner free of charge by showing their badge and complimentary ticket. These employees may also buy guest tickets by identifying themselves as residents of the barracks.

In order to give the maximum service to patrons, it is planned that employees who are not working Christmas Day and who are bringing their families or guests to dinner will eat in Mess Hall No. 3. Mess Hall No. 4 will be reserved for those persons working Christmas Day in order that they may not be inconvenienced in any way. Persons working on Christmas Day will bring their families or guests to No. 4 Mess Hall. Special Christmas day passes will be issued through Supervision for both the breakfast and supper meals so that no one except those entitled to eat in No. 4 Mess Hall will be admitted. Holders of guest tickets will be admitted to No. 4 Mess Hall only when accompanied by employees having a special Christmas Day pass. All other guest ticket holders will be expected to eat in No. 3 Mess Hall. Guest tickets will not be accepted in No. 1 Mess Hall. Regular December odd shift meal passes will not be good in No. 4 Mess Hall until after 10:00 p.m. Christmas Day.

No. 1, 3 and 5 Mess Halls will serve a normal breakfast from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., and the special Christmas dinner from 3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. No. 4 Mess Hall will serve breakfast from 5:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. only for those persons working Christmas Day. Dinner will be served from 1:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. for those employees holding special Christmas Day passes. No. 4 Mess Hall will reopen at 10:00 p.m. for regular odd shift feeding.

Contractors-Engineers Hosts

Plans for the special Christmas dinner call for a souvenir program for all, and a special menu with all the "fixings" has been arranged. Because of the more elaborate meal (service will necessarily be somewhat slower, and patience of the guests is asked).

The dinner is being given to the employees with the compliments of all Project Contractors and the U.S. Army Engineers in appreciation for the cooperation of all who are "staying on the job to see it through."

A Case of Arithmetic

The following are excerpts from a recent speech by Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, Commanding General, Army Service Forces, before the National Association of Manufacturers. The general refers to it as "the most important speech I have ever made."

"... This nation has committed its troops to fighting the war in one specific fashion—with an overwhelming superiority of materiel... We, a productive people, elected to fight the war by that method. So far, we have made good on that promise; our tactics, our strategy, our victories have been shaped by it... Now this war is like a giant balance. Onto one side of the scales the enemy throws the weight of his men and his material... If you will look at the balance on December 7, 1941—the day of Pearl Harbor—you will see us very badly outweighed indeed. Much of our fleet was out of action, most of our present Army was still in civilian clothes. We possessed exactly 1,157 airplanes suitable for combat and almost exactly the same number of usable tanks. Then and there we set about to change the balance—to put the weight of men and particularly of materiel, on our side..."

"Proof that our kind of war pays off, lies in the men who will come home again as well as in the ground won. At Aachen, for instance, we were able, with the help of a very great concentration of fire from 105-mm howitzers and air bombing to capture the town at a relatively low cost in men... There will be many Aachens ahead of us on both fronts; spots where we will throw everything America has at a groggy enemy, never letting him rest, never letting him get his head up day or night; throwing fresh men with fresh materiel at him from the front while the Air Forces batter his supply lines and factories in the rear. Until we are heavy enough on our side of the balance to fight such battles with all armies on all fronts, we aren't ready to call the war 'in the bag'..."

"The more weight we can have, when we need it, and where we need it, the sooner we shall be able to knock over Germany and Japan. It is just a case of simple arithmetic. More materiel equals fewer casualties, a shorter war..."

"You may be looking toward V-Day in Europe as a day of let-down, a time to relax. Burn this thought into your minds. It takes more tons, hauled more miles by far, to destroy a Jap than it takes to destroy a Nazi. We will only transfer our energies after Hitler's Germany falls. We may even have to increase our output in many categories of materials. For instance, there are new weapons now being made—weapons I can't tell you all about—not yet in use in Europe. Those of you who make them, know them. They must be ready in large quantities for the Pacific pushes..."

"The war against the Jap alone will be the biggest war this country or this world ever fought before the present war..."

"As long as the nation is at war, one front or two, planning for war, producing for war, fighting the war is the nation's business and its only business. We must win before we can reap the fruits of victory. You can't beat the gun in this race..."

"American industry and American workers must rededicate themselves, here and now, to an upsurge of production on the home front so that our forces on all fronts shall be limited in their use of materiel only by our ability to get it to them and by elbow room on the fighting fronts in which to use it."

