The Legacy & The Promise

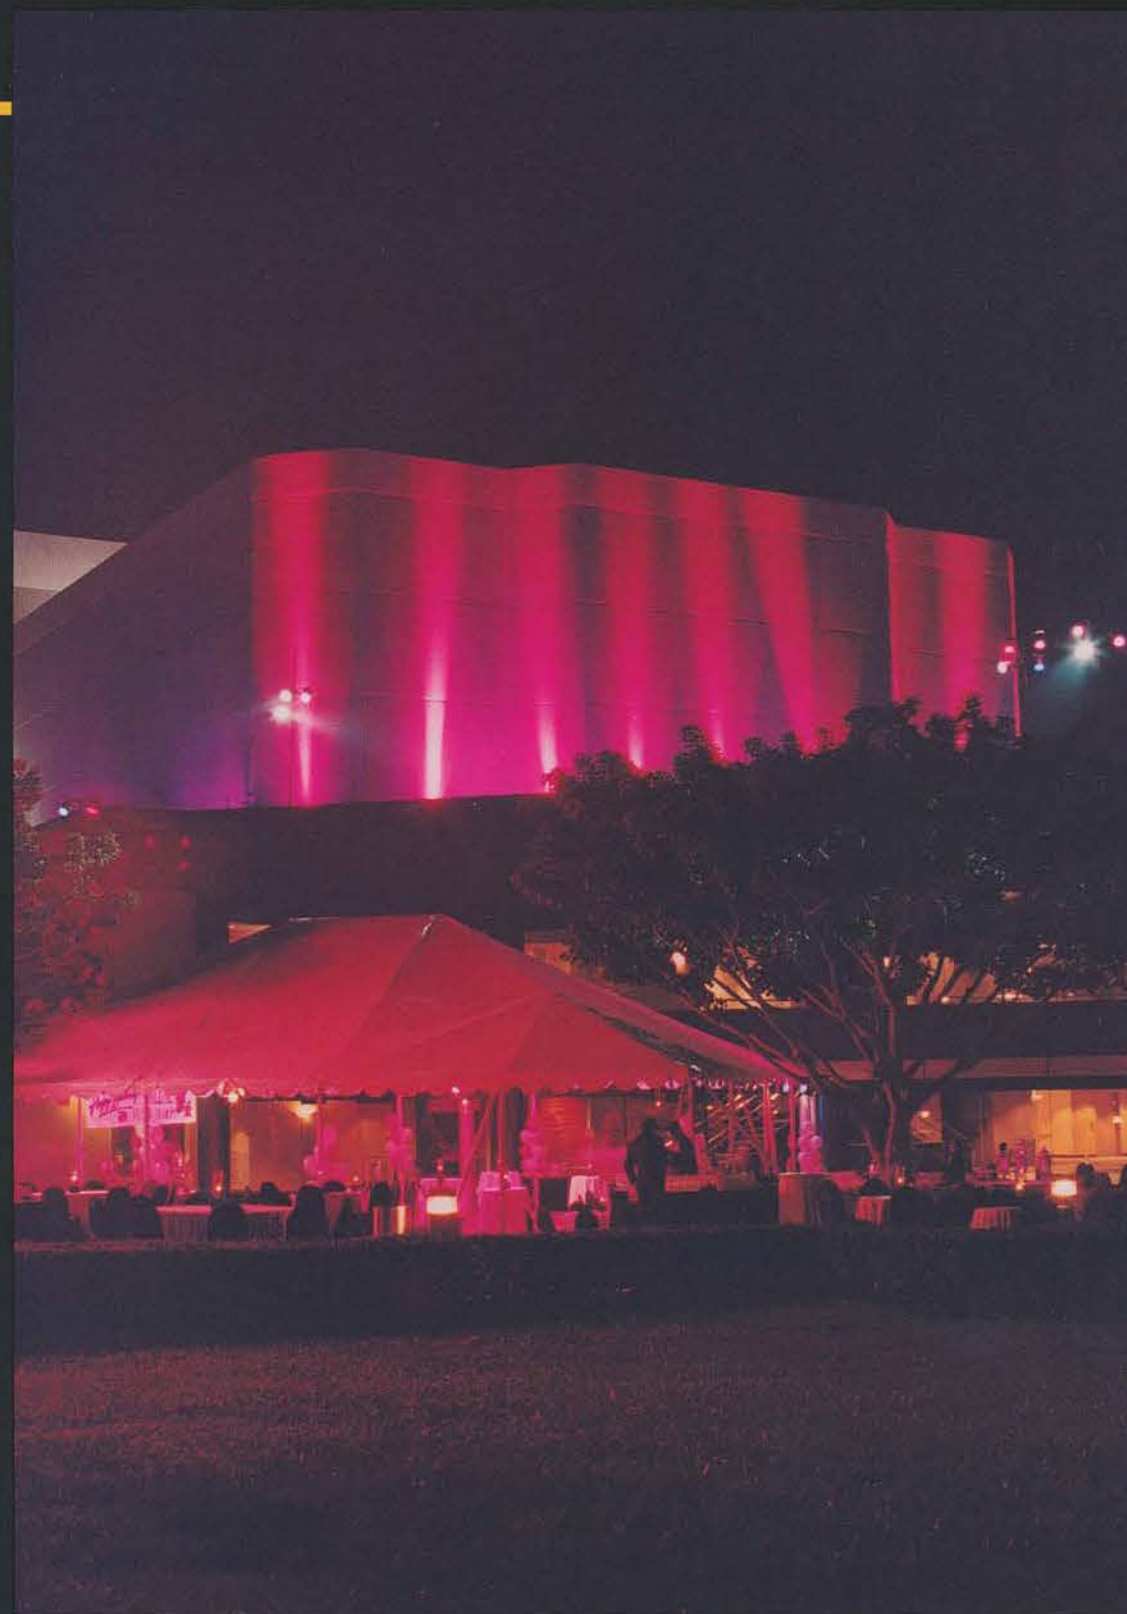

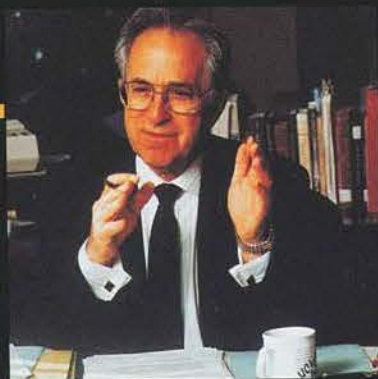

As UCI enters its third decade, the dream of Dan Aldrich, UCI's founding Chancellor, to create a multidisciplinary campus has been realized through Irvine's eight distinct academic units. The reputation of the campus was, and continues to be, built on a wide base of achievements ranging from the establishment of the first school of Social Ecology, to the nationally ranked departments of Comparative Literature and Dance.

The Legacy & The Promise

Our campus has clearly earned a reputation for academic excellence. The awarding of the 1995 Nobel prizes to UCI's Chemistry Professor G. Sherwood Rowland and Physics Professor Frederick Reines is indicative of the exceptional quality of our faculty. This pursuit of excellence is also mirrored in the profile of our student body, this year's freshman class attracted 13 National Merit Scholars and 107 Regents Scholars. Research is an integral part of our challenging undergraduate curriculum. US News and World Report '95 ranked UCI's undergraduate program among the nation's top fifty.

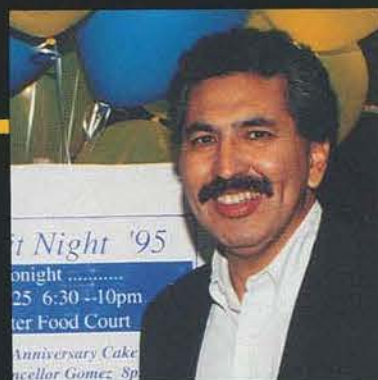

Perhaps the best barometer of UCI's development is the campus' physical expansion. We experienced our greatest period of growth under the leadership of our second Chancellor, Jack Peltason. Where once only muddy earth existed, we now have 357 structures. Walking the concentric circles around Aldrich Park, we view an architectural buffet, ranging from the stoic, waffle exteriors of the original nine buildings to the award winning design of the Science Library.

During the nineties, UCI has experienced the "growing pains" of institutional adolescence. Issues including the Medical Center's fertility clinic controversy, the economic downturn threatening our financial stability, and the search for permanent outreach programs to replace the inclusive efforts of Affirmative Action are challenges students, faculty, and administrators must successfully address. UCI has always hosted a cohesive yet diverse community. A campus spirit of collaboration is at the core of our common achievements, and our ability to face challenging realities.

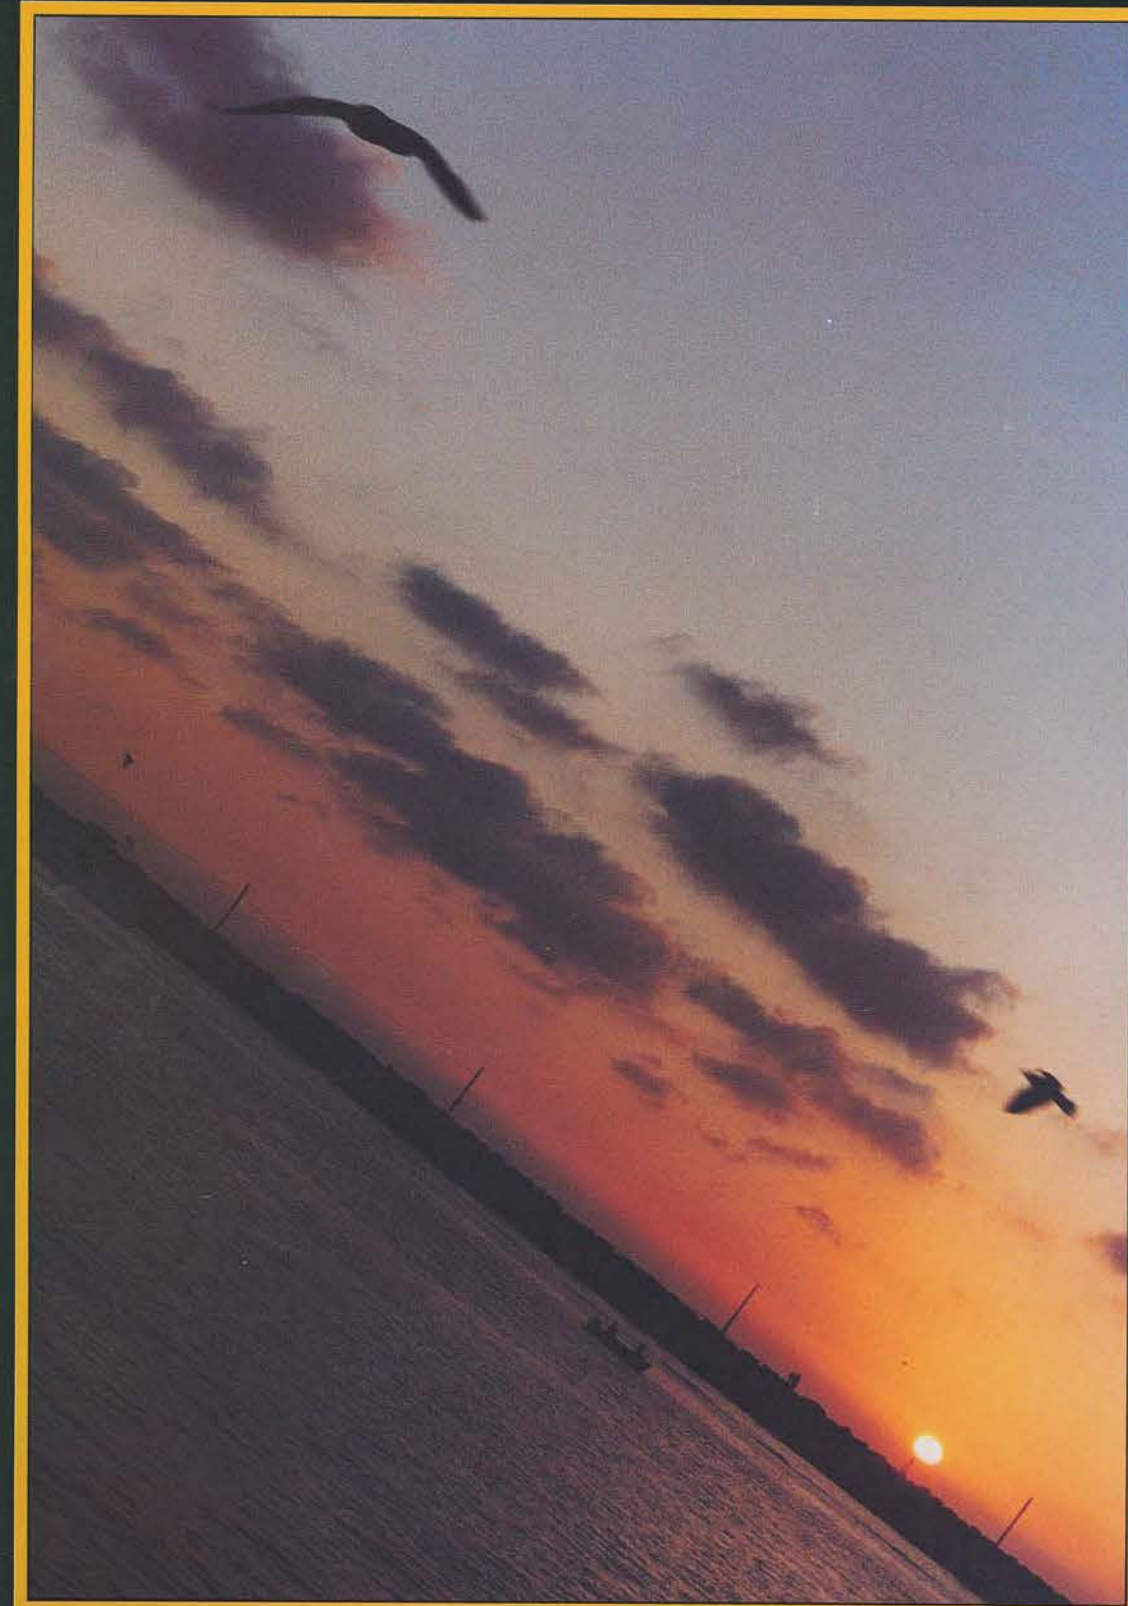

Throughout our first thirty years, UCI's greatest resource has been the 50,514 undergraduate students that have walked Ring Road and filled our classrooms. The unique nature of our student body is mirrored in our 300 diverse clubs, 28 Greek societies, student media organizations and competitive athletic teams. Academically serious and modest by nature, the best time to witness the vitality of Irvine Anteaters is at our major annual events...Wayzgoose, SPOP, Rainbow Festival, Buddy Games, etc.

