FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1944

RICHLAND, WASHINGTON

Big Exposition Set for Safety

A mammoth six-day Safety Exposition, billed as one of the major recreational features of the entire project, this week was booked for July 24-29 in the new Hanford Auditorium.

All the major departments and divisions of the project will have attractive displays of more than thirty booths, and a constant round of entertainment will mark the six days. The entire show will carry a strong safety message, but the emphasis at all times will be on combining safety and entertainment.

In addition to the glittering displays, there will be an elaborate series of stage shows and entertainment. Outside performers from the U.S.O. shows will highlight the stage programs, and the exposition will be climaxed on July 29 by a dance played by Jan Garber and his famous orchestra.

To Name Miss Hanford

A bathing beauty contest to name "Miss Hanford" will be held throughout the week, and a project queen and her court will be named. There will be other prize contests throughout the week also with awards being given for the best displays and in various competitions held for those visiting the auditorium.

The entire affair will be free of charge. According to the committees on arrangements there will be numerous activities in which project employees may participate. These include old time dancing, jitterbug contest, group singing and similar activities.

Various evenings will be set aside for special events. There will be an "Army night," and a "Navy night." Members of the exposition committee are working day and night to insure the success of the elaborate show which will assume the proportions of a circus by the time the program is complete and ready for announcement in the next issue of THE SAGE SENTINEL.

Strive for Four Weeks Accident Free to Set World Record at H.E.W.

As "No Accident Week" draws to a close, H.E.W. has a larger goal ahead of it—to have a "Four Weeks Accident Free" period. Accomplishment of such a mark, it was announced by Central Safety, would mean a new high in safety records of any kind.

Pointing out that "Four Weeks Accident Free" will require the constant safety thought of every individual in the community, Safety officials re-emphasized the project's first consideration—safety above all other objectives.

"All departments are united in this crusade," leaders of the drive have said, "and it is going to take 100 per cent awareness of personal safety from every person on the project to reach such a vitally important objective as four weeks without a serious injury."

In line with the ambitious goal, every possible thought, caution and act should be exercised to enable the entire job to proceed 100 per cent accident free. This means that every workman is expected to perform his work in such a manner that he will be sure of absolute safety. And every foreman is expected to exercise absolute control through positive leadership—to instruct, train and guide his men so that work will be performed without the threat of a serious injury.

Every person on the project is expected to throw all available resources toward the "Four Weeks Accident Free" objective—to give the highest priority to safety planning, thinking and action.

Need Boys Instructor

Any Richland Village men interested in helping organize a boys' Handcraft class should call Mr. Gorman at Richland 411. The boys in the village are interested in starting a class and are just waiting for a teacher.

Battleship of the Sky

Hero of many an air battle throughout the world, the B-17 Flying Fortress above is the type of plane which H.E.W. men and women are adding to the battlefield through subscription of a day's pay. Closing a week from tomorrow, the pledge plan was a spontaneous employee idea originated on D-Day.

Band Organizes as Roll of Musicians Volunteer for Play in Project Concerts

Response to a roll call for musicians to join the H.E.W. Concert Band has been enthusiastic, according to those in charge of organizing this latest entertainment feature at Hanford.

Judging by results of the first call for volunteer membership, there is an abundance of musical talent on the project. One of the early members to join the band was Carl Woempner, former flutist in the Minneapolis Symphony now employed on the project, who will play solo flute.

Initial concert of the band is expected to take place in the near future at the Hanford Auditorium. Later performances will be given in Richland, as well as at special events.

Newcomers to the project, as well as those who have not yet reported, are urged to list their names and instruments with Paul Toombs or Jim Carter, phone 8442. Instruments will be furnished for those who do not have them.

Names of the band members will be published at a later date, together with instruments played. It is planned to hold two rehearsals each week at first. Later, rehearsals may be curtailed to one a week.

Practice Women's Sports

A Richland Women's soft ball team has been organized. The team held their third practice last Wednesday evening with W. E. Moyer coaching. Any business girl interested in working out as a member of the team is invited to be at the practice next Wednesday night at 7:30 at the High School.

Geologist To Speak at Richland Forum Tuesday

"Below These Sands," a discussion of the geological history of the Richland area and the Northwest, is the subject to be presented Tuesday as the second in the new Forum Series.

