TEACHING IS A MISSION

"And he gave some . . . teachers"

Two hundred boys were surveyed in the slum section of a large city. "They don't have a chance," concluded the analysts evaluating the boys' possible futures.

Twenty-five years later, 180 of those boys were contacted again. All but four were successful businessmen, lawyers, and doctors. Each one, when asked how he succeeded said, "There was a teacher..."

If that much worldly accomplishment can be attributed to the efforts of one teacher, shouldn't a Christian teacher be able to influence dozens of boys and girls for God's kingdom?

Christopher Dock, more than 200 years ago, said education's purpose is to make us as much like Christ as possible. Though no substitute for parents, teachers can have real impact, reinforcing godly homes, and supplementing weak ones. Educators know that schoolteachers are not teaching mere facts; they are teaching a way of life that will remain after many facts are forgotten.

Love speaks to every age in every generation. When asked how she had done it, the teacher who spurred those 176 boys to success replied, "It's really very simple. I loved those boys."

In Christopher Dock's day, when most schoolmasters centered upon the "3 Rs" rather than on children, Dock's educational emphasis was refreshingly different. One writer says of him, "We know he possessed an 'extreme love for children.' He did not underestimate the power of a warm personal love for each student to melt barriers erected by disobedience. It is evident that Dock loved and was loved by his pupils."

Seeing a "mission accomplished" is one of the "highs" in every teacher's experience, but too often there are "lows"—misunderstanding, criticism, rejection. The teacher who tries hard to help a student academically and socially, but sees no positive results, may feel discouraged and like a failure.

Sometimes we need reminders; teachers need all the encouragement they can get from school boards and patrons. Holding up the arms of your teachers will help them to help you in the mission of training your children.

God uses teaching, right along with preaching and parenting, to build His kingdom. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations" is part of the Great Commission. "And he gave some . . . teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

One former teacher recently commented, "When I think of school boys who are now ministers of the Gospel, faithful pillars in the church, I like to think that school had some influence in the direction their lives have taken."

How much does teaching accomplish? God gives the increase in His own time and way. And someday our Father who seeth in secret will openly reward teachers for their years of hard work, their prayers, and their faithful examples that helped to shape the lives of children in their care.

Journey Into God John Coblentz

How do you write a book about a Person who, in so many ways, defies description? This well-written book captures the beauty, magnificence, and righteousness of God while leading readers, especially young adults, to worship, repent, and draw nearer to Him. Chapters end with contemplative exercises and questions.

Insanity of God

Nik Ripken & Gregg Lewis

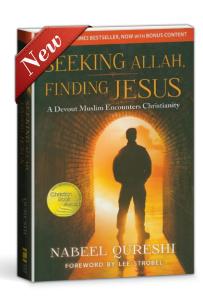

After years of apparently fruitless mission work, the author and his wife concluded that the Gospel just didn't work in Somalia. How could God be good when life was so dark? The Ripkens went on to collect stories of persecuted believers around the world, and learned that God is faithful even in suffering and darkness. Though not written from an Anabaptist perspective, The Insanity of God is a deeply touching reminder that God's ways are higher than ours.

My Ways Are Higher Maryann Martin

Ronnie and Maryann Martin answered God's call and moved to Honduras with their six children. Pouring their hearts into the work, they thoroughly enjoyed life at the mission. They loved the Hondurans, and the Hondurans loved them.

Then tragedy struck when Ronnie was killed in a hit-and-run accident.

Left to pick up the pieces, Maryann struggled with questions. How could she raise a family without her husband? Should they stay in Honduras? Why did God choose to take Ronnie, an ordained minister who filled such a vital role at the mission?

In this honest and moving true story, Maryann describes how God led her through grief, uncertainty, and doubt to acceptance and gratitude. Her testimony is one of learning to cling to God's promise that "as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways."