How will UCI compete and contribute to the world of the 21st Century? Chancellor Wilkening's primary goal for our campus is to promote and further develop our research potential. Student priorities call for quality classroom instruction, increased access to advanced computer technology and a more student centered administration. To a large extent our future lies in the innovative strategies and devotion of our faculty and administrators. We look with great promise towards the new leadership of Jim Danzinger, Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Manuel Gomez, Vice Chancellor of Student Services and many new academic appointees.

"Today we are surrounded by the undeveloped hills of Orange County. In years to come, a university of truly monumental proportions will arise here. It will be the focus of a new center of population which will number, by 1980, more than one hundred thousand persons. This adds new dimensions to the creation of a new campus. It is symbolic of the central role of the University in modern life touching and influencing almost every part of the society it serves."

*UC President Clark Kerr
Irvine Dedication - June 20, 1964*

TOP: The UCI Bookstore was among several of the support services that were initially housed in temporary structures.

ABOVE: From the beginning, "Chancellor Dan" wanted UC Irvine to be a campus intrinsically linked to the growing community around it.

RIGHT: Chancellor Daniel Aldrich, Jr., architect William Pereira, and Irvine Co. President Charles Thomas formed the core of the planning committee.

1957

1957 UC Regents appointed Clark Kerr as the new UC President. In addition, they decided that three new UC campuses were needed in Santa Cruz, San Diego, and in East Los Angeles or Orange County.

March 1959 Irvine Ranch, one of twenty-three possible sites, was chosen as the location of the new UC school. World-renowned architect William Pereira developed plans for the community surrounding the school site.

July 1960 Irvine Co. donated 1,000 acres of ranchlands as a gift to the university. The University purchased an additional 510 acres of adjacent land to be used for housing and other campus services.

Birth of a Campus

LEFT: In 1965, UC Irvine students arrived on campus before the landscaping did.

BELOW: Enrollment on the first day of school included 958 freshmen, 215 sophomores, 254 juniors, and two seniors.

1964

December 15, 1961 The name "UC Irvine" was approved for the new school, commemorating the original landowners, the Irvine family.

January 19, 1962 Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr., the University Dean of Agriculture, was named as the first Chancellor of UC Irvine. The official inauguration was held May 20, 1966.

June 20, 1964 U.S. President Lyndon Johnson and California Governor Pat Brown addressed a crowd of 15,000 at the dedication of the UC Irvine campus.

TOP: The Fine Arts Village, completed in October 1970, housed UC Irvine's drama, art and dance studios, as well as a concert hall.

LEFT: The campus expanded along with the student population; but some classes preferred to meet under the trees rather than under a roof.

RIGHT: UC Irvine has always been committed to multiculturalism. Early programs included performances by this Samoan dance troupe.

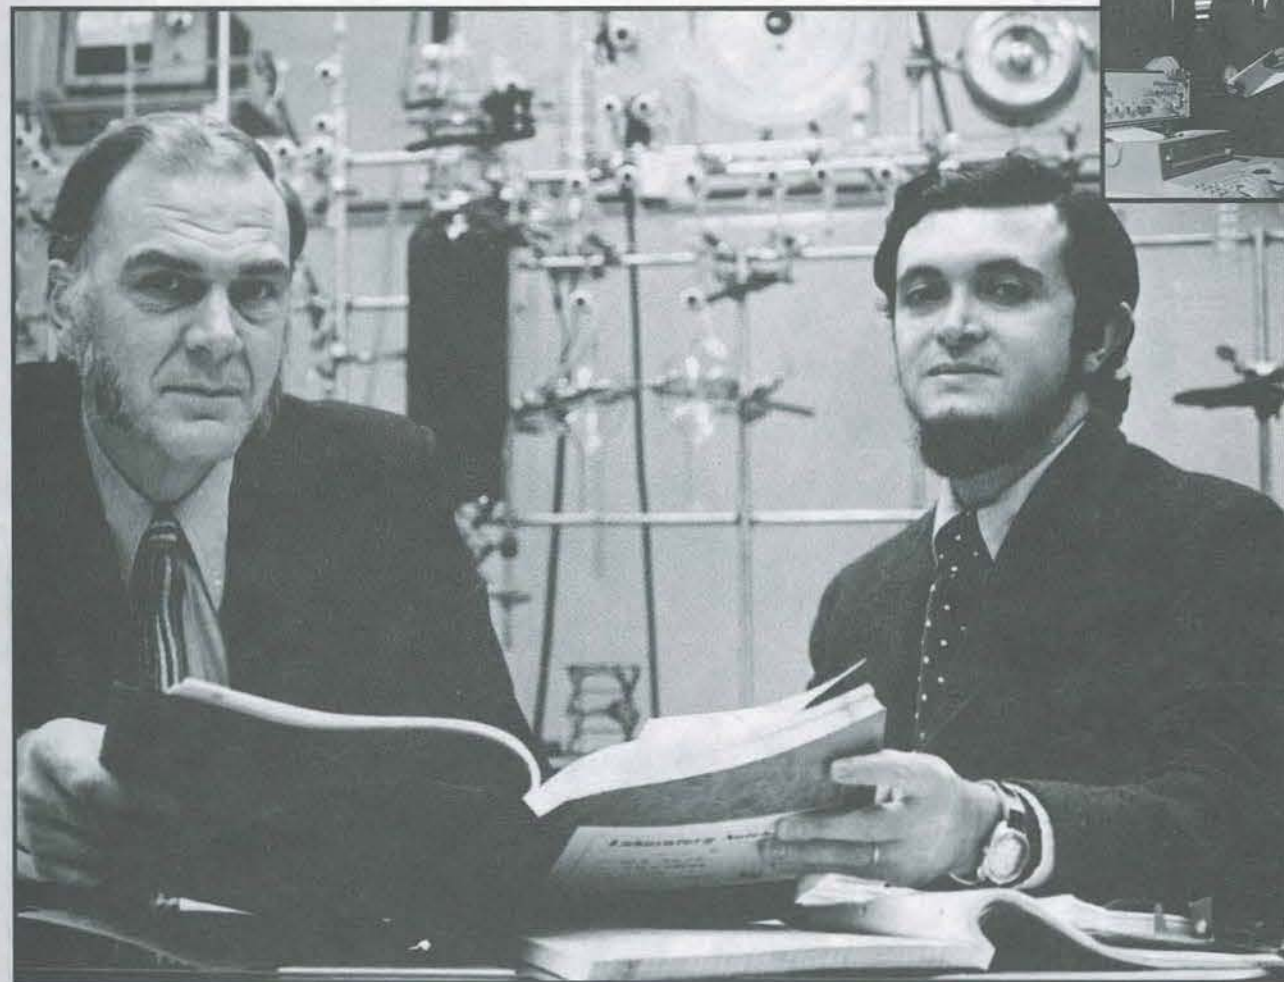

1965

September 26, 1965 The first convocation was held in Campus Hall. The initial academic procession included 118 faculty members, 99 of those doctorates.

September 26, 1965 Five hundred students moved into eight dorm buildings in Mesa Court, UC Irvine's first on-campus housing complex for undergraduates.

October 4, 1965 First day of classes. 1,589 students attended class in the eight buildings that originally comprised the UC Irvine campus.

ABOVE: In 1973, Professor F. Sherwood Rowland and his assistant Mario Molina (now at MIT) first theorized that chlorofluorocarbons would destroy the ozone layer. In 1995, they were awarded the Nobel Prize in Chemistry for their work.

TOP RIGHT: Though Information and Computer Sciences began as a committee, it rapidly expanded into a full academic unit in order to meet the demands of an ever increasing technological world.

1967

November 1965 The students elected the Anteater as UCI's mascot, inspired by the anteater in Johnny Hart's comic strip "B.C." "ZOT!" became the rally yell.

June 25, 1966 UC Irvine held its first commencement exercises. Ten Bachelors degrees and three Masters degrees were awarded.

February 1967 Associated Students of UCI (ASUCI) was created, including three officers and twenty-five senators. The ASUCI officers were: President Jack Lewin; VP Donald Cline; and Secretary Ross Walker.

TOP: The Vietnam War was the hot topic, whether at demonstrations in the park or in the quiet of a Mesa Court living room.

ABOVE: Several hundred members of the student body and faculty convened to protest the firing of UC President Clark Kerr by Governor Ronald Reagan and the UC Regents.

RIGHT: UC Irvine students joined the fight to get police troops off the UC Berkeley campus during a period of heavy Vietnam War protests in that area.

1968

October 1968 Affiliation with UC California College of Medicine brought the total student population at UC Irvine to 4,123.

September 1970 Two out of eight Mesa Court dorms became co-ed. For the first time, men's suites were located on the same floor as women's suites.

April 1970 The first annual Wayzgoose Festival was held in Campus Park, featuring games, booths, foods, and performances sponsored by Associated Students ASUCI.

LEFT: Before the Food Court, Phoenix Grille, or B.C.'s, the Commons was the only on-campus food service for students, staff, and faculty at UC Irvine.

BELOW LEFT: The Commons, located across from the Main Library, served as the all-purpose building: lunchroom, study center, and student lounge.

BELOW: When RAs and staff members welcomed students to Mesa Court in 1965, all the halls were single-sex dorms.

1972

Spring 1972 The science fiction movie "Planet of the Apes" was shot on campus, the cast included Charlton Heston, Humanities Hall, and a few hundred apes.

September 1974 Middle Earth Housing Complex opened for UC Irvine undergraduates, with seven residence halls, one office, and Buckleberry Dining Hall.

1975: A new post office opened in the city of Irvine, and UC Irvine was designated its own zip code: 92717.

ABOVE: The Program in Social Ecology, the first in the United States, was established in 1970; it finally received its own building in 1984.

BELOW: This Russian class went beyond their books to learn about Russian culture and lifestyle firsthand, part of the campus-wide holistic approach to education.

1976

September 1975 UC Irvine's 10th year began with a student enrollment of 9,547. Faculty members numbered more than five hundred, and the library held over 750,000 volumes.

Fall 1975 UC Irvine was the only university in the country to offer a doctoral degree in Critical Theory, a distinction which made UCI the National School of Criticism and Theory.

June 12, 1976 At UC Irvine's 10th commencement, 2,119 degrees were awarded: 1,731 Bachelors, 226 Masters, 88 Doctors of Philosophy, and 74 Doctors of Medicine.

ABOVE: Several new facilities opened for students during UC Irvine's second decade, including the Women's Resource Center, and the Cross Cultural Center, the first of its kind in the nation.
TOP RIGHT: The School of Biological Sciences was structured to respond to the recent discovery of DNA. By the 1970's, it was well on its way to being one of the best in the nation.

1978

July 1976 The UC Regents bought the UCI Medical Center for a cool $7.7 million. The facility was then expanded and further modernized to better serve Orange County residents.

1977: Verano Place opened its doors, providing apartment housing for married UC Irvine students and their families.

1978: The cryogenic Floral Gene Bank, which stores seeds and pollens of endangered plant species, was established in the Irvine Arboretum. The bank was the first of its kind in the Western Hemisphere.

TOP: The Information Booth in the University Center served as the main source for catalogues, maps, and general answers for both students and visitors.

ABOVE: KUCI went on the air on October 21, 1969 with a program entitled, "Problems of the World Solved Tonight." Ten years later, the radio station was still going strong, with programs ranging from talk shows to the newest disco music to early punk.

RIGHT: Before becoming the New University, UCI's student newspaper went through three name changes: "The Spectrum", "The Tongue" and "The Anthill".

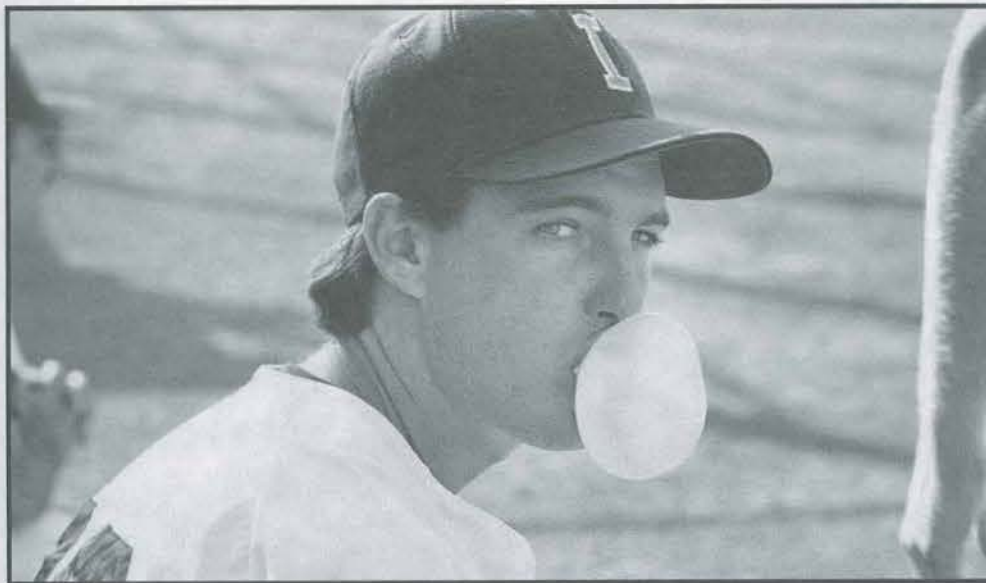

1980

September 1980 Apartment units in Campus Village opened, this marked a new on-campus housing option for unmarried undergraduate students at UC Irvine.

January 1981 The new University Center opened on campus. Amenities included the University Bookstore, the first campus-operated bookstore at UC Irvine.

1982 The University Club, which hosts events for faculty, staff, and students, moved into its newly constructed facility, after being located in a trailer for over a decade.

Evolving Personality

LEFT: In its first year, the UC Irvine Baseball team only lost 10 of its 40 games. Despite the good start, the team was defunct by 1992 due to budget cuts.

BELOW LEFT: Future Big West Conference Titleholders, the UC Irvine Women's Basketball team played hard from the beginning.

1985

August 1984 Twelve members of the UC Irvine community participated in the 23rd Olympic Games, held in the Los Angeles area. All the athletes medaled or placed in their events.

May 1984: Campus Park is renamed Aldrich Park, in honor of Founding Chancellor Daniel Aldrich, Jr.. "Chancellor Dan" retired in August of 1984.

March 15, 1985 Jack Peltason, former Chancellor of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, was inaugurated as the second Chancellor of UC Irvine.

September 1985 The first day of school marked the 20th anniversary of UC Irvine. At the time, the student population was 13,567.

June 14, 1986 At UC Irvine's 20th commencement, 1,933 Bachelors degrees, 240 Masters degrees, 125 Doctors of Philosophy, and 81 Doctors of Medicine were bestowed.

October 1986 For the first time, more students came to UC Irvine from other places in California than from Orange County.

