IRVINE

The land of peace and serenity was also a barren land where save for an occasional Indian none had trod its scattered miles . . .

Then it was beautiful with its beauty as a child's unworn unscathed . . .

As the child
a fertile clay lay bare to turn upon the wheel of time where man's fingers would yield its shape . . .

The once proud hills now showed adolescent scars where man and beast had left their toil—their roads . . .

The pleasing roll gave way to a heated chisel with none to remain but a roughly hewn idea.

The innocent beauty departed as sweat began to show upon the brow . . .

It's trail was paved with a stronger foundation for what lay ahead.

A fertile land it was
that yearned to press its bosom skyward
as fertile as the idea growing on its face.

Clay
that once crumbled under cattle's hooves now yielded to the giant claws of man's invention . . .

Steel and stone replaced the ugly scars . . .
and the land matured . . .

Rising from the firmest roots was an idea—
an idea with character . . .

The land had lost its innocence
but it was barren no more . . .

Donovan E. Dorsey

...innovation had impregnated the land.

A fertile land it was
that yearned to press its bosom skyward . . .

"Soon now the rolling hills where the sleek and beautiful deer and grazing cattle once roamed in an atmosphere of tranquility will be no more.

"Our children shall not know the experience of roaming over these rolling hills and listening to the wild birds as they talk to nature. Here now will be a fountain of knowledge where the cream of our youth shall drink from the rivers of learning. Here will grow men who will delve into the science of the future, men who will live and work in outer space. Here men will learn to combat and win the age-old battles of man and prepare him for greater things in the future.

"The future belongs to our youth. Our footprints upon the sands of time shall be history to them."

William L. Pereira, Architect

The Irvine campus site was selected in 1960 after an extensive survey. The original 1000 acres were donated to the University by the Irvine Company. Planning for the campus began in late 1961 when Mr. L. E. Cox established an office in the old Irvine Ranch home. W. L. Pereira and Associates were appointed to prepare a Long Range Development Plan. In January of 1962 Dr. Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr. was appointed Chancellor and on February 1, 1962 Mr. Coulson Tough transferred from UCLA to Irvine as Campus Architect. On December 13, 1962 the proposed Long Range Development Plan was submitted to the Board of Regents. This was approved as a basis for publication of the plan and further architectural and planning studies. The firms of W. L. Pereira and Associates of Los Angeles, Jones and Emmons of Los Angeles and Blurock and Ellerbroek of Newport Beach were appointed for this work. In December of 1962 the first Irvine campus building was completed and the then existing staff consisting of about six persons moved into this building. This building is now called the "General Service Building."

The initial building designs were approved by The Regents in the fall of 1962. Working drawings were completed by late summer. The landscaping plans for the campus were prepared by three landscape firms: Hahn and Hoffman of Sierra Madre, Frederick M. Lang of South Laguna, and Robert H. Carter of Los Angeles.

Construction began with the initial rough earth grading in late 1963 and building construction started in January of 1964. During construction, the campus was dedicated by President Lyndon B. Johnson on June 20, 1964. The initial buildings and related utility work were essentially complete by August of 1965 and the buildings were occupied by the faculty and staff. The first classes began October 4, 1965. The total cost for constructing the initial buildings, developing the site and providing utilities and furniture and equipment for the buildings is estimated at $20,000,000.

The Irvine campus is planned for an ultimate enrollment of 27,500 students. The initial buildings were designed in a scale to relate to the ultimate size of the campus and to reflect the urban environment that will exist when the campus will have a daily population of 40,000 persons including students, faculty and staff. The architectural design was envisioned by the architects to provide this environment and to relate to the gentle, rolling terrain of the campus site. The exterior wall surfaces were designed considering the white sky condition and the resulting glare prevalent in the Orange County coast area. The colors selected for the buildings considered the prevailing color range running from the greens resulting from the winter rains to the golden and brown hills existing in late summer. The plazas are designed to serve as major pedestrian gathering places.

The campus development will be continuous to meet the projected enrollment which will increase by about 1,000 students a year. Construction activity will be a normal part of the campus scene to provide the facilities needed for the future students of Irvine.

