The secret to maintaining Divine Balance is to create a relationship between your masculine and feminine in which the Divine Masculine is holding the Divine Feminine. In such a relation, the doing energy never takes over because the masculine is always checking in with the feminine to see how she is doing.

Another way that I see people being out of balance is to be too deeply in shadow feminine and not taking enough inspired action. Instead, you may just be waiting and watching too much, and staying in fear, as contrasted with daring, risky action that comes from faith.

Another key to having it all is find support from community, a partner and/or a mentor. If your family and partner aren't supportive of your dream, it's all the more important for you develop connections with like-minded others in our rich, virtual world.