Speaker will be Harold E. Culver, head of the Department of Geology of Washington State College. The meeting is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Room 112 of Columbia High School.

Forum leaders state that the discussion will be one of the high spots of the lecture series.

A special bus will leave the bus lot across from the Groceteria at 8:20 to enable Richland residents to attend.

Tonight in Hanford, Linden A. Mander, Professor of Political Science at the University of Washington, will speak on "The British Empire" at 7:30 p.m. in the United Protestant Church auditorium.

Pre-Teens Organize

A pre-teen age club met for the first time last Thursday at the Lewis Grade School. The club includes boys and girls from six to 13 and new members are invited. They will meet every Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the gym of the Grade school. Activities include folk dancing and games. All children are invited.

Set Evening Cashier's Hour

The Cashier's Office in the Administration Building in Richland will remain open until 8 p.m. o'clock on the first and fourth Friday of each month, it has been announced. No paychecks will be cashed except for payment of obligations.

Col. Kadlec Dies Following Heart Attack

Lt. Colonel Harry Rubens Kadlec, 57, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army; Deputy Area Engineer; passed away Sunday evening in Richland, following a heart attack. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning.

News of Col. Kadlec's death quickly spread throughout the project on Monday as soon as the flag was seen at half mast, and expressions of deep regret came not only from officials of the project but from many employees at-large who had come to know him through his frequent visits among them and his appearances before numerous meetings.

A native of Chicago, where he was a construction contractor and lived at 2224 East 69th Street until his entry on active duty in September 1940. Since this time he has been on five major construction projects for the army, Detroit Tank Arsenal, Wabash River Ordnance Works, Lake Ontario Ordnance Works, Rocky Mountain Arsenal and Kankakee Ordnance Works.

His association with many of the construction men on this project extended to other projects on which they worked. An energetic reader Col. Kadlec was well known for his ability to stimulate construction men to their best effort. Recently he received an honorary citation of the highest safety award on the project in recognition for his contributions to safety.

Colonel Kadlec first joined the army on December 9, 1913 as a Private in the Cavalry of the Illinois National Guard, in which he served until June 9, 1916. He reentered the service in November 1917 and served in the World War until December 31, 1918. He entered the officers Reserve Corps of the Army; as a Captain on April 20, 1924 and progressed through the ranks to his present grade of Lt. Colonel, Corps of the Engineers.

Colonel Kadlec leaves his widow, Nell B. Kadlec; a sister, Mrs. Frank C. Mencl; a brother, Edwin L. Kadlec of Chicago; and his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. E. Bill.

Present Charters to Richland Jaycee Chapter

Gerwyn Jones, State President of the Washington Junior Chamber of Commerce, presented the State and National Charter to the Richland Junior Chamber of Commerce at a dinner-meeting held Wednesday evening, June 28, at the Columbia High School.

This is the 25th Charter presented in the State of Washington and the 1,395th presented in the United States. In the absence of Captain Barret, president, W. S. Roe presided at the meeting. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Walla Walla, Sunnyside and Yakima were guests at the presentation.

The Richland Junior Chamber of Commerce meets the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month and will devote their efforts to civic activities of all sorts.

Christen B 17 in Fanfare July 23

Formal christening of H.E.W.'s own Flying Fortress has been moved to July 23, two weeks from Sunday, it was announced today.

At the morning ceremonies military dignitaries will take active part. Citations will be made to battle veterans, one honored air man being Lt. Rex H. Bleak, B-17 pilot with the 18th Air Force. Bleak is holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with Three Oak Leaf Clusters and the President's Citation.

With the fanfare of the spectacular program, H.E.W.'s Band will make its first appearance to give the bomber a send-off. Speeches, music and demonstrations will combine to make this one of the most important pageant's at H.E.W.

Name for the bomber is being selected by a contest conducted simultaneously with the day's pay campaign. Pledge forms have been distributed and collections are being made to put Hanford in the front lines with its B-17. All persons making pledges are given a "bomber button" and a certificate for a "share" in the Flying Fortress.

Following the Fourth of July air show when project employees inspected a Flying Fortress from active combat, the bomber campaign multiplied in interest and patriotic H.E.W. folks doubled their efforts in making the bomber's purchase possible. It was pointed out that the Fourth of July air show would have been impossible but through this campaign.