Dedication

As we lift our eyes from this place across the valley to the magnificent hills beyond, we are reminded of our responsibility to build here not merely an institution to prepare our youth for the traditional learned professions and career interests, but one which shall provide them opportunity to seek deeper insight into human experience and shall lead them to know the vast body of knowledge and heritage of beauty in all forms upon which our society rests.

Dean, Division of Fine Arts

Fine Arts

Among the instruments of human evolution, the arts are supremely important. Every culture develops art forms as surely as it develops a language, and as in the past, the spirit of the present will be captured and symbolized finally through the arts. The program in the fine arts is committed to significance and excellence in developing the creative efforts of its students.

The Division wishes to provide an education that develops critical and historical understanding as well as creative and performing artistry in each student. The objective of the program is to produce literate artists who are responsive to intellectual stimuli, capable of integrating knowledge into creative acts and committed to rigorous standards of professional involvement. The arts are not viewed as merely ornaments of civilization, but as organic components of life concerned with human vitality and vision.

Diane Holt, Student Speaker

We view the activities within the university as a continuum and the educational experiences as a seamless encounter with knowledge, human vitality and vision. We care desperately about the individual student who cares desperately about making sense out of his life. We want to communicate the sense that one is constantly becoming, that no one arrives and that the university experience is being and becoming, not watching and waiting. We believe finally that the university should be at the cutting edge of current occurrences, a productive agent in extending the level and view of knowledge utilized in a society and an imaginative agent in man's continuing search for the true, the beautiful and the good.

Inauguration of Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr.
May 20, 1966

As I look at the world about me, I am sure there never has been a more exciting time in the history of man in which to embark on the building of a university. Blessed with more knowledge and technology than he has ever known, yet fraught with, and frustrated by, more problems than he presently knows how to solve, man nevertheless dares today to explore, to test, to talk about, and to do more in behalf of the human estate than ever before in history.

Graduation

The Class of '66, first to earn degrees at UCI and numbering 14 at a Commencement dinner, June 25, 1966, in the Commons, was addressed by Bernard R. Gelbaum, professor of mathematics who said: "In your memorable year at Irvine you have been one of a group of adventurers brave enough to forego the comfortable paths to success, daring enough to gamble with a set of untried ideas and eager enough to cause a quiet revolution in University outlook. You were endowed with great resources, excellent counsel, a desire to succeed and the crucial ingredient of courage."

Vincent Healy holds his B.A. diploma.

Clayton Garrison, congratulates Jeri Collins, first recipient of the annual Nicholas Aeberhard Memorial Award.

Division of Social Sciences*

*James March, Dean
Division of Social Sciences*

*Richard Snyder, Dean
Graduate School of Administration*

Robert Saunders, Dean School of Engineering

The educational programs in the Division of Social Sciences have a double emphasis. First, they are built upon systematic empirical observation and quantitative analysis of human behaviour.

Second, important new problems confront society; and social scientists have a responsibility to assist in the development of solutions to these problems. In a world in which the knowledge of human behaviour is increasing rapidly, training in the social sciences must emphasize the basic analytical tools and the processes by which knowledge is gained.

The School of Engineering provides the tools requisite to the practice of engineering in industry and government after a short internship. The various programs emphasize the fundamentals underlying engineering so as to make easy future maintenance of engineering competence by either formal or informal study. Thus, UCI graduates will be equipped with adequate intellectual tools for updating their technological knowledge in the presence of a rapidly expanding technology and the changing needs of society.

Graduate study is a major aspect of UCI's academic activity. Appropriate graduate degrees at the Master's and Doctor's levels, emphasizing the creative arts and creative scholarship as well as technical proficiency are offered.

The graduate student is given full opportunity to achieve excellence in such disciplines as English, foreign languages, Mathematics, bibliography and computer techniques; to develop some knowledge of the history of his area of interest; and to acquire some understanding of higher education in this country and some guided experience in teaching.