ABOVE: The eight years that Jack Peltason served as Chancellor of UC Irvine marked an era of extraordinary expansion. It was during his term that the UCI Bookstore started carrying items with the phrase, "UCI: Under Construction Indefinitely."
 TOP RIGHT: The campus received many award-winning or notable building designs, such as the one for the Biological Sciences Building.

January 8, 1987 A ribbon-cutting ceremony marked the opening of the Bren Events Center. In the first game played in the new gym, the UCI Men's Basketball Team defeated Utah State 118-96.

January 1988 The bronze Peter the Anteater statue, a gift of the Class of 1987, is put into place in front of the Bren Events Center.

October 1989 Palo Verde Housing, created for graduate and post-doc students, opens with 6 of its 19 buildings completed.

TOP: During the 1990-1991 school year, a candlelight vigil was held in honor of those who died in the Persian Gulf War.

ABOVE: A celebration for the 25th Anniversary of UC Irvine was interrupted by the student group ESCAPE, who demanded diversity and equality in their education.

RIGHT: Hundreds of students and faculty members gathered to protest the first trial verdict in the Rodney King beating case, which was later retried due to public outcry.

1990

April 1990 Former Chancellor Daniel Aldrich, Jr. died of cancer at the age of 71. He was the only person to head three UC campuses.

September 1990 The Irvine Barclay Theatre opened as a cooperative venture between UC Irvine, the city of Irvine, and Orange County.

October 1990 The University Center reopened after substantial renovation. Besides dramatic structural changes, it also received a new name: UCI Student Center.

Political Agendas

TOP RIGHT: The grassy strip in the Admin loop became a mock graveyard in 1991, each marker representing a U.S. soldier killed in the Persian Gulf War.

BOTTOM LEFT: In the early 1990's, students voiced their frustrations with consistent fee increases and their distrust of the UC Regents on a graffiti wall erected on the Ring Road.

BOTTOM RIGHT: During the 1990's, the AIDS quilt became a popular exhibition at UC Irvine. It serves as a touching reminder that the victims of AIDS are people, not just statistics.

1993

April 1991 The words "Welcome to UCI TELE" were first heard, as the new computer registration system was implemented on the UC Irvine campus.

July 1, 1991 UC Irvine appointed Kathleen Jones to a Vice Chancellorship, the first woman in UCI history to hold such a post.

September 1993 An innovative new housing complex opens, called "Group Housing". Residents chose a new name by ballot: Arroyo Vista.

1993

October 21, 1993 Laurel Wilkening, former academic provost at the University of Washington, was inaugurated as the third Chancellor of UC Irvine.

October 1993 Fires raged throughout L.A., San Diego, and Orange Counties, including nearby Laguna Canyon. Students fled on-campus housing and mid-terms were postponed.

October 9, 1994 The new Science Library is dedicated in a special ceremony attended by Chancellor Laurel Wilkening and future Nobel Laureate F. Sherwood Rowland.

LEFT: Several structural changes greeted the students at the start of the 1994-1995 school year, including the new Engineering Gateway area.

BOTTOM LEFT: Demonstrations abounded on the eve of the vote on Proposition 187, protesting what some felt were racist tones in the proposed law.

BOTTOM RIGHT: Laurel Wilkening became UC Irvine's third Chancellor when Jack Peltason was appointed UC President in 1993.

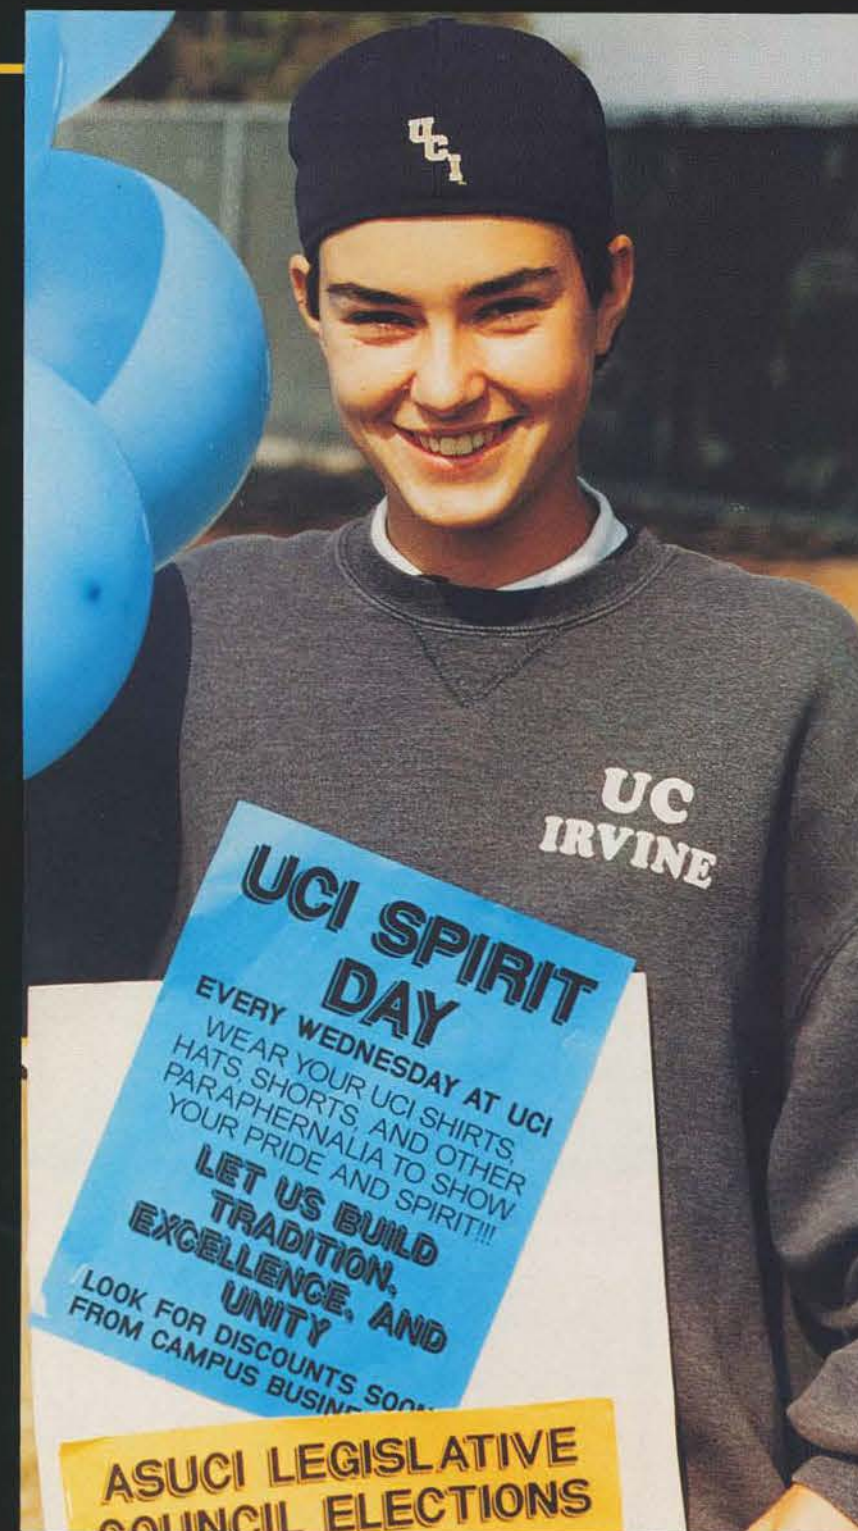

1995

October 1994 Tensions flared at UC Irvine and other local campuses, as protests both for and against Proposition 187 pitted students against each other.

November 1994 Students displayed their cultural pride at the 10th Annual Rainbow Festival, which was designed to encourage cultural awareness and emphasize the diversity of the UC Irvine campus.

September 1995 UC Irvine opened for its 30th year, in spite of severe budget cuts. One major change: students now paid Campus Recreation in order to take P.E. classes.

The Legacy & The Promise

SET IN STONE

A gift from the Class of '87, this bronze Anteater beckons visitors to the Bren Events Center. The dedication on the plaque immortalizes the Anteater's victory in the mascot election over its closest rival, "none of these."

DO YOU WANT ANTS WITH THAT?

Senior Sally Foroughi enjoys a feast fit for an anteater. Lacking teeth, anteaters consume a wide variety of insects, including termites, beetle larvae, and of course ants.

SOLITARY REFINEMENT

UCI students, like their anteater counterparts, are solitary creatures who keep to themselves. Most students enjoy the detached isolation of Aldrich park as a remedy to the hustle and bustle of finals week.

30 YEARS IN THE LIFE OF THE ANTEATER

By Kirstie Shepherd

When the Anteater was chosen in 1965 to represent the University of California Irvine, some thought it was a lazy, boring, and untraditional mascot. Now, thirty years after its victory in the campuswide mascot election, how well does Peter the Anteater reflect the students of UCI?

Anteaters (according to the Collier's Encyclopedia found in our own UCI library) are peace-loving animals and inoffensive if left alone. How appropriate, as UCI students are known for being quiet and studious. If injured or attacked, the anteater defends itself with the sharp claws of its front feet and lets out a surprisingly loud roar. Typically apathetic UCI students, if pushed too far, can react passionately and powerfully in defense.

Anteaters live alone or in pairs and usually prefer to reside in hollow logs or in the burrows of other animals. As with our natural brothers in the wild, UCI students don't really have a home of their own. Irvine has not developed into a college town, and some students may feel as if they are living in a borrowed home. It is characteristic of UCI students to keep to themselves and refrain from fraternization. A common sight to see is a student merrily on the way to class listening to a walkman, blocking out the rest of the world.

While anteaters have poor sight and bad hearing, they run very fast and are powerful swimmers. This may shed some light on why in basketball UCI has tended to do poorly, but in track and swimming we have continued to shine.

Despite the similarities, we are not exactly like our furry counterparts. Anteaters tend to be quite active at night (they are nocturnal animals), but UCI, catering to commuter students, is not known for its nightlife.

Looking back on the last thirty years, it seems that those UCI pioneers made a wise choice in mascot selection. Anteaters are intelligent and gentle creatures. Sure they may be antisocial and prefer to keep to themselves (maybe a good thing, after all they do eat termites and beetle larvae) but for the last thirty years Peter the Anteater has stood out as a humble alternative to conventional expectations.

FURRY AND FRIENDLY

Anteaters are peace-loving creatures who are aggressive only when in danger. Our own official Anteater plays an essential role in inspiring other students into action.

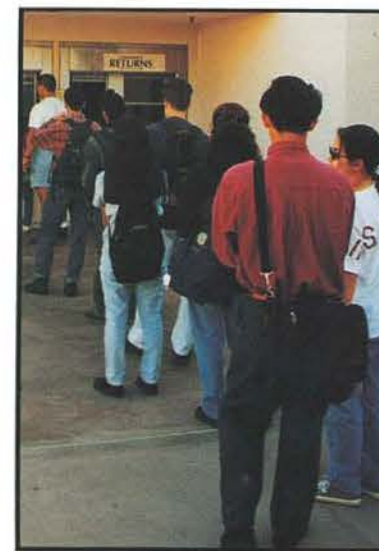

TOP FIVE WAYS TO PREPARE ANTS

1. Blackened Ants Cajun Style.
2. Two all-beef-ants, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles, onions, on a sesame seed bun.
3. Chocolate covered as an after-dinner ant.
4. Deep fried with a Regent on the side.
5. Create a fat-free, high-protein, low-cholesterol, vitamin-enriched, ant smoothie.

"I only have a thirty minute break for lunch, and it takes almost that long to get through the line at the Food Court"

-Dona Ha.

WAITING FOR THE MONEY

The line to return coursebooks is a popular one at the beginning and end of each quarter. Starting this year, however, students are given the option of trying to squeeze more money out of their books at the University Bookstore, a free enterprise business at the Marketplace.

HURRY UP AND WAIT!

By Mandy Irish

No matter where you go on campus, there is usually a line you have to wait in before you can actually get there. The first week of each quarter seems especially hectic. There are lines in the Bookstore, at the Financial Aid Office, and to pay the Cashier. The Parking Office also has its share of insanity, despite recent plans to buy permits through the mail.

Although these lines seem to dissipate by second week, there are still places where students have to wait every day. In essence, it all begins before we even reach campus. The traffic on the freeways wastes much time, as can trying to find a parking space once we actually get to school. The thought of this made sophomore Alex Miseirvitch decide to buy a new bike instead of a parking permit, just to alleviate morning parking hassles.

Even during the day, the lines continue. Before exams, students tend to line up to get into crowded lecture halls. During breaks between classes Anteaters have to wait in lines at the Food Court, the ATM, and even the restroom.

It may be hard for some to believe, but many of the lines on campus used to be even worse than they are today. For instance, before the TELEsystem was implemented in 1991, students had to wait in lines to register for their classes. Before the ZOTBill the line at the Cashier's Office was much longer with students picking up their fee statements.

Who really knows how new technology will further the efficiency of our campus? In the near future, we may be able to purchase books over the phone, or add and drop classes via e-mail. For now, students will have to cope with these lines and realize that patience really is a virtue.

LINE FORMS HERE

After waiting in line to pay homage to the Cashier's Office with the money originally intended for lunch, students must wait in yet another line. This one eventually ends up at the Registrar's office. Administration lines are not as impacted as in prior years with recent changes to fee statement logistics.

FACT OR FICTION?

This new sign on Bridge Road can be misleading. Somebody must have figured out that with the daily parking crunch it was easier to just post the Student Center parking structure as having an indefinitely full status.

TOP FIVE

THINGS TO DO IN LINE

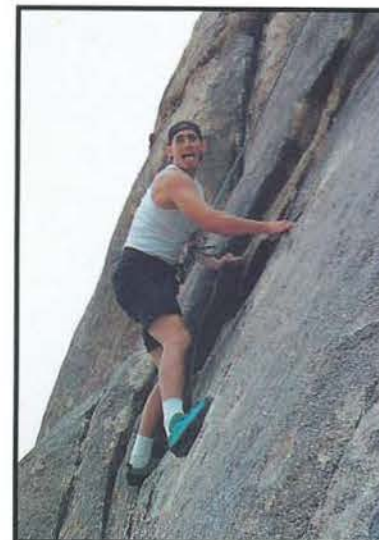

1. Pretend that you have an infectious disease that you are willing to share.
2. Wait for the cows to come home.
3. Read War and Peace.
4. Write your last will and testament.
5. Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow is another line.

LINE OF ANTICIPATION

As if the anxiety over Fall quarter papers, midterms and finals were not enough, students rush to line up to secure their copy of the Winter Schedule of Classes.

LOOKING FOR ADVENTURE

By Rosana Khoury

Serenity. A cool breeze dances its way through the tops of the oak trees, leaving a trail of leaves dropping to the ground. Each blade of grass sparkles like an emerald in the warming sunshine. Along the paths of Aldrich, students trudge to class. The outside world calmly surrounds them, while inside their heads worries spin about like a wild, rushing cyclone of thought.