Stating that contributors would more than get a return for their pledges, the Buy-a-Bomber committee pointed out that the ship will actually be flown to and christened on the project that it would be assigned an immediate crew and flown to its battle front. It is expected that within 30 days weekly reports will come back to Hanford on the plane's progress.

Help Needed For Red Cross

The Richland Red Cross needs workers and needs them badly. The women of the Village have a definite responsibility in meeting the quota set for Richland Red Cross work. The need is greater than ever before for hospital garments, hospital slippers, bed jackets, robes, wash cloths and towels, and since the invasion the quota on surgical dressings alone has more than tripled.

Village women are urged to contact Mrs. Schmiedl, R-582, or the Chapter House, R-41, to offer their services in sewing. It is not necessary to be an expert seamstress to help as there are numerous tasks such as cutting, basting, and pressing for those who are less skilled in sewing. Most of the garments are made of salvaged materials, and a call has been made for clean, partly worn garments and bath towels. These may be turned in at the Chapter House on George Washington Way. Sewing may be done in an individual's own home or at the House on Mondays and Wednesday from 12 noon to 4 p.m. o'clock.

Men Needed Also

A good many men have inquired about donating blood to the blood bank. At present there are no facilities for this service, but these men may do their share by rolling bandages at the Red Cross Hut on Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. At least 10,000 dressings will be needed per month to fill Richland's quota.

The Richland Motor Corps is being started soon and all persons who have completed the Motor Corps course are asked to contact the Chapter as soon as possible.

The response of the women of Richland to help the Red Cross has been good up to this time, but from now on the need will be greater and the number of volunteers must increase. This is an opportunity to help, that should not be turned down.

Accidents don't pay—Just ask the man who has had one.

Battling It Out With Berlin

With several crafts and departments reaching Berlin in the bonds for bullets competition, Hanford Engineer Works passed its quota in the Fifth War Loan Drive which ends tomorrow. By the close of the campaign, the forecast is that every entry will have done its share in the bond purchasing program. When the picture above was taken of the bond board in front of the Time Office, Control, Field Engineering, Engineers' Office, Accounting, Riggers and Services stood out in front.

The Presidency

The Republican Party last week nominated Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for President and Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio for Vice-President.

G.O.P. party leaders say it is a ticket that assures the solid backing of a united party, appeals to the independent voter and commands the respect and confidence of the nation.

Meanwhile the Democratic nominating convention is coming up—and that's a hand that hasn't been shown. A political commentator predicted recently that President Roosevelt would "abdicate" at the convention—naming his successor in power.

But whatever the nomination results—and whoever wins the November elections, there is no question but that it is true of both men "You have one of the great opportunities of history," a statement made by Wendell L. Willkie upon Dewey's nomination. For the next four years the reins of executive authority must fall in capable hands.

All-Time Safety

The safety pledge made especially for "no accident week" is worthy of repetition, and so it is given below for daily thought.

"I do solemnly pledge to uphold the safety policies of this project to the best of my ability, to take no unnecessary risks, to execute my responsibilities and perform my work in such a manner that my personal safety and that of my fellow workers will be secure at all times. My reward will be certain knowledge that no act or failure of mine has caused blood to spill, wives to be widowed or children to be orphaned. On the fulfillment of this pledge, I rest my future peace of mind and conscience."

Contributions

Interpreting a fantastic Salvador Dali painting, a critic once explained its pulling power by saying that the person who beheld the picture had to put himself into the picture to make any sense of the thing at all, and by doing that he became part owner in the picture through projection of himself. So, since the picture was part his, he liked it. That sounds pretty easy—if vague.

But—so it is with The Sage. Every person who makes a contribution to its pages is thereby a share owner in its columns. It would be no end interesting to see a stream of employee suggestions and contributions coming in from the field and offices to make The Sage all the more human and representative.

The Sage belongs to all H.E.W. folks, so walk up and give and take your share.

Here's one hobbyist that makes his avocation pay. Leo Beckstead Jr., patrolman, figures he has rung up $750-worth of prizes during the years that he's been entering the "I like your brand of soap because—" contests. "This is one of the most educational hobbies a person could have," Beckstead says, "because it calls for research as well as economy of phrase." Figuring he's spent $75 on materials, this serious contest man has in his library such helpful books as "Dictionary of Thoughts" and "Hartmann's Vocabularies." Beckstead claims he's best on 25-word statements, but his wife—she's just won a $25 War Bond for a slogan. Winning 38 prizes in all is this patrolman's record, his most valuable award being a mechanical refrigerator valued at $285. Beckstead comes from Salt Lake City, Utah, and he includes riding range and professional boxing among his past experiences.