Edward Steinhaus, Dean Biological Sciences

James C. McCollock, Dean Humanities

The Division of Biological Sciences reflects the "new biology" in curriculum and research programs. UCI's pedagogical approach and departmental organization recognize several levels of biology. They are reflected in the Division's departmental organization; Molecular and Cell Biology, Organismic Biology, Population and Environmental Biology and in addition to these, Psychobiology, which is concerned with the biological significance and bases of behavior.

These themes unify the fields of biology—in the past all too rigidly separated and grouped according to whether their subject matters were animals, plants, or microorganisms.

The trend to abstraction provides the major challenge to students of Physical Sciences. The faculty, active in research and graduate education, is also vitally concerned with undergraduate teaching. Curricula of the Division meet the needs of those with little technical background as well as those preparing for creative research in physical science.

Mathematics, physics and chemistry, while providing the foundation of the technology that dominates contemporary civilization, underlies to an ever increasing extent the new developments in the biological and social sciences.

The Humanities are concerned with fundamental problems of human thought and experience. They contribute both to understanding and to continued appraisal of the human condition. They introduce the student to those many broad difficult problems of value that are not susceptible to statistical or quantitative judgment.

The Division is composed of the Departments of English, Foreign Languages and Literature, History and Philosophy. It stresses not only the literary heritage of the American student, but the history from many different nationalistic standpoints, and attempts to make philosophical concepts clear and applicable to daily life.

The University of California at Irvine is a university for the modern man. It confronts the prospects of the next century with enthusiasm. It regards the past with respect but without nostalgia. It is unashamed of modern society, unintimidated by modern problems, stimulated by modern opportunities.

UCI Coaching Staff

Guiding the teams as Coaches are: (left to right) Wayne Crawford, athletic director; Dick Sweet, sailing; Al Irwin, water polo and swimming; Duval Hecht, crew; Ray Thorton, tennis; and Dan Rogers, varsity basketball and golf. Not shown: Dick Davis, frosh basketball.

Dr. Wayne Crawford, UCI's athletic director, has launched a most remarkable first year of athletics at UCI. Starting from scratch, the UCI coaching staff has molded an exciting and highly successful intercollegiate sports program, and has at times received national acclaim. A unique faculty, staff and student intermurals program was also arranged by the department and drew wide participation.

The Big I Boosters was formed by a group of local businessmen who were interested in the Irvine inter-collegiate athletics program. They contributed time, support and money toward the successes of Irvine's first athletic teams.

Irvine's littlest Big I Booster.

These gentlemen are the members of Irvine's crew booster club, Founders of Rowing. They are business men in the area who used to row competitively or have an interest in the sport. Largely through their support, crew has found a home at UCI.

Water Polo

Coach Al Irwin greeted a fifteen-man squad including four Junior College All-Americans this fall and prospects looked bright, but none could foresee the resounding success to be achieved by the team in its first year. The All-Americans; Pat Glasgow and John Van Cleave, guards; and Bill Leach and Bob Nealy, forwards, formed the nucleus of a powerful first year squad. In their first encounter the team leveled Cal Poly Pomona 22-6. From then on they fashioned a season's record of fourteen wins, against four losses, earning them a high national ranking. One of the year's highlights was a second place finish to UCLA in the All-University of California Polo Tournament. Forward Bill Leach was named to the All-UC First Team.

Bob Nealy, left and Pat Glasgow, juniors at the University of California, Irvine, were honored by the American Coaches Association as All-American water polo selections. Nealy was named on the third team and Glasgow received an honorable mention.

A large turnout prompted Coach Al Irwin to form a freshman water polo squad and arrange a schedule of games. Bob Sharp and Dave Smith led the squad to victories in six out of eight of their contests. Highlights of the season were two victories over UC Riverside's Varsity. Other regulars on the squad were: John Odsit, Steve Cohee, Bob Eubanks, Steve Henkle, Jeff Neuroth, Paul Posznanter, Bob Sharp, John Short, Dave Smith, Gary Wise, Jerry Winterboer, and George Witt.