Escape is the only hope.

Something exciting and unusual, perhaps; an activity that relieves tension and has the capacity to remove a terminally stressed out individual from a terminally stressful environment. Getting away is surely an essential element of student survival.

Conveniently close is an ocean of adventurous opportunity. Within twenty minutes one can deny reality by sinking deep into the reefs of Laguna Beach and exploring the animated world below the surface. If the underwater hideaway does not entice one's need for respite, perhaps the curling waves of Huntington seem more inviting. Whether it is the challenging sport of surfing, or just a cooling dip in the water, there is nothing like a day at the beach to replenish a dampened spirit.

On solid ground, student fugitives have escaped to find themselves hung by ropes and clinging by their fingertips to the face of a towering cliff. The greatest challenge of rock climbing is overcoming the fear of an anti-gravitational activity. Defying natural human fears is what drives certain individuals back again and again.

Further up in elevation and a bit longer of a drive from campus, the San Bernadino mountains have year-round fun and excitement for the thrill seeking athlete. During the off season, mountain bikers hook their bikes onto a chair lift, and inhale the crisp mountain air as they await the rush of a bumpy downhill ride. As soon as the snow begins to fall, snowboards and skis come out of the closet, and the textbooks get put away as UCI's students make their way for the slopes.

The flat valley of Riverside County provides a haven for the most insane of the adventure seeking anteaters. There, they can get harnessed to an instructor, walk out to a rickety Cesna, and fly up to 12,500 feet. As the bodies of both instructor and student exit the plane and hurl toward the ground at 174 feet per second, adrenaline rushes through their blood. At five thousand feet, the student is given the signal, reaches for the orange handle at their hip and the hissing wind is suddenly interrupted by the deployment of a colorful canopy. The freefall feeling is comparable to that of scuba diving, in that it is peaceful yet extremely thrilling. It forces the mind to take a break, for who would dare jump out of a plane and think about finals week at the same time?

Though the UCI campus is the picturesque and lovely academic place that its reputation acclaims it to be, a studious life can leave something to be desired. A good shock to the body, whether it be at the ocean bottom or among the clouds, is often necessary to get back on track. For some, fulfillment is only found through the power of conquering fear.

SEA YA!

California beaches make a great escape for students in need of a play-day. Romping in the surf is an often unappreciated luxury we can enjoy due to our coastal location.

TOP FIVE WAYS TO CREATE ADVENTURE ON CAMPUS

1. Start a mud fight in Aldrich Park on a rainy day. Watch for professors!
2. Bring a real live anteater to one of your lectures.
3. Call your parents and read them the Chimpanzee.
4. Set up a rapel from the top of the engineering building.
5. Set a lab rat free in food court at lunch time.

It's amazing what you can find right in your own backyard...Did you know UCI owns an Arboretum, a Medical Center and a Farm School?

SOWING THE SEEDS OF LEARNING

Professor Peter Bowler spends much of his time at the Arboretum researching and teaching. First time visitors may be taken aback by the wonders that surround them. Nature in Irvine? You bet, and Professor Bowler can give you the grand tour.

HIDDEN TREASURES OF UC IRVINE

By Vicky Chan

Did you know UCI owns an Arboretum, a Medical Center and a Farm School? There are many interesting places that are part of our campus, but unless your major is related to those places, you may never see them.

Located about a mile down Campus Drive is the UCI Arboretum. The Arboretum originally served as a nursery for UCI landscape materials and an experimental garden, but now contains over 200 endangered species, and houses a gene bank to preserve rare and important plant genes. The Arboretum is a wonderful research facility but it is split in half by Campus Drive. This has resulted in a serious road kill problem for the arboretum.

Many students who drive the 5 freeway catch a glimpse of a somber building with a large sign that says UCI Medical Center. Someone who has never been to UCI might think that this is the location of UCI. However, as UCI students ought to know, our campus doesn't reach all the way to the city of Orange. So, the nagging question remains: Why is the UCI Medical Center all the way out there? The county would not allow for the large cost of building an extensive medical center near the campus, so the university had to purchase the thirty-three acre site in the city of Orange which was already formatted as a medical center.

The name UCI Farm School conjures up an image of a barn with cows or chickens. But this name is very misleading. The Farm School is actually an elementary school, where students and faculty conduct research related to childhood behavior and educational systems.

Be sure to check out other little-known properties of UCI, such as the electrical substation and the University Clubhouse.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT ORANGE?

The UCI Medical Center is often in the news for a variety of reasons. Located in the city of Orange, it is about 13 miles away from the main campus and serves as a teaching and research facility for the UCI College of Medicine.

OLD MAC-IRVINE HAD A FARM

At the Farm School, students can get credits for helping teachers observe childhood behavior or assist in the classroom.

TOP FIVE

WONDERS OF UCI

1. Why are there so many ants on campus when we are all Anteaters?
2. How does Chancellor Wilkening eat her Reese's Peanut Butter Cups?
3. Why do the New U personals seem like ads solely between New U Staffers?
4. What do the student ID numbers stand for?
5. When will the Pub validate our parking?

FOLLOWING NATURE'S LEAD

There is much to learn at the Arboretum. Students can see plants they've never heard of, such as Babiana, Lachenalia and Ixia. And the especially curious Anteater may find out that Campus Drive is built on a wetland which is sinking 14 inches per year.

Heather Temple and Paul Romo share some meaningful verses from the Bible as encouragement during a trying day.

RELIGION AT UCI: FAITH TO FAITH

By Rosana Khoury

At UCI, each individual department and school generates its own theories and ideas regarding different aspects of life. Everyday a slew of new facts and discoveries are presented to the wealth of knowledge to prove or disprove the hypotheses of earlier students and researchers. The university looks to the future at territories never explored, finding answers for new questions. And yet, these answers just don't seem to be enough.

UCI has over 50 different religious clubs or groups, a majority of them Christian. Also represented by at least one official campus organization are Buddhism, Hinduism, Baha'i faith, Mormonism, Judaism, Messianic Judaism, and Islam. A large proportion of students spend time in masses, services, devotionals, and meetings dedicated to learning more and becoming stronger in their faiths.

God or Gods are prayed to daily, asked for answers, strength, guidance, and love. Various texts lead these believers in their walks of life and whether it be the Bible, the Koran, the Torah, the Book of Mormon, or any other God-inspired work, these students take the meanings they find seriously to heart. Ben Rocca, a second year Jewish student at UCI, shared that being Jewish is a basis of who he is culturally. It is his heritage and the Torah with its 613 laws, including the ten commandments that serve as a foundation for his morals and values. Other students agreed that in a society with a weak moral foundation, their faiths offered guidance. Evans Adei, a fifth year Christian Ph.D. student, claims that because of Christianity, "...the way you see things is different...I always have in mind what Christ would have done in every situation."

Some theories taught in classes conflict with religious students' feelings and beliefs. As a result, they have found ways to distinguish the truths of their religion from the theories of science. One Christian student gave a profound statement: "The more you get up there [in learning], the more you realize how little you know, and that should humble you." A Muslim biology major explained that her classes taught evolution, a viable theory, but Allah is the creator of the universe. Another student proposed that science is acceptable as it concurs with the Torah; Moses' standard of the calendar is different from our recent conception of time.

These students have found that fact, theories and natural science sometimes fall short. No matter how they incorporate their feelings or religious beliefs with their daily lives and lessons, the underlying truth is that it is not just a set of beliefs in a God or Gods, it is their sustenance. As Muslim student Hagir Mohammed contemplates her studies, she clearly stated, "If it wasn't for my religion, I would collapse. My religion is not a one day a week event...it's a daily life; it's a God consciousness."

TOP FIVE COMMANDMENTS FOR STUDENTS

1. Thou shalt love thy fellow students who gives you their parking spaces.
2. Thou shalt actually keep up with the readings next quarter.
3. Thou shalt visit thy lonely professors in office hours.
4. Thou shalt make all checks payable to UC Regents.
5. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's paper.

Growth via construction, destruction, and reconstruction is a defining tradition at UCI.

INSTANT SOUVENIR

Social Sciences 1 is hardly the Berlin Wall, but many students found that obtaining a chunk of the brittle building was easier than they had anticipated. As Social Sciences 1 literally crumbles away, and the parking lot under Social Sciences 2 is long forgotten, we prepare for the earthquake refurbishing of the Main Library to begin in the summer of 1996.

BUILDING THE PRESENT ON THE PAST

By Lia Marcote

Walking across campus, students tend to look at the ground in front of them, the friend they're walking with, or the sky. But what about those of us who crane our necks to catch a glimpse through the trees of the mishmash of massive structures which compose our school? We are confused. What's the deal with this architectural diversity at such a young university?

The buildings of UCI are an integral part of student life. Their outsides physically comprise our campus. Their insides house our classes, shelter us from the rain, sleet and snow (okay, just from the rain), and contain valuable research (not to mention restroom) facilities. Over 30 years, buildings have sprung up like wildflowers around Aldrich Park. Among the oldest buildings are Social Sciences 1, Humanities Hall, and Physical Sciences; among the newest are Group Housing (1993), the Science Library (1994), Engineering Gateway (1994), and Social Sciences 2 (1996).

Like the students and faculty, each building has its own character and each tells a story. From Arthur Erickson's Biological Sciences 2, which resembles a big green Jolly Rancher candy, to Frank O. Gehry's Engineering 1, which is literally right out of the 1972 Planet of the Apes movie, it is important to recognize the uniqueness of UCI's architecture.

The next time you're walking through Aldrich Park, look at buildings that have appeared over the years and wonder what's next. As the times have changed here at UCI, so has the architecture, yielding an incredible diversity of design.

CHANCELLOR WITH THE RED DRESS ON

On October 20, 1995, Chancellor Wilkening and friends officially welcomed the Center for the Health Sciences at the groundbreaking ceremony. The new structure will help speed the development of new drugs and treatments.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION INDEFINITELY

Orange cones on campus are a familiar site to most students. At UCI, we must look beyond the periodic road closings and flying dust to an architecturally beautiful and diverse campus.

TOP FIVE

REASONS UCI'S BUILDINGS ARE DIVERSE

1. Most built before affirmative action debate.
2. Color coded for easier spotting because freshman had trouble finding them.
3. Regents' home planet is Planet of the Apes.
4. To serve as a functional alien landing strip.
5. Protected from appearing to be affiliated with buildings of other departments to discourage unity.

HOUSE OF ACRONYMS

Inside Student Services II, students can find the offices of EAP (Education Abroad Program), TAP (Tutorial Assistance Program), SAAS (Student Academic Advancement Services), LSC (Learning Skills Center), and more!

Raw, pure energy often needs to be released; one of the most constructive and popular ways to relieve this stress is through exercise.

JUMPING HIS WAY TO FITNESS

Jumping rope can be an effective way to train for sports such as track. During fall conditioning for spring track, athletes exercising at Crawford Hall is a common sight.

LET'S GET PHYSICAL

By Mandy Irish

Students need to take time out from their studies once in a while to do something that relieves stress. This is where fitness and staying in shape come into play at UCI. Fitness means different things to different people. Sophomore biology student, Lien Vo said, "If I don't take time out from my day to go to the gym, I go absolutely crazy. The time that I spend there is like free time. . . I am not wasting time because I am still being productive."

A workout can include going to Family Fitness, rollerblading down by the beach, or maybe taking a stroll through Aldrich Park. Some students take classes through campus recreation. This way, exercise is disguised as sailing, tennis, karate, basketball, and even aerobics.

There are many other reasons that students take time out of their busy day for a workout. Some feel that they need to do it to lose weight, and others want to gain energy to use in other activities.

For some, working out can become a social event. Guys play basketball after dinner; girls plan group jogs around campus. Josie Castillo goes to the gym three or four times a week. She states: "Going to the gym gives me a chance to catch up with my friends on what's going on in their lives."

There are many different reasons why students take time out from their days to exercise. The most important one may just be that they endeavor to shed their stress, to take their burdened mind off of yesterday's midterm or the huge paper due tomorrow.

HEAVY WEIGHT

Peter Ceselli takes advantage of the new bench press machine at the Crawford Hall weight room and simultaneously releases the frustrations of his day.

WARMING UP

It is important to stretch out thoroughly before physical activity. Jessica Schreiber, a member of the track team, warms up at the Crawford Hall field.

TOP FIVE

EASY WAYS TO STAY FIT AT UCI

1. Schedule all of your classes as far away from each other as possible.
2. Pogo stick your way through Aldrich Park.
3. Don't take the shuttle.
4. Take the stairs to your class on the fifth floor; make sure to carry all heavy books.
5. Load up on leafy greens at Cornerstone Cafe.

SHOOT FOR THE STARS

The courts at Mesa housing provide students with a place for some friendly competition at various times of the day and night.

SHOWING THE COLORS

Peter Ceselli and Shahradd Lotsipour proudly root for good old UCI. It is important to support our team to promote school spirit, and every person makes a difference.

RAH, RAH, RAH

The cheerleaders are one of the few groups on campus to openly and readily display school spirit. On a more subtle level, however, each of our 275 clubs possess a form of campus pride.

AN(T)OREXIC?

Our beloved school mascot struts his stuff at a basketball game. The crowd, although not the volume one could find at a USC football game, looks on, anticipating the next offensive move.

IN SEARCH OF ZOT * ZOT * ZOT Anteater Spirit

By Ellen Schlosser

The profile of our anorexic cloth covered Anteater mascot is somehow appropriately symbolic of our undernourished campus spirit. UCI's founding personnel and students seem to have possessed a certain personal pride that our contemporary campus population has yet to experience.

It seems at times that the students, staff, and faculty, lack confidence in the depth-consistency of our school spirit. As a community we have acquired, through dedication and commitment, the label of "a quality academic research institution." Our academic reputation seems fairly secure; perhaps it is time we devoted some of our resources ($) and efforts toward encouraging a greater sense of campus unity and tradition.

In this our thirtieth year, we seem to be experiencing a certain degree of social reawakening. This winter quarter, the student body's Legislative Council and ASUCI Execs established a campus spirit committee. One of its major efforts was to establish Wednesdays as Blue & Gold Days. Students, staff and faculty who wore the school colors or UCI emblems on these designated days were rewarded with discounts at campus businesses, gift certificates, etc.

Another true rejuvenation of campus pride was seen through the "grass roots" Aldrich Project efforts of Professor Foraker and his small troupe of student volunteers. The Project is dedicated to campus beautification. Their initial planting of a rose garden adjacent to the new Engineering Plaza is already in bloom.