"The kind of war we shall fight is in the balance. The decision as to the weight we shall throw into the scales is your decision—and this is the time for decision..."

"WE JUST DON'T WANT ANYTHING TO HAPPEN TO YOU WHILE YOU'RE HOME ON FURLOUGH!"

Search for Sandra Sage

Public interest in the mysterious disappearance of Sandra Sage, last seen atop a piano at Hanford Auditorium two weeks ago Wednesday, reached the boiling point here yesterday.

Who Dunnit?

With practically every private snoop on the Project kept busy tracking down flimsy clues, each "theory" submitted was tracked down relentlessly in search of a solution to the "kidnaping". (One man of the Medical Department cast suspicion on a prominent Safety Engineer.) But to date, none of the volunteer sleuths has been able to bring authorities any closer to a solution than when Sandra was last seen November 29 at the Office Safety Rally.

In broadcasting an appeal for the return of Sandra, a spokesman pointed out that her foot was broken, a fact which prompted followers in some quarters to remark feelingly of her abductor: "The cad!"

Meanwhile, a theorist suggested a check with the hospital admittance clerk, but such an investigation proved fruitless. Hope, however, was not abandoned.

Describe Victim

Authorities, feeling that much might depend on acquainting the general public with a "physical" description of Miss Sage, sought a means how best to describe the hapless victim. Agreeing that she was fair of complexion, some discussion followed about calling the young lady's skin "crepey", until someone suggested "muslin," a term which was accepted. All admitted that her hair was the color and texture of a new mop. "But she's got more real spring in her than anyone we've ever known," they proudly said in chorus.

Well, anyway, said one practical Project personality, you can't keep a dummy unseen and unheard forever—and the search continued for Sandra Sage, the $2.00 demonstration dummy of the Medical Department.

Cheer Purchase Of DAY'S PAY

In a letter to Roy B. Ogan, Hanford Patrolman, the parents of Lt. Arlys Wineinger, pilot of DAY'S PAY, last week "spoke" to H.E.W. men and women.

Commend Employees

"We are thrilled," they said, "to know our son and his brave crew are given the privilege and honor of piloting DAY'S PAY. It was certainly commendable of the employees of your Project to purchase the B-17, and it will surely be the means of bringing the war to an end sooner."

The Wineinger family was known to Ogan through his travels through western Kansas before the war. Ogan says he knew the family more through reputation than through personal contact, "but I know that young Wineinger is a fine, clean young man of good background."

Team Work Counts

The parents indicated in their letter that Lieutenant Wineinger has won the bronze air medal and Oak Leaf cluster, and he says of his crew, "They are a fine bunch of men to work with—and it is team work that counts." Married, Wineinger has one son, born after he went overseas.

Presentees Slip Record

Presentees took a turn for the worse last week when the overall Project standing fell to 6.3 per cent absentees.

Best averages of the week went to Bricklayers, with 4.2 per cent. Transportation with 4.3 per cent and Labor with 4.7 per cent were in second and third places respectively.

Five Improve

Bringing up their averages from the week before were five crafts: Concrete Labor, Reinforcing Steel, Earthworks, Electrical and Mechanical. The remaining nine crafts dropped from their records of the week before. They were: Labor, Carpenters, Carpenter Labor, Concrete, Paint, Bricklayers, Piping, Riggers and Transportation.

Missing

Darling of the Medical Department, Sandra Sage, shown above with a group of admirers, has been missing for more than two weeks. Searchers story in column adjoining.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: What Are You Looking Forward to Most on the H.E.W. Christmas Program?

Charles Pinckney

Receiving

"I'm a pretty pugnacious character, so it will be those fights (Monday night) for me," says 75-year-old Pinckney, who plans to see the variety shows, too.

Now employed as a file clerk, Pinckney has spent his career in various construction jobs. He has a son with the Marines in the Philippines, and is himself a veteran of two wars. "The Project is the best place to spend Christmas."

C. A. Pitman

Fireman

"I'll make the most of all the Christmas activities on the Project, since they come in my last weeks here." A native of Denver, Colorado, Pitman is scheduled for induction into the army come the new year.

The basketball games will be the main attraction for him, since he was a cage star in his high school days. Meanwhile, he drives a fire truck.

Olga Barst

Olympic Commissary

"I especially want to see the musical shows that are coming, so I'm looking forward to them," comments this Olympic employee, "because my son plays in an army post band."