An awards banquet was held on January 12 for UCI's first water polo team. The banquet was held at the Balboa Bay Club with a guest speaker. The highlights of the season were revisited. Those players receiving top honors were Bob Nealy; most valuable player; Pat Glasgow, Captain; and Bill Leach for the special "hustle" award for all-around play. Those receiving letters were Doug Barsante, Dave Belknap, Pete Beauregard, Larry Broering, Bob Ernst, Danny Gelvin, Pat Glasgow, Randy Howatt, Dave Kelly, Jerry Kiel, Bill Leach, Bob Nealy, Dan Neyenhius, and John Van Cleave. Dave Smith was elected captain of the frosh team while Bob Sharp was voted most valuable player.

CHANCELLOR'S TIP

The first season of basketball at Irvine began with pre-game ceremonies including the Chancellor's tip at left where Riverside's Chancellor and our own Chancellor, Daniel G. Aldrich leap at mid-court. Irvine went on to win its first game 85 to 71.

Jeff Bland drives through Pacific defense for a score. Mark Nelson positions for a possible rebound.

Irvine's first basketball team, with 12 university and junior college transfers coached by Dan Rogers, turned in a fine first season of 15 wins against 11 losses. A starting team of Tom Bryan and Bob Johnson at guards, Mark Nelson at forward, with Jeff Bland and Eldon McBride alternating at the other forward position, scored impressive wins over UCR, Westmont, and Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo. This group of starters plus consistent help from Scott McOwen at guard presented a balanced scoring attack catalyzed by a fast-break offense.

The frosh basketball team compiled a fantastic 19 win and 5 loss record against the finest freshman competition in the nation. Starting as forwards were Nick Sanden and Dave Fontius, Mike Heckman at center, and Jim Farley, Charley Brande and Eric Carlson alternating as guards. Nick Sanden was voted most valuable player on this year's squad.

Bob Johnson receives ball under basket.

Mark Nelson, center on Irvine's great first year basketball team, was chosen as the most valuable player. Nelson led the team in rebounds and usually scored in double figures. Honored with Nelson were Tom Bryan, chosen team captain and Bob Johnson was voted the best defensive player.

The entire squad was honored at the awards banquet sponsored by the Big I Boosters. Pete Newell, famed basketball player and coach, now director of athletics at UC Berkeley, was the guest speaker.

The Anteaters began the first ever competitive year in swimming on a high note and ended on a high note.

Early in December, Irvine finished third in the Pacific Coast Relay Championships. One week later in the All-University Championships at UCLA, Irvine was second, and followed up by winning the Golden Coast Championships at Santa Barbara where Bill Leach won the "Helms Award" as the outstanding swimmer. Bob Wilhite and Don Stewart led Irvine to a first place team championship at the UCI Invitational Diving Tournament. Bob Wilhite was awarded the outstanding diving award.

The freshmen and varsity were combined as one team to compile a record of seventeen wins and only one loss. Outstanding freshmen were: Dave Smith, backstroke and sprints; Bob Sharp, butterfly and individual medley; Pete Stys, breaststroke; Steve Cohee, distances and; Bob Wilhite, diving.

Duvall Hecht greeted 40 inexperienced men at the onset of this year's rowing season and molded them into three boats of rowers who surprised everyone. The rigorous afternoon and evening workouts originating from the boathouse on Shell-maker's Island prepared the oarsmen for a pretty stiff list of competition. In achieving their successes the Anteaters employed a comparatively slow heat with the oars carried virtually flat along the surface of the water with a flip catch in the driving portion of the stroke.

Golf

To round out a rather complete sports program, Irvine formed an intercollegiate golf team. The team was coached by Dan Rogers and faced some stiff competition away and on their home course—Rancho San Juan. A full schedule of matches is being planned for next year with several tournaments on the list.

Tennis

Coach Ray Thorton's tennis team finished a fine first year of competition. Behind the consistent play of Gayle Dukelow who played first singles and the combination of Dukelow and Harvey Klyce in doubles, the Irvine netters held their own against some stiff competition. Highlight of the year was a third place finish in All-University of California tourney at the Santa Barbara campus.