The Staff Assembly also "zotted" their way toward increasing Irvine's energy level by collecting funds from its members and generating ideas for future community oriented events. Athletics, Alumni and Associated Students collaborated on some 30th Anniversary programs including a Senior Kick-Off at the Micro-Brewery, Club Spirit Night and the publication of a three-quarter Anniversary Calendar. The unfaltering efforts of certain student organizations such as Campus Reps, KUCI, Anteater Cheerleaders/Pep Band, the New U, the Student Government and the Anthology Yearbook have consistently attempted to motivate a sense of campus unity.

How can the momentum behind this reawakening be maintained?

Each member of the campus must acknowledge, on a personal level, that "spirit" starts within each of us. We must assume individual responsibility for promoting, through word and deed, a sense of campus unity. We should create more effective ways of acknowledging and encouraging the genuine and unpaid efforts of those who put forth the extra spirit. The administration must include campus spirit and unity as an "at home" objective for the 21st Century. Other forms of institutional recognition and greater alumni support will be byproducts of improved UCI self esteem.

UCI is #1!

Believe it!

LIGHT-HEADED

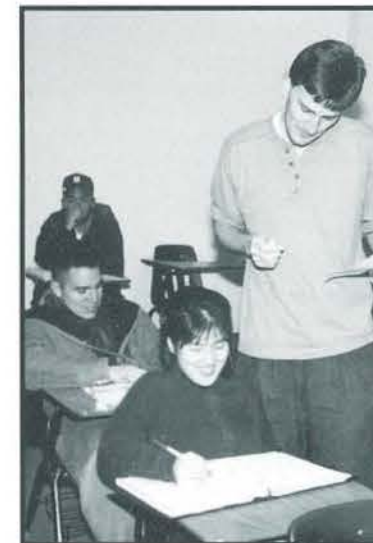

Spirit comes in surprising forms. With a little imagination and a few tools, the Pi Kappa Psi fraternity created this character "Detox." His illuminating aura is aided by a commercial light fixture.

TOP FIVE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR CAMPUS SPIRIT

1. Start a fund for a furrer and healthier Anteater Mascot.
2. Show up to a sporting event.
3. Cover yourself completely in UCI bumper stickers.
4. Take the Chancellor out to lunch.
5. Use the word "zot" liberally and frequently.

GUIDING LIGHT

Eamonn Keogh conducts his ICS 1A discussion section weekly. He makes efforts to take time out of his busy graduate student schedule to be available to help interested students. He lets them call him anytime at home, and says that the benefits of being a TA surely outweigh the long hours and moderate pay.

DROPPING IN ON YOUR LOCAL UCI PROFESSOR

By Lia Marcote

Office Hours...What a noble idea. The professor or TA schedules a time each week to be available to answer questions, question answers, or just shoot the breeze with interested students. The simplicity of such an important activity is ironic.

Communication between students and their instructors is beneficial to both parties. The student gains valuable insight into the way the course is taught, and learns helpful hints about the class. The teacher can collect information on the way the class is perceived, and maybe get some ideas about how to better conduct the lectures.

When classes have a large lecture format, students can easily avoid direct conversations with their professors. It is often overlooked that instructors are people, too. They have families and hobbies, and here at UCI we are especially lucky because our professors have rich education backgrounds and much to share about their research and published works.

It is essential to have relations with professors on a social level as well as an educational level whenever possible. Taking a professor out to lunch should be a requirement to graduate. What better way to get to know someone than over a burger and fries? Make sure to use good table manners!

It should be commonplace that students and professors greet each other on the street and have discussions outside of the classroom. Communication between students and their mentors perpetuates an environment of discourse appropriate to a learning institution the caliber of UCI. We must remember that education is a two way street.

THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Dorothy Solinger keeps herself busy during her office hours. Many professors are accustomed to lonely office hours at the beginning of the quarter, followed by a surge during midterm week and a bunch of last minute questions right before finals.

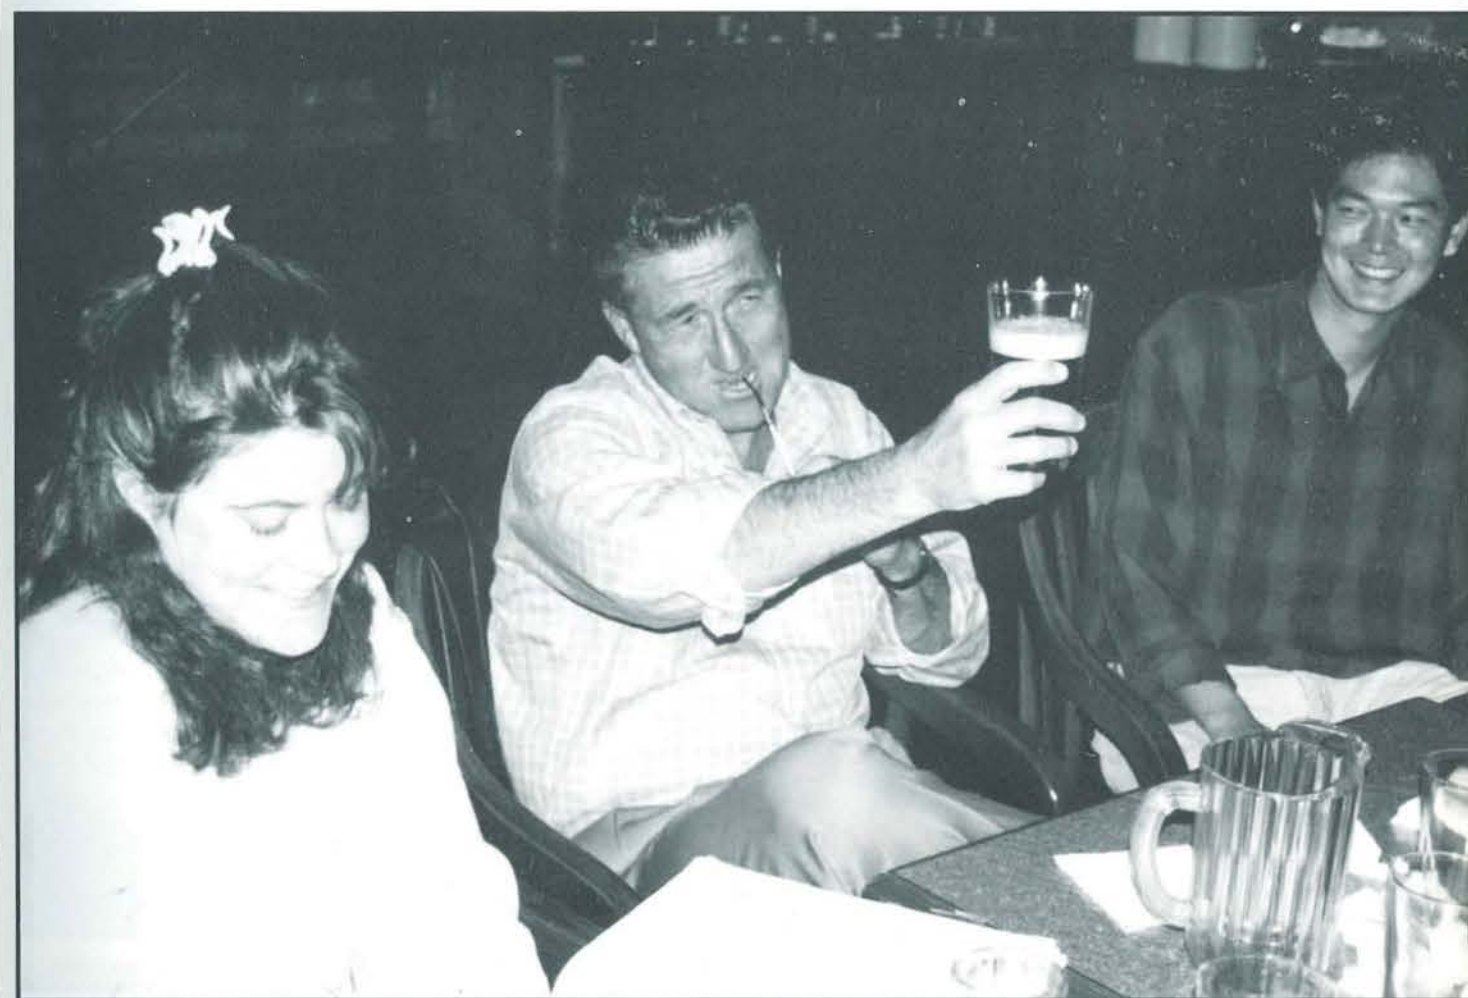

WHO? ME?
Professor James Danzinger shows the camera that he's only human while eating a breakfast at Chancellor Wilkening's house. How could a student be intimidated by such a friendly looking scholar?

TOP FIVE

TOPICS TO DISCUSS DURING OFFICE HOURS

1. Brown-nosing your way to the top.
2. Answers for the midterm.
3. How to get a little closer to that cute TA.
4. Fashion tips of the nineties.
5. Laughter as an essential defense against a hostile reality.

TAKE A BITE OUT OF HUNGER

Chris Adaire is not shy when he dines at Mesa Court. The traditional delights of dorm food are a reminder that UCI is more than just a commuter school; it caters to on-campus residents as well.

THE BASIC FOUR: CULINARY ARTS 101

By Kirstie Shepherd

There are three fundamental needs essential to human existence: shelter, water, and food. But when you find yourself coming up with new recipes for peanut butter and tuna fish, it's easy to see that food in college takes on a whole new meaning.

From the very beginning of the college experience ideas about food start to change. In the dorms and residence halls, students are introduced to new concepts of sticky rice and mystery meat. Without Mom to pack your lunch, it's necessary to either adapt to this questionable cooking or forage for your own subsistence. As a result, dorm dinners drive many students into the waiting arms of the fast food franchises. When UCI first opened thirty years ago, all that was available to hungry anteaters was what was offered in the Mesa Court Dining Commons. Now with a plethora of cafes and snack shacks located on or around campus, dining out is accessible and very tempting. It is not as easy on the budget as the paid-for-residence-meal plans, but fast food chains are becoming more willing to offer the convenience of paying with your ATM card. A lot of this McSnacking can add up in other ways as well, and gaining the "Freshman 15" can be enough of a motivation to get out on your own and start preparing healthy, nutritional, well-balanced meals for you and your loved ones. So much for good intentions.

College is often the first time students start cooking for themselves and at the beginning the varieties of specialties can be small. Pasta is the gastronomic giant in college meals consisting mostly of macaroni and cheese, spaghetti, and Top Ramen. Slowly more dishes will be added to the repertoire, but they rarely stray from the realm of instant or microwaveable. When these staples run low, it's time to hit the stores. "I do my best shopping after midnight," says Sarah Kaminskis junior, Spanish major, "it's a nice study break."

After a long day of classes, college students are willing to make some adjustments in the four basic food groups. Suddenly Cheeze Nips and Cafe Latté become the Dairy Group; Chicken Nuggets and Spam constitute the Meats Group; Watermelon Jolly Ranchers, ketchup, and grape jelly will do for the Fruits and Vegetables Groups; and Twinkies, Cap'n Crunch, and beer will take care of the Breads, Cereals, and Grains Group.

For those interested in a little more "Brain Food," there is the Take-A-Professor-Out To Lunch program. This highly publicized but rarely practiced ritual is hailed as the best way to cultivate letters of recommendation, or weasel out an extra hint about that upcoming midterm. It's also a great way to get a peek into the private lives of your professors and check out their bizarre eating habits. But here's a tip, if you're looking to bring your grade up from a C+ to a B-, don't mention the spinach caught between their teeth.

No matter which way you slice it, what college students consume is unlike the eating habits of any other stage of life. Late night study sessions and shrinking student budgets have huge effects on the culinary endeavors of UCI students.

SALE OF THE CENTURY

Mega-markdowns and dandy deals abound when alt. ant. spills its stock out on the sidewalk for its semi-quarterly extravaganza.

THE FLIP SIDE OF BEYOND RING ROAD

By David Otaguro

If there is any place on campus that embraces and caters to the eclectic tastes of the student population, it must be the store dubbed Alt.Ant. This store carries not only current popular music and a collection of strange and interesting magazines ranging from the sardonic Puck to the more mundane titles, but that elusive and somewhat bizarre thing known as Japanese Animation.

Although the former two items would make for a reasonably decent, if uninteresting store, it is the latter that draws the greater portion of Alt.Ant's clientele and grants it the title of a Really Keen Place. Many animation fans travel great distances just to peruse the wares found within Alt.Ant. Anime, as Japanese Animation is colloquially dubbed, is perhaps the most interesting and vivid cartoon animation that one will encounter outside of Disney Studios. Indeed, many anime junkies protest loudly that Uncle Walt's style was derived from early anime.

From the light hearted comedies, "Ah! Megami-Sama" (Oh! My Goddess!) and "Ranma 1/2" to the science fiction classics "Akira" and "Bubble Gum Crisis," the realm of Anime has something for everyone. Even if one's taste runs toward the more...ahem...eclectic, anime selections such as "LA Blue Girl" and "F3" are sure to satisfy.

If you have never sampled Alt.Ant.'s wares, perhaps you might try them. You may just find them to your liking.

AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY WAYS

By Vanessa Rothe

Travelling and living in a foreign country can be an invigorating experience and sometimes quite a culture shock. Life in Europe is really quite different from the comfortable fast-paced life we know in California. Your plane flight will serve as a decompression chamber as you fly over land and sea, time and history. Although some things remain the same in Europe like coffee shops, traffic, and the daily newspaper, things are essentially very different and take some getting used to.

The physical appearance of small European towns and great cities are much different than what we see daily in Southern California. Most buildings are made from cement, not wood, and instead of being only 50-100 years old, they hold the history of centuries past. Cars and streets also take on a new look. It's rare to see old US cars, and in Europe the cars we know have different names. For example, a VW Jetta is called a VW Venta. Driving in a foreign country is a whole new experience. All the signs are different, highway speeds are increased, and many are only two lanes.

Food is a delicious adventure. Tips are usually not necessary, good service is almost impossible to find, and asking for salad dressing on the side is unheard of. And be ready to pay a good three dollars for a cup of coffee. In general, nothing is open 24 hours, stores close for lunch from 12:00 to 2:00 and then close at 6:00, and everything is closed on Sundays and usually one other day during the week.

And then there's the language change. It's not like America where you can get across 50 states using one language. You hop in a train and in an hour you have to speak a different language just to order a cup of tea.

The people one meets in Europe are different from country to country. They are generally more global in thought but then there are mountain people that know only their valley. Getting to know Europeans is a lot of fun but since they speak another language it's hard at first to completely get to know someone, even if you speak the language.

Once you learn the ins and outs of the cultural differences, you start to get the hang of ordering escargot instead of hamburgers, saying a daily hello to the butcher, and taking two hour lunch breaks. The shock wears off as you immerse yourself into the culture and begin to enjoy all that Europe has to offer: cobblestone streets, castles and fortresses, endless green fields, celebrated art, historic figures, medieval stone villages, awe-inspiring churches and the history of worlds past. Travel is truly the university of life, and exploring other cultures is an integral part of opening your mind to the world around you.