Contributors' Column

The moving poem below was written for Benny Chermak by Norman W. Traum, now employed as a warehouse clerk for Olympic. Chermak and Traum entered military service together, and through that friendship Traum met Chermak's sister, Viola, to whom he was married two years later upon being discharged from the Army. Chermak was killed in Sicily on July 10, 1943. This poem has grown out of the strong feeling that existed between the two men.

TO BENNY

Brave soldier, gallant man,
Died at the front—gun in hand.
Lived for you, country, died for her too.
God up in heaven will remember you.
Thanks to men like you that were free,
Able to enjoy this democracy.
Grieve for you, Benny, no more can we do.
But God up in heaven will remember you.
We are thankful there is still a God,
To carry a soul from a blood-soaked sod.
To take it to heaven, and cleanse it from war.
God bless you, Benny, for evermore.

Youthful Patriot

Lawrence Stanfield, Patrol Division, offered his daughter a trip from St. Petersburg, Florida to Durham, South Carolina for the purpose of visiting three aunts, whom she has never seen, and a brother, who is a Naval trainee at Duke University. Thirteen-year-old Kay wrote the following reply:

"Dear Dad,

In reply to your letter, I would like very much to go to Durham, but I don't think this is quite the time. With the fellows coming back from overseas they'll need every bit of space they can get so I guess I had better wait 'til next summer. I want to meet my folks very much, because they are my folks! But Dad, don't you think it would be better if I waited?

Love always,
Kay".

Famed Ranch Near Hanford

Not too far from Hanford there is a ranch whose holdings are only surpassed in the vast regions of Texas. It is the Harder Ranch in Adams County near Ritzville on U. S. Highway 395.

There are 100,000 acres in the "empire," enclosed by 200 miles of six wire fence. Down the length of it a man can ride for 26 miles before coming to the end, and crosswise it is 11 miles. Grazing on these acres are 6,000 head of Herefords.

Although the ranch sends more than 2,000,000 pounds of beef to the markets each year to be shipped over the world, operators of the ranch have managed with but 12 year-round hands.

Founder of this vast empire was Jacob Harder, who, as a young Dane came to America in 1883 to make his fortune. Dead since last November, his widow, who came to this country a bride of 17, and their three sons and daughter carry on with the work.

Most of the land lies in what is known as scab rock—land of dozens of black rock coulees that hold some 200 lakes and water holes. Hunting and fishing make the ranch a sportsman's paradise.

Hosts to literally thousands of guests, the Harders keep a "register" bearing this announcement on the cover:

Notice

Horse traders pay in advance.
Four bits a night for bed.
Six bits for supper.
No more than five in a bunk.
No spurs to be worn in bed.
No horses allowed upstairs.
No poker games in kitchen.
Prospectors to sleep in wash house.
Shootin' irons to be checked with bartender.
No rustlers or vigilantes taken in.

High Buying Power

Spokane is second among our American cities in the per capita buying power of its citizens. Long Beach, California is the only city that outranks Spokane.

Spokane is set in a little valley surrounded by evergreens and mountains. The entrance view is breath-taking. The city itself is clean and prosperous looking. Hats off to our industrious city to the north of Hanford.

Clear your Safety road and keep it open at all times.

Project Partnerships

Otto and Marie Koch have widely different jobs—he as an artist and she in the accounting department of Hanke-James-Zahniser & Warren. While Koch thinks of Chicago as home (he was formerly an advertising illustrator in the Windy City) and Mrs. Koch originates from a Russian province, the two have been in Hanford long enough to call their barracks rooms "home." In the picture above, Mr. K. kibitzes on Mrs. K's addition and subtraction.

A newcomer couple, O. A. and Lucille Kirkpatrick come from Buffalo, New York, where they worked at newspapering and nursing respectively. Now in the Transportation Department, "Doc" Kirkpatrick has been in 31 foreign countries, came to Washington partly so he could at last say he's been in every state in the union. Calling at the hospital (above) to take his wife to lunch, "Doc" manages a few minutes' conversation. They work different shifts; advocate a recreation hall for married couples only.