Intramurals

Participation in this year's intramural athletic program was tremendous. Coach Ray Thorton, who headed the program, organized leagues in team volleyball, football, basketball, and softball and had round robins in co-ed and two man volleyball. Students officiated and organized play. Along with the various leagues, all facilities were open to student and faculty and staff use during each day and on Tuesday and Thursday nights. The pool, weight room and gymnastics room got plenty of use at these times, as well as the tennis courts later in the year. To round out the program, squash and handball were added with the recent completion of the courts adjacent to the pool.

Cheerleaders

Along with the election of the Anteater as the official UCI mascot came the selection of his spirit representative, the first UCI cheerleaders and songleaders. They were selected through a screening by the Activities Committee and election by the student body. Despite the inconvenience of being chosen only a few weeks before the start of basketball season, UCI's first pep squad met the situation with a ZOT and handled it well. Uniforms and routines were quickly assembled in time to greet the mighty Anteater as he stepped on the court for the first time.

The enthusiasm of the elite eleven echoed from the bleachers throughout the season as they successfully began another new precedent on the UCI campus . . . a sincere and spirited interest in athletics reflected in the resounding ZOT of conquest.

LET'S GO, ANTEATERS

"Boola, boola," cried Yale in the good old days. "Charge!" thundered USC in more contemporary times. Now tune up your tonsils for a new battle cry, this one belonging to the University of California at Irvine, whose traditions date back to October 4. (On that date, 88,- 000 acres of former citrus and cattle ranch opened up as UCI.) What UC

The Winner

A new campus needs new and different ideas. One of the most different ideas to appear during UCI's charter year was the selection of the ANTEATER or Antbear as it is actually called for UCI's official mascot. The selection took place in the minds of different students at different times during the strenuous campaigning which the ANTEATER forces, led by Schyler Bassett and the Zeta Omega Tau, steadily gained in strength. The final decision was made November 30, 1965 when ANTEATERS was selected over runners-up Eagles, Unicorns, Golden Bears and Seahawks. Advocates of the ANTEATER cited its originality, uniqueness and its relevance to the UC tradition (ANT-BEAR) as factors in the decision.

SPECTRUM — Early in the academic year, enthusiasm was generated for a campus newspaper. Because university financial and faculty support for such a project was not available, interested students formed a self-supporting, non-profit corporation. The Irvine Student Press Corporation, organized for the express purpose of publishing the Spectrum newspaper, operated with a five-man Board of Directors and was supported by advertising from local businesses.

TONGUE — The Tongue was conceived with the purpose of better informing students, faculty and administration of campus affairs.

SCKEED LITERARY MAGAZINE — Members: Joanne Aldrich, Spy Babeaux, Nancy McCall, Greg Hoffman, Gloria Bosque, Amy Smejd, Louise Lindorf and Tony Gregory.

UCI BOOK COLLECTORS — Winners of the Adolph A. Kroch Student Book Collection Contest for 1965-66 at UC Irvine, from left are: Thomas Felt of Costa Mesa, first place; Beth Trinast of La Canada, third; and Mrs. Philip Model of Anaheim, second.

Rising from the firmest roots was an idea—an idea with character . . .

The first UCI residence halls, the ten cottages comprising Mesa Court, opened with the University in September 1965. Accommodating 500 students, these halls were situated on the only campus "mesa" — a natural tableland — hence the name "Mesa Court."

Each cottage is divided into six suites consisting of a living room, four double rooms and double bath. Outside the suite arrangement each house includes a formal living room and RA suite on the first floor; a recreation room, library and a laundry on the second.

WHY DON'T IVERSONS SERVICE PEOPLE SMILE?

It has been said that they never smile therefore they seem unfriendly. They do smile. But it's a secret smile. Their's is a big job. With 18 service lifts operating and knowing that the service has to be good as the car, there isn't much time for smiling. They know that you need your Volkswagon as quickly as possible and it has got to be operating to perfection. Iverson has 47 VW factory trained personnel to serve you and your needs. To do this properly and to your satisfaction, is no laughing matter. The secret smile comes from a job well done and after you have left. As for being a satisfied customer, you'll just have to try his service and smile to yourself.