TOP FIVE TRAVEL TIPS FOR EXPLORING EUROPE

1. On foot is the best way to see the most; don't forget to look behind you.
2. By train...make sure not to fall asleep and end up in the wrong country.
3. Hook up with the EuroRail conductor.
4. Just because the money is colorful, keep in mind it is not monopoly money.
5. Take heed: mass demonstrations could postpone your lunch date with the Mona Lisa.

TROUBLE IN THE FAST LANE

By Mandy Irish

It's true when they say that you don't really appreciate what you have until it's gone. This saying definitely applies to me and my car. I never knew how much I depended on my car until I had to seek an alternative mode of daily transportation. It is amazing how I survived for eighteen years without a car, because I have only spent a couple of weeks without it and I am already going crazy.

Not having a car and living nearly half an hour away from campus has forced me to explore the many other options available in the area of transportation. I found this a great opportunity to cash in on the favors I have done for my friends over time. This is one of those times that you realize which friends you can count on, and which ones just tell you they can be counted on.

When I had exhausted all of my personal transportation resources, it was time to resort to public transportation. I have learned that the Orange County Transit Authority (OCTA for us seasoned travellers) is not as reliable as it should be. Lacking in punctuality, it was futile to count on the buses getting me to class on time. To get to my 9:30 class on time, I had to leave my house by 7:15 in the morning.

For those who live on or close to campus, not having a car for a while does not pose as much of a problem as it does for the commuter. This is because most of these students would walk or ride their bikes to class even if they had a car. It can surely limit job opportunities and recreational activities, but I will write it off as a learning experience.

EXCITEMENT AND INTRIGUE AT THE UCI BOOKSTORE

By Tiffany Marra

At the beginning of every quarter, each student is forced to make the dreaded trip into the bookstore. Through the main doors, where we surrender all bags, through the spirit section, past the CDs, and down into the dungeon of textbooks. We segregate ourselves into our respective majors, and then search through the shelves trying to find the books for our classes. Either angered by the prices or by the lack of a needed textbook, we collect our stacks of books (or at least the ones we can afford) and head back up the stairs, back through the CD section, only to be met by a horrendous line of students who have gone through the same process.

It is in line, that we must control our urges not to pick up that 1996 model of the Pentel click pencil, or get sucked into the promotion of "only 96¢ for one notebook." One by one, we are called to the cashier by the long awaited cry "I can help the next person." At which point, they manage to reduce our check-book balances to zero. Every quarter we are forced into this same ritual, almost without choice.

Some might ask, "What can we do to make this a less traumatic experience?" As the old cliché states, "stop to smell the roses." Peruse the Gary Larson Far Side cards or test your technical prowess at the computer ordering station. Stop at the information desk and ask about the next poetry reading or quarterly literary contest. Or even fill out their customer service questionnaire and join the e-mail mailing list.

When you are in a really daring mood, you might turn the dungeon of textbooks into a fast paced, risky game of hide and go seek. Or, for those less daring, check out the books that the other majors have to read... misery loves company.

To get a true feel for the personality of the bookstore, give them a trial run half-way through the quarter. It's then that you can meet famous visiting authors like George Takei from Star Trek or Alex Haley, the author of "Roots." It is in the middle of the quarter that the student cashiers have smiles on their faces and ask more than just cash or charge. The crowds have all dispersed to classes, so the aisles are actually strollable. And best of all, you are not forced to buy books you will probably never read.

The exciting opportunities available at the UCI Bookstore are endless, with a little bit of college creativity.

ANTEATERS IN THE DATING POOL

By Rosana Khoury

Often heard by single adults is the complaint that once one has graduated from college it is a difficult task to find a partner for life. However, one comes to wonder how effortless it is to find a mate at our fine university.

Yes, even UCI students are playing the dating game: The seemingly endless search for a dream come true. But a recent study showed that in comparison to other United States university campuses, UCI ranked very low in frequency of dating activities.

One UCI female complained that UCI guys are generally more insecure than the men at other campuses. She postulated that the bold, outspoken types that would attempt pick up lines in class would more easily be found at a more spirited campus like UCLA.

A UCI male claimed that UCI gals are not that approachable; that people at UCI overall are not apt to respond positively to a stranger saying "Hello."

Although these attitudes are overpowering, there is a percentage of success in relationships at UCI. Greeks make an admirable attempt to create social excitement at Irvine. They find lifelong friends of both sexes, and yes even lifelong loves.

UCI, don't lose hope. Your beloved may be in the next lab over, waiting in a copy room at the library, or sipping coffee at Cornerstone. Be not afraid: Dive into the dating pool and take a chance.

 Iris Verbera, Kim Nguyen, and Samina Mansiere feel that Assistant Executive Vice Chancellor Marion Timm is their "Campus Mom" by fostering a collaborative and understanding work ethic.

UNDER THE WING OF ADMINISTRATION

By Marion E. Timm, Asst. Exec. Vice Chancellor

Have you read the headlines "Affirmative Action Is Dead?" Well, they can't prove it by my office! Room 524 Administration is home to the Office of Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity. I am the person in charge of that bustling domain. People flow in and out of our doors constantly, looking for information, they come to seek advice, some come to file complaints. If you visit, you'll see visitors sitting on the floor around the reception desks. Looks a little strange, but don't worry, they're probably some of "my kids."

I storm into my office between 8:30 and 9am. My e-mail is loaded with new messages and a crisp stack of phone messages awaits. I have a zillion forms and letters to sign, paper to pass on, file or pitch out. In between the e-mail, phone calls, file folders, letters, meetings, and interviewing, I frequently see some winsome face peeking into my office. That face, in assorted hues and genders, generally belongs to one of "my kids."

I keep waiting to feel the emptiness of "empty nest" syndrome, but this flock of UCI students has postponed indefinitely what I thought was surely inevitable. I am a mama, mentor, nag, teacher, nag, confidant, nag, tutor, nag, career counselor, nag, advisor, nag, editor, supervisor and nag to about 20 or so UCI undergraduates every year.

I have one student officially assigned to me from the Mentor

Program operated by the Cross Cultural Center. This mentee is supposed to be with you for a year. My first mentee from 1983 hasn't been in touch for four months now... the longest time I haven't heard from her. I feed my mentees, talk to them and serve as a kind of surrogate big sister/mother... someone who's there when and if you need a hand or a shoulder. My favorite part of being a mentor is cheer leading... convincing the mentees that they can accomplish that "A", complete that course, graduate and get into grad school.

I am an advisor to Best Buddies, a social service club at UCI and I employ two to five workstudy students every year. All my other student involvement just happens. And I am glad to be there doing that. I have been able to keep an accurate sense of what it is like to be an undergraduate student here at UCI, I know what problems and triumphs young people endure and it makes me better able to ensure my work reflects those realities. I am proud and brag on "my kids" as they accomplish superb grades, win awards, graduate, get accepted into graduate schools, get jobs.

But, most of all I am kept involved in the lives of UCI's most valuable asset --- the students. Young, old, new, returning, any size, any shape, any color, any anything - I learn more each day about myself, the world, and UCI by having the privilege of being here with and for "my kids."

MENTOR & MENTEE

Assistant Executive Vice Chancellor Marion Timm and Kim Nguyen enjoy a rare quiet moment together.

The UCI Libraries provide more than just educational experiences. Tiffany Marra moves in for the kill in a friendly game of Hide and Seek.

ANTEATER ANTICS ON CAMPUS

By Kirstie Shepherd

How will UCI be remembered after the fanfare of graduation is over? Many of us think of Irvine as an unlively commuter school. I think of it as a do-it-yourself university. UCI has much to offer besides local bands at Anthill Pub and a good rate for pool at PV Cues if you're willing to venture a little off the beaten track.

At first glance, the library might seem like a cold and foreboding bunch of books. But look again: it's one of the finest locations for a game of hide and seek! Endless rows of shelves and study nooks make for copious crouching spaces. You should know that the library strategically and strenuously disapproves of this sort of thing.

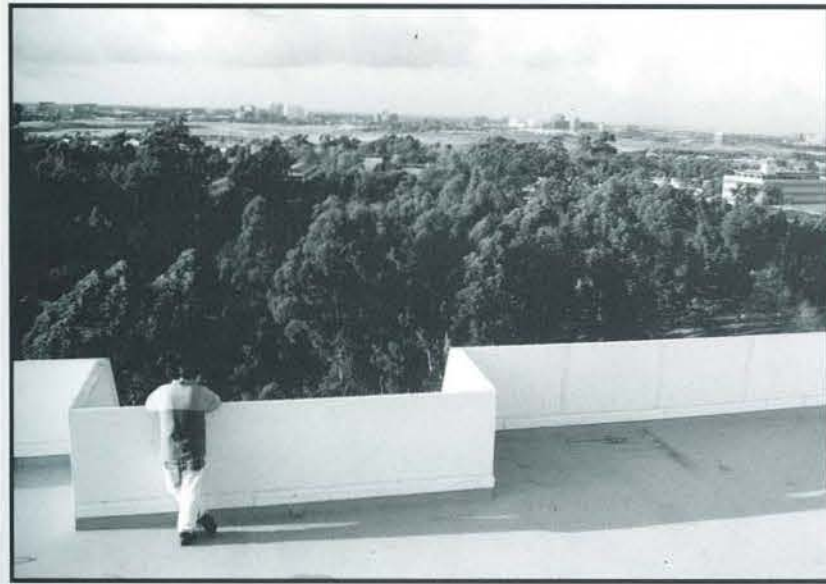

A great way to get rid of stress is to let it go over your head, literally, up on the rooftops. Any interested student can get a bird's eye view of our lovely campus from the roof of a building near you. The easiest buildings to climb are the Student Center and Engineering Lecture Hall. For those less daring and more wary of Campus Police, the view from the top of Engineering 1 just can't be beat. The highest point on campus, it's simply the best spot for a little undisturbed sunbathing. SPF 25, please.

If hiding or heights isn't your thing, there is still plenty more to do. For an interesting peek into the lives of your professors, stroll through the neighborhoods of University Hills, the on-campus housing facility. Whatever you do, don't complain of nothing to do on campus. Life is what you make of it and UCI is no different. With a little adventure and a lot of imagination, there is plenty of fun to be found at UCI.

UP ON THE ROOFTOPS
Travis Dugan and Mike Tzeng think that they are camouflaged by thick shrubbery around the Engineering Lecture Hall. But look out, here comes the Campus Police

A NIGHT IN THE LIFE OF IRVINE

By Lia Marcote

OPEN ALL NIGHT

Denny's stands out as one of the few restaurants in Irvine to provide a welcome haven for late-night food consumption.

TOP FIVE

REASONS WHY IRVINE IS A NIFTY CITY

1. Streets so clean you could eat right off of them.
2. A police officer on every corner.
3. Nice landscaping, great for still life paintings.
4. No pesky night life to slow you down.
5. Access to two major freeways.

Student Life 73

Irvine is a planned community and has been cited as one of the safest cities in the country. But this doesn't have to stop the most creative of the Anteater species from exploring their turf and taking advantage of all it has to offer.

While traditional Anteaters enjoy spending their evenings dancing it up at Metropolis or Cocomos, soaking in a movie at the new Edwards "Big One" theatre, or bitching about how there's nothing to do in Orange County, many strive to go beyond the ordinary when planning out local activities. The following is an account of a Friday night well spent in the city that always sleeps:

5:35pm Take a walk around Woodbridge Lake; fish as late as you want. There are plenty of fish for the catching because the sign says to throw back all fish. The sign's just kidding though, and it's also kidding about feeding the ducks. On second thought, the William R. Mason Park on University has way more ducks, and you won't get arrested for feeding them. Both lakes are very beautiful for unnatural lakes with cement bottoms, and both prohibit swimming.

7:17pm Hungry from all that fishing, and speaking of fine feathered friends, one can become eager to eat poultry. Luckily, Irvine boasts two Boston Markets. This fine dining establishment of the nineties has taken America by storm, dishing out fresh chicken and delectable sides. I am a great chicken consumer and a valued friend of all birds (except for those that I chase at the lake), and I give Boston Chicken two thumbs up.

8:29pm On a full stomach, it's a good idea to go for a little drive. A drive through University Hills can be spiced up by screaming "Chancellor Wilkening is coming!" repeatedly like Paul Revere. The construction on Bonita Canyon Road and Newport Coast Drive creates a great road to drive down with your headlights off. Since you're going that way, you might as well head for Balboa. Take the ferry, drive a few laps around the strip, but make sure to obey the curfew and cruising laws.

10:03pm Time to check out the party scene in Irvine. Okay, that was educational, tennis anyone? For unnatural sporting needs caused by UCI's lack of a football team, University High School may be your best bet. And might I suggest miniature golf overlooking the 405 freeway (fun to play blindfolded), or bowling in that same center for those tired of spectator sports? Then it's always a good idea to pick up the New U for its inherent value, the coupons. These coupons may enable you to top off the night just right, with a frozen yogurt at the marketplace and a free toothbrush at the health center. My goodness, would you look at the time? By 11:00, the places worth going to have closed their doors for the night. Maybe you can still catch Letterman...

It is easy to say that there's nothing to do in Irvine. But, with a little ingenuity, and a few close friends, it is possible to find adventure in Irvine. A contradiction in terms? Absolutely not.

Resident Life

UCI's capacity to accomodate our students via on campus housing has multiplied ten times since Mesa Court opened in 1965. The thousands of students who have been fortunate enough to reside in either Mesa Court, Middle Earth, Campus Village, Arroyo Vista, Verano or Palo Verde experienced campus life to the fullest.

The Legacy & The Promise

FOUNDATION for the Future

BY Chris Wong

UCI students come to the University to establish intellectual-social independence and to prepare for the future. Living in the residence halls is an ideal option for a new beginning. Its much more than just a place to live or a place to complain about institutional food. Life at Mesa Court and Middle Earth can give you a view of the world...a world of different perspectives, diverse traditions and backgrounds.

Though reading newspaper feature articles and interviews are healthy intellectual pursuits, there's no substitutes for living the differences. The impact of living in a new and challenging environment will broaden your perspectives and enrich you with a new humanistic compassion.

Residence Halls provide the "best transition" ramps into the heart of campus life. Each housing complex has a professional and family-oriented staff. Resident and Housing Advisors who reside in the individual halls provide constant and direct support for the new residents. Whether in need of directions to a class, seeking time management tips to survive your first set

How have Residence Halls enriched your academic and social life?