From Racine, Wisconsin, Olga serves at Mess Hall No. 1, feeling that Hanford is the place for her to do her part as long as her son is doing his part in the country's service.

Curtis Merrell

Transportation

Something of a cue-champ himself, Merrell grins, "I guess I'm going to like that pool tournament best," although he plans to make the most of the Open House at both Recreation 254 and 201.

Merrell is a tire repairer in the Hanford garage, and hails from Albuquerque, New Mexico. While debating whether or not to enter the pool contest himself, he is all out for buying bonds.

Loretta Ziemski

Time Office

Because dancing is her favorite pastime, Loretta is most eagerly awaiting the gala parties of Christmas night and New Year's Eve, when Henry King plays at the Auditorium.

A comptometer operator in Payroll Accounting, Loretta has lots of fun at Hanford. "Why should anyone go away for Christmas?" is her query. She came here almost a year ago from St. Paul, Minnesota.

In "Greatest Naval Battle"

Navy Survivor Visits Project

"Spectator" in the famous encounter last October between the Jap and American navies, Bob Bell, Baker First Class, is the first Olympic employee to return from the South Pacific war area.

As a member of the crew of the U.S.S. Gambier Bay, Bell says, "We watched the whole battle—said to be the greatest in naval history, but," he adds wryly, "we didn't have exactly padded seats for the show."

Adrift 46 Hours

Bell relates how they were in battle an hour before the Japs got their "babytop" aircraft carrier—and then we took to the lifeboats. But that was only after our planes got off to land bases and we damaged a cruiser."

About his being "adrift", Bell says, "There were thirty of us on a twelve-man craft, which meant that we took turns hanging over the side. The only injury any of us got was the loss of a leg by one man—and that by a shark while we were in the water."

Father Mess Chef

Rescue by an L.S.T. came 46 hours after the Gambier Bay was sunk but meanwhile the men were without food and water for that time. After Bell and the others were picked up, they were taken to the Philippines—and thence home on leave.

Bell's father is head chef at Mess Hall No. 4. The family home is Spearfish, South Dakota.