Job team Mada and John Thom hail from Ohio—know all the nice spots between here and there and up and down the Atlantic coast and all around Washington too. Not so long ago, Thom worked on an airfield construction job in Bermuda, while Mada just lazed around in the sun on the pleasure isle. She is a case worker in Hanford Welfare Service—and knows a thing or two about a hammer as well. Jack works at 200-W as a carpenter.

CASUAL COMMENT By Proxy

The Riggers, who are proud of a reputation for not doing things in half measures, started the ball rolling on what is developing into the Hanford Engineer Works band.

When the Riggers recently organized their baseball team, they decided that they also would form a band to whoop things up for the team.

But Earl Leazer was not to be daunted, and he pushed the idea until the H.E.W. Employees' Association purchased instruments through a lucky finding of some tucked away in a warehouse.

By this time the idea had grown so big that the Riggers decided it should be a project-wide band, and that is what it will be.

Monday League

Those up and coming Stump-Jumpers defeated Olympic 9-0. The shut-out gave the Jumpers a tie for first place with the Mechanical Department.

After a lot of protests and quawks on the part of the managers, the Mechanical Department defeated the Hankee-James boys 13-1.

The writer suggests that all concerned read the rule book and get a better understanding on what constitutes an illegal pitch—see Rule 8, Sections "A" and "D", which states that the ball must be held in both hands in front of the body for one second before he starts the wind-up or back swing.

The Crane Department won from the Butchers by a score of 9 to 5. The Kettle Benders won by forfeit from Vail Roofing.

The Championship of the Monday League for the first round was played on Thursday, June 29. In the playoff the Mechanical Department defeated the Stump-Jumpers 5 to 3.

Nursery and Day Care School Open in Richland

Under provisions of the Lanham Act, School District 400 is operating a Nursery School in the Richland Lewis Grade School southwest of the theater. Enrollment is limited to children between the ages of two to six of families where both parents are employed. The cost is 50 cents per day per child to defray the expense of meals. The hours of the school are from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Parents are requested to bring their children to room 106.

Other children from ages six to 15 will be cared for in the Extended Day Care program. Arrangement for enrollment in this program must be made with R. H. Fergin by phone at Richland 388, or in person at the Columbia High School, room 101.

Servicemen Get Calls Through Richland USO

A long distance telephone call a month for a birthday present to a serviceman is a new project of the Richland USO. Up to this time the Richland group has been putting on a birthday party for the boys who had birthdays during the month at the Pasco USO center. Starting this month, however, the sailors with birthdays in July put their names in a box and the lucky one whose name is drawn gets ten dollars' worth of long distance telephoning. This is even more popular than the monthly parties were.

An election of officers for the Richland USO has named the following women to lead the group: President, Mrs. H. H. Rector; Vice President, Mrs. Buster Harris; Recording Secretary, Mrs. E. K. Bragg; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Groll; and Treasurer, Mrs. R. T. Bissell.

Mrs. M. H. Smith Leader of Richland Camp Fire Girls

Mrs. Montford H. Smith has taken over leadership of the Miniheca group of the Richland Camp Fire Girls. The organization is composed of three groups: The Bluebirds, preparatory Camp Fire Girls under 10; the Miniheca, girls from 10 to 12; and the Tawanka group, composed of girls above second rank.

The Tawanka girls feel proud of the recent write-up of their Richland group in "The Guardian," National Camp Fire Girls' magazine, which told of their activities as Farm Aides. The girls helped cut asparagus this spring and plan to help with the strawberry and cherry picking in addition to their regular Victory Garden work.

Girls interested in joining the girls clubs are invited to the meeting today at 11:45 a.m. in the Grade School.

Form Model Plane Club

Wednesday evening the first meeting of the newly-formed Model Airplane club was held in the basement of the Grange Hall. Mr. Baldt is in charge of the club and extends an invitation to all Village boys and girls to come to the next Wednesday meeting. Future plans of the club include making and exhibiting model airplanes.

Labor Gang Saves 82 Man-Hours

Through Job Instruction Training, Labor Foreman John P. Olson cut job-time down from 150 to 68 man-hours. Handling men for 20 years, Olson was skeptical that J.I.T. could teach him anything about his job. After taking the course, however, he followed its teachings by giving more careful instruction to his men and assigning each a specific task. Dividends were the great saving of time in removing a temporary deck after a concrete pouring, removing corrugated transite, cleaning concrete floor and removal of lumber and litter. The same gang, through J.I.T., changed sub-grading from a haphazard shoveling of soil to fine grading, accurate to a fraction of an inch.