"I live relatively close to UCI and could have easily commuted to school, but I had always wanted to live away from home when I went to college. Living in the residence halls has enriched my academic and social life in ways that I cannot begin to describe. I have grown so much as a person over my years in the halls; much of my learning can be attributed to the interaction I had with countless people from diverse backgrounds. This learning fostered my academic growth, as I probably learned more in the halls than I did in the classroom. By living on campus, I also was able to make some truly priceless friends "

Words of Wisdom

"In the race consciousness of industrialized society; the academic snobbery, the need to be prettier, stronger, smarter, wealthier, to win that all important "race", I'm afraid we often if not all of the time lose sight of the forest for the trees. THE FACE IN THE GLASS

When you get what you want in your struggle for self
And the world makes you king for a day,
Just go to a mirror and look at yourself
And see what THAT Face has to say.
For it isn't your father, mother or spouse
Whose judgement upon you must pass
The person whose verdict counts most in your life
Is the one staring back from the glass.
Some people might think you're a straight-shooting chum
And call you a great gal and guy
But the face in the glass says you're only a bum
If you can't look it straight in the eye.
That's the one you must please, never mind all the rest
That's the one with you clear to the end.
And you know you have passed your most dangerous test
If the face in the glass is your friend.
You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years
And get pats on your back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartache and tears
If you've cheated the face in the glass.

"The RA experience has strengthened me in many ways. From learning about different cultures, backgrounds, and personalities, to handling a crisis. This position has showed me the special uniqueness of each individual and how privileged I am to experience this. I feel that the RA has the responsibility of promoting a close community so that residents will be able to learn to live successfully amongst a diverse population. Both the RAs and the residents learn invaluable lessons about personal interaction and commitment."

Reflections

Thirty-three years ago, when Mesa Court and Verano Place were just being considered, cows wandered over the area designated for those two complexes. Today, the on-campus residential student community consists of 7 different complexes and a population approaching 7000 people. Changes and growth have been the watch words of the UCI Housing Department as well as the UCI community as a whole.

The residential experience at UCI this year has been an extremely positive one. The Academic Theme Houses and The Greek residences in Arroyo Vista, the freshman education programs in Mesa Court and Middle Earth, the uniqueness of IM West, the spirit in Campus Village, the Park in Verano and the Garden in Palo Verde- all are testimony to the vitality of the on-campus residential program.

The next 5-10 years will bring some exciting opportunities. The Housing Department is embarking upon major refurbishment of its two oldest complexes- Mesa Court and Verano Place I, II, and III, and planning has begun on the next increment of on-campus housing in anticipation of forecasted enrollment growth.

UPWARDS HO!: These steps are much more than just a stairway to the dorm, they symbolize the transition that students make from high school, to the university, and beyond.

"Thanks to all the residents for making this year memorable, and congratulations and best wishes to this year's graduating class."

RIGHT: Many cultural dances are performed at Rainbow Festival. These dances are usually sponsored by the Indian Subcontinental Club and the Chinese Association. The Greek Club added their talents to this year's festivities.

As UCI turns 30, its institutional memory tends to reflect upon special programs, reknown academic, social, or cultural speakers, and the events that united the campus community.

Traditional events and programs that have defined the Irvine spirit include Welcome Week, Leadership Conference, SPOP & Uni-Prep, Welcome Week, Rainbow Festival, Wayzgoose, a myriad of annual cultural symposiums and of course June Commencement.

Spontaneous events each year reflect national elections, international crises, and local issues. This year some of our energies and attention were directed towards the Affirmative Action Teach In & Walk Out, a related hunger strike, and the celebration of UCI's Nobel Prize winners Sherwood Rowland and Frederick Reines.

Summer Orientation prepares incoming students for UCI through academic counseling, informative workshops, and keynote speakers. In its 10th year, SPOP and Uni-Prep offers participants the experience of community life, exposure to college atmosphere and the opportunity to make new friends. The participants leave with fond memories and a new outlook on life at UCI.

Summer 1995

"Seeing the participants' expressions change from uncertainty to belonging was truly rewarding."

Clubs

Shared interests and common goals combined with our own uniqueness and individuality is what has made Clubs such an integral part of the UCI tradition. As the amount of clubs continue to increase, the promise of more student participation and unity becomes more than just a vision, but a reality as well.

The Legacy & The Promise

"Cultural existence and preservation is what makes us a l l unique and diverse."

— Sothy In Seanlong Te

CROSSING BOUNDARIES Established this year, Variations is a new club that offers membership to all students of different races and cultures.

PARTY OF FIVE The Chinese Association represents their culture by standing together in unity.

The University's academic environment is not the only thing that has grown at UCI throughout the years. The number of clubs and organizations that have been registered at UCI have also increased from under thirty five in 1965 to over one hundred and seventy five in 1995.

Though membership in clubs and organizations may not be essential for academic success, participation in a group that one can identify with is a major source of stress relief.

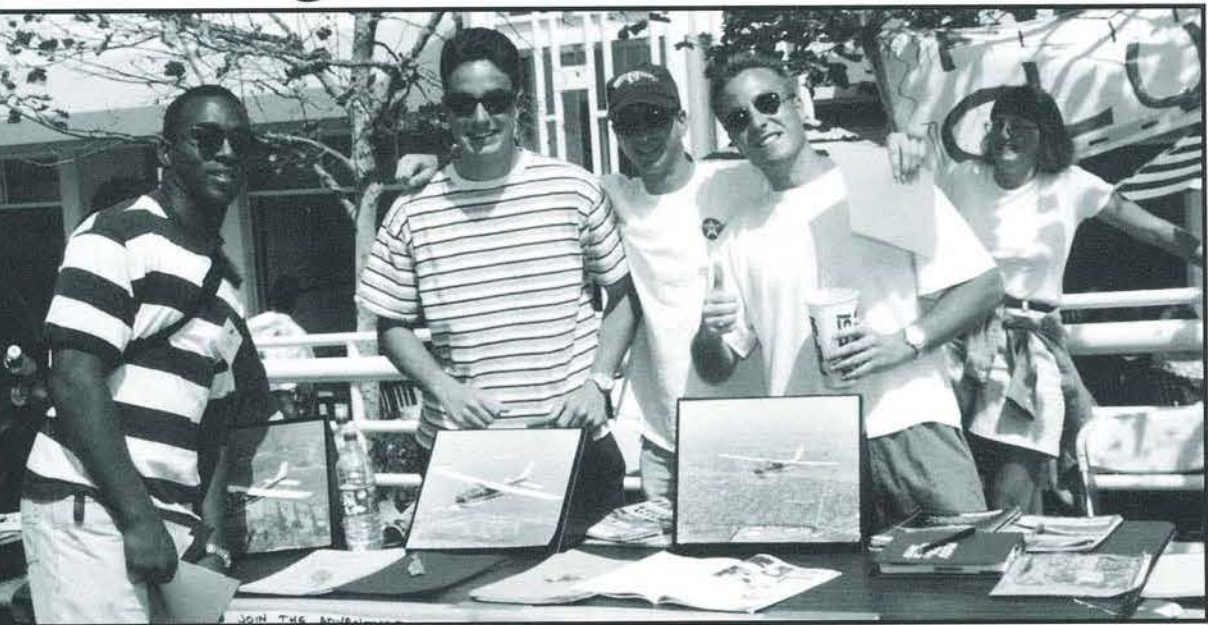

In a competitive environment such as UCI, many students find these opportunities for extracurricular activities to be crucial for developing their social networks as well as maintaining lasting friendships.

BRING IT ON During Welcome Week, the Womens Water Polo team recruits potential members who are dedicated to the spirit of hard work and competition.

CARMELITA OLACHEA

Getting Involved

ON A NATURAL HIGH The Flying Club proudly displays photographs of their Cessna 172. Club members take annual trips to Catalina Island, Santa Barbara, and Big Bear.

FREE ADVICE The Peer Academic Advisors provide the answers to the students' questions about classes or choosing a major. Since there are several Advisors available, students can get all of the information needed in planning their academic schedules.

EILEEN REYES

Club involvement gives students an opportunity to make a difference within the school and local communities. Not only does club participation allow them to become involved with a variety of causes, interests, sports, or hobbies, but it also provides them with the chance to socialize and interact with their peers outside of a classroom setting.

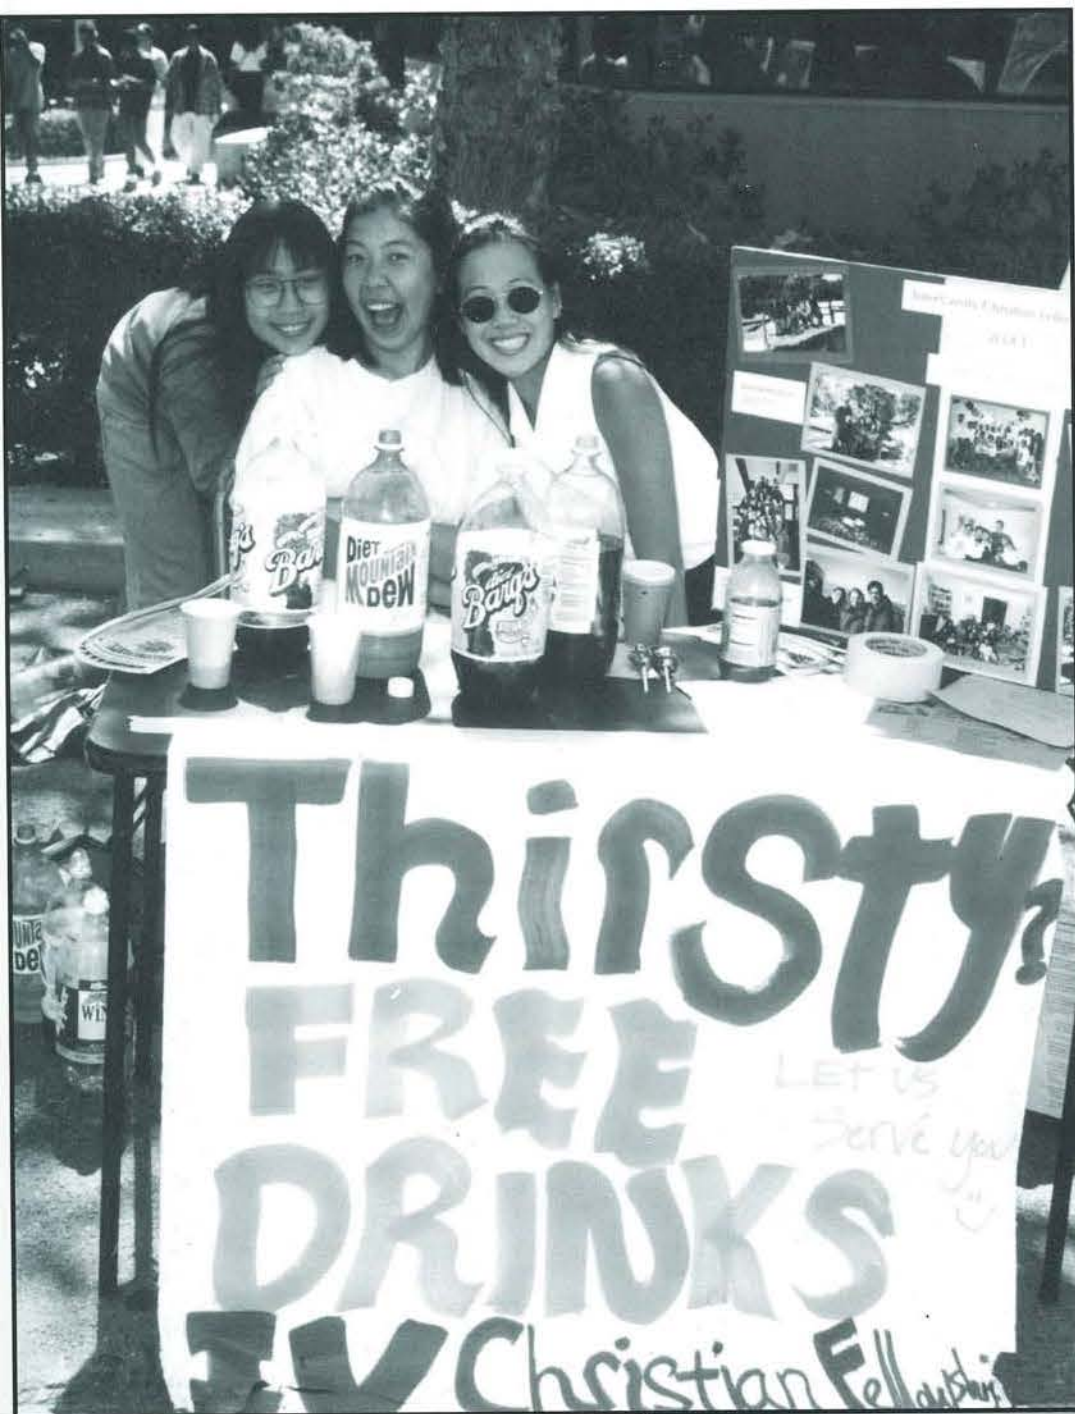

Newly created clubs also build a legacy of traditions, friendships, and the chance to obtain a new awareness of others. The promise to uphold this legacy and to continue to grow in strength throughout the years, is a belief that many clubs share.

Regardless of the number of members in each club, each one has an impact on the school. They provide all students with a chance to be part of a continuing legacy at UCI.

Sharing the Legacy

A TASTE OF LAOTIAN-THAI The Laotian-Thai Culture Club brings an awareness of their cultural traditions to the campus. During Club Day they offer prospective members free Thai iced tea.

The Legacy & The Promise

AXΩ Seeking the Heights

Alpha Chi Omega is very strong in its sisterhood, but it also has a special quality that is hard to possess by so many. Musically, Alpha Chi Omega is very strong and each woman contributes a beautiful voice to any event involving song. Such an event would be Greek Songfest in which Alpha Chi won with the help of the fraternity Phi Sigma Kappa in 1993. Alpha Chi Omega was proud to be a part of an event that raises thousands of dollars every year for charity. It is our hope that greeks continue to unite in supporting the community.

Strong Enough To Care

Pi Kappa Phi's Eta Eta chapter is filled with P.R.I.D.E. (Perseverance Respect Integrity Diversity Excellence). Since our chartering at UCI in May 1992, we have been climbing to the top. Having won Theta's 1994 Go Fly a Kite, 1995 Greek Songfest, established an open RUSH policy on campus, and started the annual UCI Greek Week, we have yet another year to climb higher. Through our annual scaffold sit, we raise money for our national philanthropy. Delta Delta

Accepting those who accept us

The main purpose of this Co-Ed fraternity is to establish and preserve friendship, further cultural awareness, and understanding, and secure academic, social, and community-oriented activities. The central focus of the Deltas is to promote trust, loyalty, and pride for the fraternity among themembers. This is expressed everywhere they go, whether it be as a family or as an individual. The Deltas are interlocking because they show the strong family bond that can never be broken. They also symbolize change upon change for the betterment of the fraternity.

