The exact date is not obtainable by the writer but somewhere between 1835 and 1850, possibly 1838, a handful of folks were meeting in the school house (then called citizens academy) to have Sabbath school. They decided to erect a church building from this meeting. The inspiration for the church came from a young convert named John S. Dunn, who felt he was called to preach. His father William S. Dunn gave the land for the church. Under John Dunn's leadership the church was erected and it is said that he was the first one to preach in it. He served the church for a time himself. The Dunn's Wrights, Stovalls, Lukes and others were members of the building committee. A wood structure was erected with two doors to the south end. The pulpit was between the two doors, and it is said that John Dunn requested to be buried under the window in the other end of the building. This request was not carried out however at his death. A Sunday school was organized and is still active today. This community has seen more changes in the last twenty years than ever before. The people have become scattered in this time and the Clark Hill Dam Basin is taking the homes of others. Despite all these setbacks though it has a total membership of 51 and is still a blessing to the community around it.