THE WORLD AT WAR

The Western Front

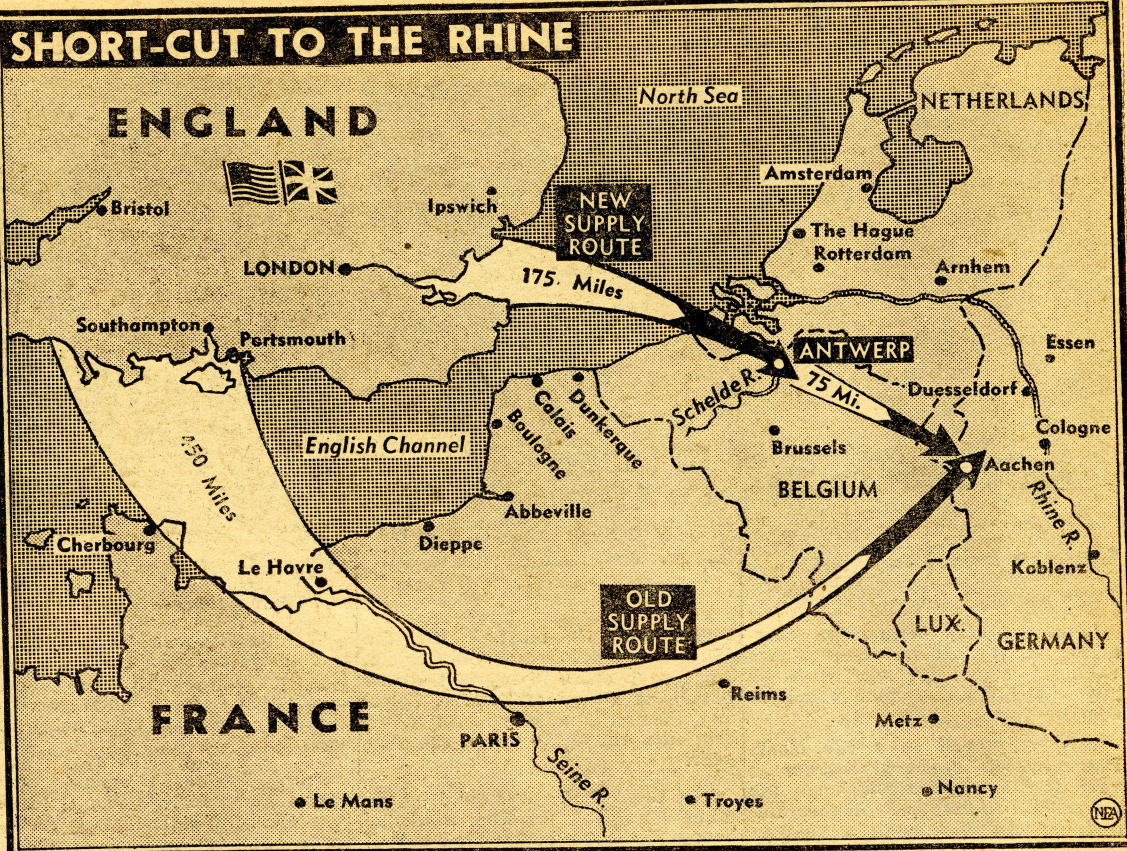

The Saar Valley, from which Germany draws a large part of the minerals so essential to modern war, runs for about fifty miles along the Saar River. Last week General Patton's Third Army hit hard into the western edge of both ends of the valley, taking firm hold on Saarlautern and Saareguemines, and rapidly extending his lines to the east. In the middle, about half-way between the two smaller cities, lies Saarbrücken, the capital of the Saar. The Third Army has been pouring big shells into the city until it is little more than rubble, but the defenders were still holding out at the end of last week. Patton's strategy appears to be to press hard on the center while he pushes his flanks steadily forward until they are in position to cut in and outflank Saarbrücken.

On the right flank, General Patch's Seventh Army joins Patton's unit. This flank is not only mopping up the enemy in the Vosges mountains, but last week took Haguenau, a town only ten miles from the Rhine. Still farther south the French First Army took Colmar to strengthen its hold on the upper Rhine. Those two armies of Patch and Patton are making steady inroads in Alsace which are a constantly growing threat to the whole German front, in that they are in a position to force a crossing of the Rhine and cut around the end of the Siegfried fortifications.

The battle on the plains in front of Cologne roars on with fury unabated. Our gains are in yards, not miles, and we are paying a heavy price for every yard. The line is along the little Roer River, with Julich and Duren the principal present objectives. Both are under heavy American artillery fire. This battle for the approaches to Cologne is as intense and tough as any since Stalingrad.

The Eastern Front

That great Red scythe which has been threatening Budapest made a wider and more dangerous sweep last week. Its right flank swept forward along the Slovakian border of Hungary far to the north-west of Budapest to within striking distance of Austria from the east. Below the Hungarian capital the tip of the scythe made as great a sweep to the shores of Lake Balaton, the last natural defense guarding Austria from the south-east. Budapest is being cracked like a nut—the Germans and the Hungarian Nazis are fleeing to Vienna, but rumor has it that Himmler has ordered the high Nazis in that city to be ready to leave in a hurry. Less than five hundred miles lie between the American army on the southern end of the Western Front and the Russian army in Hungary. The biggest squeeze in all history is beginning to be tight for Nazis.

Contrast in size of arrows on the map above graphically illustrates the importance of the great Belgian port of Antwerp, with its 30 miles of docks, to the task of supplying Allied armies in Europe. Supply-line picture is further brightened by steady improvement of rail links between Cherbourg, Le Havre, Marseille and other French ports with U. S. and British battlefronts.

Knows Plenty About War Bond Need

(NEA Telephoto)

A survivor of the "March of Death" on Bataan, Sgt. Charles C. Johnstone of Cleveland, O., doesn't have to be told it's important to buy MORE War Bonds during the Sixth War Loan campaign. So here he buys a $1000 War Bond at Washington from Ted R. Gamble, Treasury War Finance Division national director.

Chinese Front

General Stilwell left China. Ambassador Gauss resigned. Chiang Kai Shek shook up the cabinet. New negotiations were started with the Chinese Communists. Soon the situation began to clear. Last week the Chinese drove the Japs out of Kweichow province, where their advance was a threat to the Burma Road terminus at Kunming. If the Nationalists and the Communists can really get together the Chinese situation may become brighter—at least less black.