Strikes — and to Spare, Oons!

Doctor I. Q. Show Coming To Auditorium Tomorrow

The famous Dr. I. Q. program is coming to Hanford tomorrow night. Identical in every way to the regular weekly broadcast, the program will be conducted by Dr. I. Q. himself. The session will begin at 8 o'clock and will star Hanford folks selected at random from among the guests at the performance.

The Recreation Department under whose sponsorship the big time program is being presented, warns all to be prepared to answer "the $64.00 Question."

Only this similarity to the usual Dr. I. Q. show tomorrow night will be the "Local Only Angle." War time restrictions prohibition a national broadcast.

Following the show, the regular weekly dance will be in swing which will continue until 1 a.m.

U. S. Employees Elect

The Association of U. S. Engineers' Employees of H.E.W. held an election of officers at the New Club House last Tuesday, June 27. The newly-elected officers include: President, G. F. Meier; Vice-President, D. P. Land; Treasurer, F. L. Bayless; Financial Secretary, L. W. Warnke, and Recording Secretary, Virginia Helgeson.

The new officers propose to modify the constitution of the Association whereby members will have an active voice in the affairs. The club expects to sponsor several recreational activities in the near future.

A far too famous collection of words: "I never thought it would happen to me."

Tan Slowly, News Says

As the full effect of hot summer draws near, there are many who will go "all out" for nature and a new coat of suntan. The best way to acquire this coat is gradually over a period of two weeks or more. According to The Engineering Office Safety News of last week, those who get a tan in one afternoon may suffer the results of burns, causing stiff muscles, sleeplessness and large blisters for a week or more. Water sports fans should remember that alternate bathing and toasting result in even more serious burns and reactions.

A man at work is worth two in the hospital.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: What Do You Do on Your Day Off?

Thomas A. Hoy
.... Electrician

"Well, you know how it goes," Hoy said. "On Sundays I sleep a little late, wash out my socks and shirts, go to the ball games—things like that. The rest of the time I guess I just sit around and gab—or maybe I write a few letters to the family."

Hoy, from Waucoma, Iowa, has a son in the Marines and a daughter in Cadet Nurses' Training, while his wife and 11-year-old daughter keep the fires burning back home. He's been here since March 15 and lives in the barracks.

Mrs. B. K. Aldrich
.... Housemother

Motherless at two, homesteading in Montana at 20, energetic Mrs. Aldrich, housemother at Women's Barracks 18-A, uses her day off for exploring around Hanford—is interested in everything—even gets excited about a jaunt to Pasco.

Mother of two sons, one in Navy supply and the other a recent high school graduate, Mrs. Aldrich, a Missourian by birth, is a convert to Washington State and the Northwest—is ecstatic about a chunk of land she owns in the San Juan islands of the Puget Sound area.

W. H. Belling
.... Laborer

A fiddler from 'way back, Belling likes to get together on his day off with a good piano and scrape out a little music. "I'm no musician, mind you," he says, "and mostly I like mountain music, but I'd rather fiddle than eat."

A Californian from Oklahoma, Belling is single, likes to remember his oil field and barn dance days in the Southwest, is proud of his congressman cousin from the home state, says he can't sleep past six o'clock any morning—not even Sunday.

Jane Jones
.... H.E.W. Employees' Assn.

"Sunday's a great day," says Mrs. Jones. "I hurry through with my little jobs as fast as I can so I can spend as much time as possible with my little girl."

The three-generation family comes from Coffeyville, Kansas, where they are known for their handsome-ness.

On Sundays the trio can be found (along with a sister who also works on the project)—enjoying their "mutual admiration" group—sunbathing, writing letters to their Marine brother, eating like mad.

J. R. Lippert
.... Carpenter

"I used to play semi-pro ball myself," Lippert explains as he tells of spending his Sundays at the ball games. "Sixteen years of it, in fact—Great Bend, Kansas, and around there. Mostly I played first base, but I'm a little old for that now."

Lippert dreams of going fishing, since the lakes and streams are open again. "I'd like to catch some of those babies," he admits with a gleam in his eye.

Home is Long Beach, California for him; he has three daughters, two of them in Sacramento.
