

8, YORK PLACE. W. May 15. 1887

My dear Merivale,

I shall be most happy to come on the 23^d. as the next day I expect to leave England.

I have been wishing to talk to you about "chasing"
"blood money"; for not.

Withstanding my political economy, I feel strongly drawn to what Sir James Graham called Jack
Rade Legislation.

I saw Cloughlin's appointment on the day that I turned up an old Oxford Diary in which I had put down

"Drink tea with Cloughlin."
I will come by about 8 o'clock - as I shall start probably next day early.
With my kindest regards to Mrs Merivale.
Always very truly yours
+ Henry. J. Manning