The Pacific Front

"ALLOUT" is a mild term for the fight the Japs have been making to hold onto the west coast of Leyte. In continuous efforts to retrain they have lost almost as many in force the remainder of the garrison as they have been able to get ashore, and the rain and mud have been more effective in stopping us than all the Japs on Leyte. Last week MacArthur, perhaps impatient to get on with the Philippine campaign, called on the Navy to do a job the Japs had not been able to do well—land some troops near Ormoc. Figuring there might be a good scrap in the deal, the Navy hopped to it. So did the GIs as soon as the Navy put them ashore below Ormoc. They hacked their way to Ormoc through stubborn but bewildered Jap resistance (it's very uncomfortable to find the enemy behind you when you have been shooting the other way) and took that port through which Jap supplies had funneled.

Taking Ormoc split the Jap army into two narrow triangles on Leyte. With pressure from two sides and the sea on the third, it is hard to see how they can hold to organized resistance on Leyte much longer. Once the delayed cleanup of Leyte

On Second Thought

by
Gordon Sutherland

Three years of the most total war that this old earth has ever had rage on its land, on and under its seas and in its atmosphere were completed last week on the third anniversary of the disaster of Pearl Harbor. The American people observed that anniversary soberly, even grimly, perhaps working just a little bit harder, perhaps buying one more extra war bond.

December 7th, 1941 was a day of shame. For Japan it was the day which will go down in the history of civilization as the date of the most vile treachery any nation has ever perpetrated on another. The Japanese people may somehow learn in time to live up to the standards of morals which have been established by decent, humane peoples. But they will have to live up to such standards for thousands of years before they can overbalance the disgrace of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

For us Americans it will be forever a day of shame that the most advanced and enlightened of all nations could have been so totally blind and so terribly off guard after repeated warnings of the danger of treachery. Shame also that even when a report of the attack was relayed in time to prepare an adequate defense it was disregarded.

But we can be thankful that by December 7th, 1944 the picture is different in many respects. The Japanese war lords must by this time know that, bold as their sneak attack was, it was not bold enough. They must realize that after wrecking most of our fleet and aircraft and installations, they could have taken the Hawaiian Islands by concentrating most of their fleet and air force and the best of their trained and seasoned troops on the task. It must drive their generals and admirals to a frenzy to know that they could have rendered us impotent for many years by carrying their boldness just one step farther. Without our great central Pacific base the reconquest of the western Pacific would have been infinitely more difficult, perhaps impossible. We were not the only short-sighted nation in 1941.

Both the Army and Navy took that bitter lesson to heart. Since their joint action has been completely cooperative and highly successful. Here at home we still find evidence of jealousy which has long been our sad tradition. It seems to take the searing heat of battle to cleanse the human mind and soul of such smallness. But in the highest quarters, where policy is decided, the lesson of Pearl Harbor also took hold. Under the pressure of total war it would be dangerous to try to reorganize our armed forces now, but it looks as though we will, as soon as possible, have one supreme commander over three closely coordinated departments of land, sea and air forces.

So in the long run the disgrace of Pearl Harbor—the awful cost in American lives and the hindrance to subsequent action—may turn out to be the high price we had to pay to learn a lesson we badly needed. May the United States never again have to purchase knowledge so dearly.

Remember Him?

It was Lt. Joseph Lockard, above, of Williamsport, Pa., then a private, who sounded the unheeded alarm when Jap bombers approached Pearl Harbor on that ill-fated day of Dec. 7, 1941. For his alertness, Lockard received the Distinguished Service Medal, was promoted to staff sergeant. Later, he attended officers' training school, became a lieutenant in the Signal Corps.

After Effects

With the 45th U. S. Infantry Division—One private heard a strange buzzing sound on his first day of combat. He thought for a while he'd been shell-shocked.

He wasn't far from wrong, at that. For when he took off his helmet, a bullet dropped to the ground from behind his left ear.

So the private—Grover Bruce of Columbus, Georgia—started looking around. He was fairly eager to do some shell-shocking on his own hook.

He did—and the German sniper who'd fired the bullet into Bruce's helmet died of the effects.

Bowling Champ

A new national individual match champion reigns over the bowlers of America.

Buddy Bomar of Chicago captured the crown Sunday in the fourth annual all-star tournament, slipping past the second place winner, Private Joe Wilman, also of Chicago.

Three-Star Cut-Up

His important role in making naval history in the destruction of the Japanese fleet off the Philippines doesn't prevent Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, carrier task force commander, from cutting a fancy cake with a small boy's gusto. He's pictured seated at a special mess aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington.

Attention

Instructors in one of the battalions at the replacement training center at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, have thought up a new method of catching guys who day-dream and sleep during classes.

