The inability to use any faculty affiliated with an ACTG severely hampers the potential list of people. All of the women on the NIH Women's Health Committee of the ACTG which I chair are by definition associated with ACTGs. This is particularly true of women investigators in the field of clinical research

RE: Coverage, ID Service - ICAAC

Joel, thank you for agreeing to cover the ID Consult Service during ICAAC for Mark Jacobson (Sept 30 and Connie Wofsy - Oct 1&2). Mark Jacobson (476-4082 ext 84150) will contact you midweek Sept 24-27, to "sign out" give general information. Margaret Wasilewski will be the Fellow (beeper 739-4737 or 821-8685). I know you will enjoy working with her.

The new daily dictated notes policy is in effect but I think you can be reasonably brief and you might work with Margaret to make an "arrangement".

Thank you.

TO: Authors - AIDS Clinical Review

RE: Suggested Outline, Format, Instructions

As you know, Paul Volberding and Mark Jacobson have asked me to provide a chapter in the upcoming 1992 edition of the AIDS Clinical Review series on the subject of management of HIV disease in women. Since we are establishing a consortium of women-related HIV clinical care and research in San Francisco, and we have just issued the AIDSFile on the subject of women, it seems especially prudent that this chapter be a consortium approach.

A suggested outline and topic author would be:

1. Epidemiology and Risk Factors for Transmission Nancy Padian
To cover general statistics, immunologic and STD co-factors, HIV as an STD, and transmission between partners and more casual associations.
2. Prevention Strategies Judith Cohen
To cover sex and IVDU prevention for women, crack cocaine/STD connection, early intervention for pregnancy and syphilis, and benefits of the outreach approach in early access to care
3. Clinical Management and Evolution of HIV Disease in Women Connie Wofsy
To cover routine issues of treatment and prophylaxis, mortality, and management of gyn infections, e.g. candida
4. Pharmacology and Licensure Issues Including Pregnancy Rebecca Coleman
To cover status of existing drugs in pregnancy, general consensus of treatment, and issues of cost
5. Human Papilloma Virus, CIN, and other STDs Ruth Greenblatt
To cover a general view of HPV, CIN, and STD data to date, related issues of access to care, and other inter-related issues
6. The Women's HIV Research Agenda Joyce Korvick
To cover priorities of research in women, inter-relationship of public health service agencies.

Overall Guidelines

The total manuscript should be 15-20 double-spaced, typewritten pages. Each of the six sections would be expected to have four double-spaced, typewritten pages and contribute 4-10 references as appropriate; one table/figure per section would be desirable. The AIDSFile can act as a very general overview. Authorship would read Wofsy, Padian, Cohen, Coleman, Greenblatt, Korvick with the overall chapter editor being Wofsy and the other contributors listed in order of the above chapter organization format. I think it would be very clear then how the order was established. The acknowledgments would recognize others as appropriate

Since the copy is required by October 2, 1991, I would like to have the copy by Wednesday, September 11, for internal editing and checking for overlap. This will allow the other authors will want to see the sum total of the text before final submission.

Thank you for your enthusiasm in participating; I think this makes a very nice document to include in the AIDS Clinical Review.