The instructor says in a normal tone, "Men when I call you to attention, just stay in your seats."

Then he shouts, "Attention!" The day-dreaming and sleeping soldiers spring to their feet.

Shell Shortage

London—A British correspondent with the American Ninth Army in Germany says American soldiers are paying with their lives because of a shortage of shells.

Noel Monks of the London Daily Mail cites an instance when American infantry put in a hurry call for artillery support as German tanks counter-attacked near a German town.

Monks heard the reply over the phone and was so embarrassed he moved away. The voice said:—

"Too bad, but we fired our quota in the opening stages of the attack."

The American colonel—said Monks—slumped into a chair, his hands shaking with emotion.

Holland-Blended Muskrat

Coats made from backs—
choice part of choice pelts!

Look at this low price!

$229.00

These aren't ordinary muskrats—any more than $229 is an ordinary price for Holland-blended muskrat! These muskrats are from Louisiana and Texas, where you find the finest, hardiest, most lustrous Southern muskrats. (Southern muskrats are lighter weights, sleeker than Northern muskrats). We've used the backs, the best part, of these cream-of-the-catch pelts. And they've been styled by a master furrier, like mink coats—see swaggers, shorter coats, draped fronts, deep, wide sleeves, deep cuffs.

They've been blended by the same Hollander master craftsmen who blend the finest, most expensive let-out muskrats sold! And C. C. Anderson Co. brings them to you at this low price . . . $229!

Remind Employees of Job Security Regulations

H.E.W. employees this week were urged to continue to increase observance of security regulations.

Avoid Indiscretion

Pointing out that most of the information which slips out from time to time is due to indiscretion, officials warned that even the smallest bits may be of use to enemy agents. Workers are requested not to discuss any phase of their work outside their offices, and to take every precaution against transmitting news of the Project to relatives outside.

"We forget that an enemy agent, if he is to be successful and avoid a firing squad, must be such a plausible and convincing person that no one suspects him," writes one security official in warning against careless talk.

Employees are requested to report to their superiors immediately any unauthorized attempt to secure information concerning their work, and should guard constantly against divulging important material.

"Tis More Blessed--"

In addition to subscribing to Project campaigns, Hanford Fire Department has a "good works" program of its own. Recently Platoon A made a sizeable donation to the Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Seattle, while the B Platoon sent an equal amount to a telephone fund used for war veterans in the West Coast city to make long distance calls home.

Christmas Spirit

Most any morning these days before opening at Hanford Post Office you can hear Christmas carols going. And then the general delivery windows fly up and there are Christmas decorations to the Community Building for a holiday party—and the caroling has been in preparation for some special goings on. They've got the spirit!

World Welder

Twenty-three years' welding gave "Chief" Welsh some real history lessons. See story below.

The current crisis in Palestine reminds Ernest Welsh, a welder out at 200W, of the skirmishes he observed while working in the Near East in 1939. An old construction man, Welsh has made the rounds working as a welder on pre-war jobs—Iran, Iraq, Syria, Italy, France, Egypt, Palestine, and the Dutch East Indies.

Felt War Coming

"We felt the war coming on before most people in the United States did, because of the work we did—oil refineries and such," states

Welsh.

Among the more amusing of the gruesome sights he has seen was the result of a tiff between Greeks and Arabs in Palestine. An Arab donkey, laden with baskets of foodstuffs for market, became the victim when a playful Greek slipped a time bomb into his burden.

Long Time Record

Welsh spent fourteen months in Aruba, Dutch East Indies, and was completing nearly a year-and-a-half in the Near East when war began in Europe. He has been on similar construction work for nearly twenty-three years. "I usually send for my family when I can," he says. The Welsh family, complete with a new three-weeks-old baby, now lives in Yakima.

"I'll see construction through to the end here," promises Welsh, "and then bat on to another job. I guess I've got itchin' feet."

BASKETBALL SUN.; FIGHTS MON.

Heavy Battler

Sailor Jack Huber, above, 202 lbs., from Astoria, Oregon, will meet "Moose" Kennedy, 195 lbs., slugger from Gary, Indiana, in the second half of a double main event Monday at the Auditorium.

Sunday Cage Semi-Finals

The semi-final round of the Hanford Invitational Basketball Tournament will be played at the Auditorium next Sunday afternoon.

At this writing it is not known who the competing teams will be, as the tournament had not started when we went to press. However, the winner of the Army-Hillbillies and Concrete & Masonry-Randall & Doyle games will meet at 2:30 p.m. At 3:30 p.m. the winner of the Patrol and Newberry, Chandler & Lord game will meet the winner of the Stores and Thrifty Drugs game.

There is no admission for any of the tournament games which are sponsored by the H.E.W. Employees Association and the Recreation Department.

College Five Lose to H.E.W.

The Hanford Stars opened the local basketball season last Friday night at the Auditorium with an easy 49 to 19 win over a young and inexperienced Eastern Oregon College quintet.

Outclassed in almost every department the college boys were behind 19 to 9 at the half.

U. of W. Next

Earl Rinehart, Traffic, was high scorer for the Hanford Star with 14 points, followed by Bill Sees, Newberry, Chandler & Lord, and Jack Warner, Guerin Brothers, with 13 and 10 points respectively.

By winning the Stars served notice that they expect to make it "a game" when they meet the powerful University of Washington Huskies here at the Auditorium Tuesday, December 26.

In the curtain raiser the Richland girls team trounced the Hanford girls 23 to 11. Virginia Helgeson and Margie Herndon led Richland while Mary Albright and Clarine Anderson were best for Hanford.

Triple Event Boxing-Wrestling Show at Hanford on Monday

Wrestler

Next Monday night's Auditorium Boxing and Wrestling Show will feature a triple main event. Double main events are common, but it's only at Hanford that you could see a triple header.

Wrestling First

The first super attraction will be a 2 out of 3 falls, 90-minute time limit wrestling match between two nationally known heavyweights. Rube Wright, 245 lbs., Pacific Coast Heavyweight Champion, from Los Angeles, will meet Chief Thunderbird, 235 lbs., from Victoria, British Columbia. The Chief is one of the many claimants to the World's Championship.

Boxing fans will remember the fight between welterweights Jimmy Hogan, Seattle, and Kelly Jackson, Vancouver, at the Auditorium back in October. It was one of the greatest fights ever seen in the local arena, and at the end of six action-packed rounds the judges called it a draw. These two boys have been rematched and will share top billing on the card—this time they will go eight rounds.

Top Bill

Topping the entire card will be an eight-round battle between Coastguard Gunner's Mate, Jack Huber, 202 lbs., from Garibaldi, Oregon, and Moose Kennedy, 195 lbs., from Gary, Indiana.

This is the first time heavyweights have ever appeared on a local show, and this one bout alone should be well worth the admission price. Only last Friday night Huber won a decision over Dave Johnson, former Portland Amateur Champion, in the main event of a card at Portland. Moose Kennedy was Golden Gloves Heavyweight Champion back in 1939 and 1940, and is considered a terrific puncher. He is presently working as a rigger in a Portland shipyard.

There will be one other bout on the card—a six-rounder between Eddie Weller, 147 lbs., from Portland and Eddie Wharton, 146 lbs., and also from Portland.

Weller, like Chief Thunderbird, is a full blooded Indian and appeared here in Hanford back in August.

Admission

The usual starting time has been moved up from 8:30 p.m. to 8:15 p.m., but there is no change in admission. All seats will still sell for only $1.00, tax included. Tickets go on sale at the Auditorium at 7:00 p.m.

The show is sponsored by the H.E.W. Employees Association and arranged by the Recreation Department.

Girls League Tues., Thurs.

The H.E.W. Girls Basketball League will get off to its second week of competition Tuesday with two games. Richland and Time Office are slated for a game at 7:00 p.m., and Olympic Commissary plays the Sharpshooters at 8:00 p.m.

Thursday's games will be between the Sharpshooters and Richland at 7:00 p.m. and Olympic Commissary and Time Office at 8:00 p.m.

All games are played at Hanford School Gym.

Chicago Sox Train

The Chicago White Sox are making plans for next spring's workout. A part of their plans include a new training site.

Manager Jimmy Dykes will have his team members flex their muscles at Terre Haute, Indiana. For the past two years, the Sox have bunched with the Chicago Cubs in spring training at French Lick, Indiana. But a feud developed between the two clubs this year regarding use of the diamond.

Bowls 279

If you rolled a perfect game, of course you could beat it, but Jack Wagster, Hanford Fire Department, scored 279 points on the Fourth and C Bowling Alleys recently. The total is thought to be a record for Hanford. More than a mere fan, Wagster owns his own alleys back home in Dakota; claims he has no "lucky balls".