Sisterhood through diversity αΚΔΦ was established during the Fall quarter of 1993 at U.C. Irvine. We promote sisterhood, scholarship, leadership, and Asian awareness in the university and community while encouraging the expression of the individual. Throughout the year, KD Phi participates in philanthropies, cultural events, fundraising & social activities. This year we raised money by attending T.V tapings and donated the proceeds as well as our efforts to two philanthropies, the homeless, and the Pediatrics Cancer Search Foundation. We also participate in Rainbow Fest and Asian Heritage Week.

Founded Upon A Rock

Being a part of an organization with a long history and special traditions is a unique experience to be proud of. For one hundred twenty years, Gamma Phi Beta has been dedicated to developing the highest type of womanhood through education, social life and service to country and humanity. Over two hundred and fifty alumni circles and collegiate chapters continue to show that being a Gamma Phi Beta is a commitment to a sisterhood that lasts a lifetime. Every member of the sorority over the years and across the miles exemplifies the creed by which the sorority holds most dear: Love, Labor Learning and Loyalty.

Soaring High

Kappa Alpha Theta, the first greek letter fraternity for women, was founded at Indiana's Asbury University in 1870. Originally a fraternity of four women, Theta has since developed into a nation wide organization with a chapter at UC Irvine. The women are a diverse group of individuals whose interests span the academic, athletic, leadership and social arenas. Every October, Theta hosts the first philanthropic event of the year, Go Fly A Kite, which benefits Court Appointed Special Advocates. A volleyball tournament, tug-of-war, kite making and lipsync contests make it a very successful philanthropy.

Respect, Honor, Loyalty & Integrity

Lambda Phi Epsilon is the largest and only nationally recognized Asian-American Fraternity. From our first chapter's founding at UCLA in 1981, we have grown to over twenty chapters across the continental United States. Each year, Lambda Phi Epsilon holds a national convention where representatives from all the chapters across the nation come together to discuss issues regarding Asian-Americans and the fraternity. Lambda Phi Epsilon represents brotherhood, respect, honor, loyalty, and integrity. With this tradition, we try to make a positive impact in the Asian-American community.

KKΓ

Keys to Success

Concepts of tradition and heritage were far from the thoughts of the young women who walked into chapel at Monmouth College 125 years ago to establish Kappa Kappa Gamma. They wanted to create a place where women could come together to grow spiritually and scholastically. What they created was a fraternity of women who continue, generation after generation, to believe in the same ideals of goodness and truth. They created Kappa Kappa Gamma giving each member a heritage and a vision to treasure and continue.

Sisterhood to the Extreme

Kappa Zeta Phi, Beta Chapter was established on November 11, 1989. Ten Charter members joined our five founding members through their friendship, leadership, and vision, formed a new Asian American Sorority that was founded at UCI. Our traditions and motivation have been passed down from our Alpha Chapter at CSULA. With 35 years of sisterhood, our legacy continues with Gamma Chapter at UC San Diego. KZΦ builds character, promotes awareness, and supports issues that affect us as students and as Asian Americans. Friendship Is The Sweetest Influence

The Iota Chi Chapter of the Fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta was first established at UC Irvine in 1979. Since then, we have taken advantage of the diversity of our members to excel in all areas of college life. Areas which include academics, sports, charities, and community service. Fiji offers men the opportunity to enrich their college experience with leadership and brotherhood.

Honor, Truth and Love

The Lambda Omicron Chapter of Sigma Nu Fraternity continues to strive for excellence in all aspects of fraternal life here at UCI. Since our installation seven years ago, we have made every effort to assemble a group of men who were dedicated to living their lives by cardinal virtues of love, truth, and honor. Through athletics, scholarship, social functions, and brotherhood events, Sigma Nu has again risen to the top of UCI's Greek system.

The Beta Upsilon chapter at UCI continues the traditons and creates new traditions for future Tri-Delts to continue.

Chartered in 1991, UC Irvine's Phi Kappa Psi Chapter has steadily strived to become one of the top fraternities on campus. This year phi psi emphasized academics and charity. During the 1995-96 academic year, Phi Psi again displayed its strong position on campus. In addition to winning Kappa Alpha Theta's philanthropy, "Go Fly a Kite", Phi Psi had various members who served as chairs or officers in the Greek President's Council, Order of Omega, the Inter-Fraternity Council, and several ethnic and cultural clubs on campus.

Panhellenic Council

Striving for a higher standard

The primary goal of the Panhellenic has been to become more inclusive of the general campus community. Sororities have been an integral part of Ant-eater life since 1973 and Panhellenic has encouraged growth in the development of young women. In 1996 we had a special sense of Greek unity and commitment. Innovative procedures were employed during recruitment efforts for this year to reflect the changing and progressive attitudes of women in the nineties.

The IFC has united with the Panhellenic Council this year to provide a united Greek front in charity work and in recruitment efforts. In the future, IFC hopes to encompass more groups and reach out to the community. The Council will create informational programs which demonstrate the philanthropic and other positive attributes of our Irvine Greek system.

Greek Oath

Good Scholarship, Fine Standards, and High Goals

For the past 23 years, supporting Greek life has been an important educational initiative for the University of California, Irvine campus. Greek organizations have the potential to affect student development in powerful and lasting ways. Organizations which ultimately and cumulatively manage to promote leadership, foster scholastic excellence, encourage community service, and develop lifelong friendships deserve a prominent place in the University campus.

The promotion of good scholarship and attainment of academic excellence are essential to the purpose of the college fraternity. Working as an integral component of the academic mission, Greek organizations have sought to enrich the intellectual life of the campus by sponsoring lectures, debates, and discourse among members, faculty, staff, and friends.

Developing leadership skills in members, creating opportunities to practice those skills, and recognition for leadership achievements of members have always been instrumental dimensions of the fraternity's experience here at UCI.

In celebration of this UCI's 30th anniversary, I take great pride in dedicating the following, as the University of California, Irvine "Greek Oath":

We, the members of the fraternities and sororities at the University of California, Irvine, stand for good scholarship, for maintenance of fine standards and high goals, for the development of individual members and for serving, to the best of our ability, the University and the community in which we live.

We dedicate ourselves, on this occasion, to the dreams of our founders, who believe that joining together was a beginning, keeping together was progress, and working together was the greatest of all.....success.

Rooted in Irvine

The "1841 Club" Begins A Legacy

The Greek system at UCI began showing its roots back in the late sixties when the "1841 Club" attempted to affiliate with the national fraternity, Chi Psi. At that time the Irvine Administration had elected not to recognize or condone the development of social fraternities. Eventually in the early seventies the Greeks planted themselves firmly on campus with the chartering of four fraternities (Chi Psi, Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Theta) and three sororities (Pi Beta Phi, Gamma Phi Beta and Delta Gamma) in 1973. Throughout the seventies and eighties the Greek system flourished adding fourteen more national sororities and fraternities as well as nine ethnicity-oriented fraternities focussing on African-American, Asian-American and Chicano-Latino cultures.

Unfortunately the Greek system suffered a decline in the nineties. Numbers dropped drastically from pledge classes of 40 to 10 forcing some chapters to fold. Chi Psi lost their charter in 1993 while Sigma Chi recently closed its doors this past summer. The national fraternities were not the only ones to feel the pressure of low membership. The African-American sorority, Delta Sigma Theta, also vanished from campus. However the Greek system is not giving up! The Chicano-Latino fraternity, Sigma Lambda Beta, and the national fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon, have joined the Greek family at UCI.

Although spirits have been lowered, one thing is for certain: the Greeks take pride in the Greek System. UCI is known for its fellowship between houses, a strong legacy that is sure to continue.

Shattered Dreams

Greek Housing Experience in Arroyo Vista

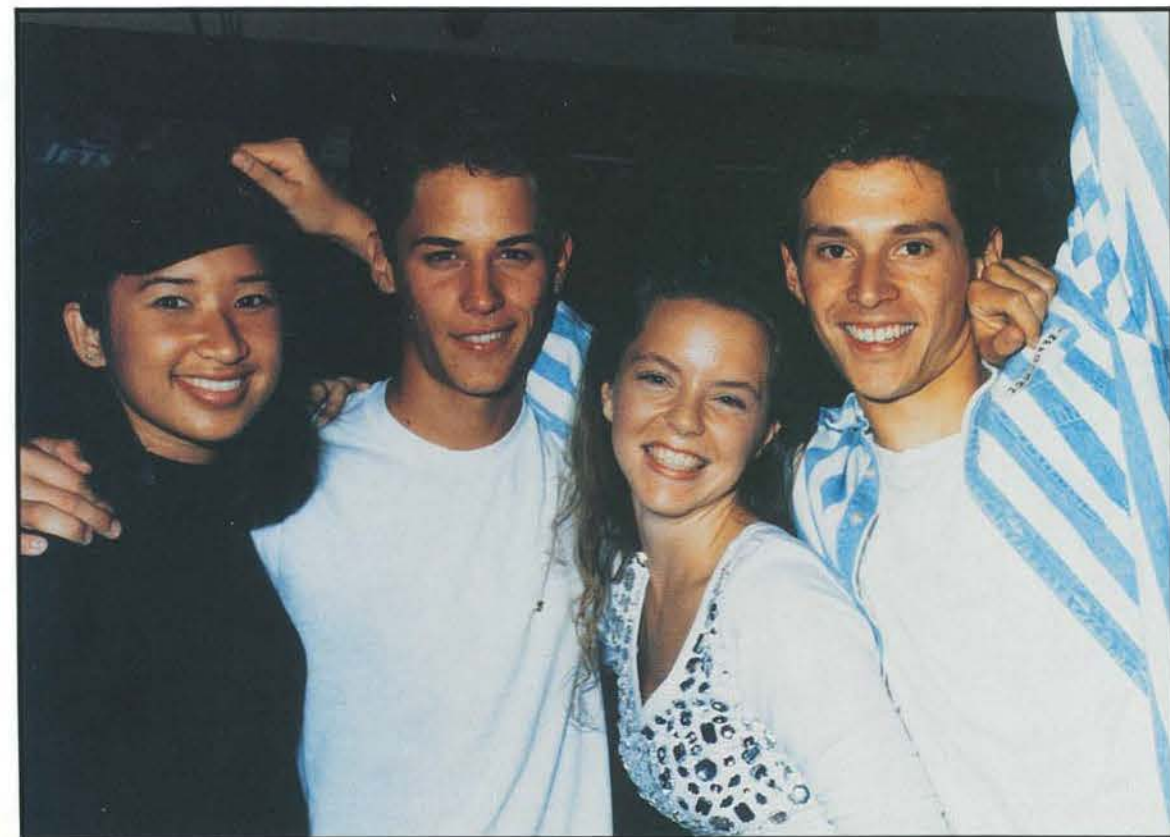

Arroyo Vista has been a unique option for the Greek system at UCI. Very few schools, offer on-campus housing to its Greek organizations. Due to its exceptional nature, Greek housing in Arroyo Vista is largely experimental. In the last three years the Greek chapters have grown to recognize the benefits that Arroyo Vista has to offer, including a pleasant living environment and a sense of community. However, unforeseen problems when the original Greek housing contracts were drawn are now forcing chapters to default on their housing contracts. These problems are a threat for nearly every chapter living in Arroyo Vista.

Why has the Greek community at UCI been having problems with the housing arrangements? Rush numbers have been steadily declining through the last few years, making it difficult for a chapter to reach its membership quota. Negative publicity and false stereotypes intimidate students who might otherwise be interested in joining a Greek organization. The result is a slow downward spiral that may end with the fatalities of many Greek chapters at UCI.

The debate between the Main Housing Office, the Greek chapters and their House Corporation Boards is also under heated debate. Housing feels that it has been more than reasonable, lowering rent to help the struggling chapters while some feel that they are being picked clean by the greedy UC Regents. Unfortunately, it has always been easier to place blame on others rather than admit fault and attempt to correct mistakes. It would be nice to see everyone negotiate their positions and work together to ensure the future of the Greek community. If the Greeks thrive, so will UCI!

Breaking Stereotypes

Greeks define the meaning of "the college experience" at UCI

Through the brush of Aldrich Park and past the abyss of Lot 1B, lies one of the University's deepest secrets—UCI's Greek Community. Ironically, if ever unearthed, it might just be the Greeks who prove to be the vanguard of student life on this campus. It's therefore quite a shock to realize that the Greek Letter Organizations at UCI, despite being underappreciated, underfunded, and literally banished to the outskirts of campus, have been doing for years what the Administration apparently deems impossible in terms of School Spirit.

While UCI deviates from its academic course for five days a year during Welcome Week, fraternities and sororities sponsor events all year long that help to define "the college experience." And despite those who are quick to adopt the "Animal House" stereotype, the majority of the events do not involve alcohol or any other sort of illicit behavior. This is not to say that drinking doesn't occur, it does—but it's only a very, very small part of what Greek Life (and in fact, College Life) is all about. Greek activities are about unifying vastly different sorts of people escaping the confines of the classroom and celebrating the best years of our lives. Events like Songfest and Greek Week create the sort of lasting memories rarely found campus-wide. And perhaps more importantly, the Greeks spread the reputation of UCI throughout the community with their expansive philanthropic efforts; not satisfied with just having a good time, most Greek sponsored events are specifically targeted to benefit a charitable group or organization. Without a strong athletic tradition to support, students are able to find an outlet for their pride and loyalty through Greek organizations and events. These are the sorts of ties that breed strong alumni support, and it's these participants who will foster the yet unborn "Irvine Myth" in the tradition of larger, older schools such as Notre Dame or UCLA. And it's these people who will return to give back to the university. There is so much talent and energy to be found within the walls of the Greek community, that the Administration, upon closer inspection, might find that the answers to all of its student life prayers lie no further than beyond the grassy knolls of Arroyo Vista.

Athletics

Anteater Athletics has been and will likely remain, a program built upon the determination, hard work and commitment of its coaches, team members and administrative staff. As a primarily academic campus, the program is underfunded. In spite of setbacks, our teams have consistently captured its share of titles and earned the respect of our competitors

The Legacy & The Promise

The Legacy...

The Legacy began 30 years ago when a group of buildings on the northwest corner of the campus formed the newest UC school's athletic complex. A gym, a field and a track stadium were all that was needed to launch what we know today as the UCI Athletic Program.

Today the once tiny school now competes in Division I of the NCAA. Though national championships and UCI are not mentioned in the same breath, The Promise lies in the coming years when the Anteaters will be a force in the top division as they were once in the lower divisions. It's a promise that hinges on a rapidly improving program and a team of administrators that follows one philosophy when presenting UCI to the outside world: Image and Substance.

But this all did not just happen overnight. Nearly hidden in UCI's athletic legacy is the golden era when the Anteaters fielded what was arguably considered the strongest athletic program at the Division II level. During this era UCI captured over 30 team and individual championships, in various sports including baseball, track, tennis and water polo.

Then came the lean years when UCI, barely into its second decade decided to jump to the next level. Seasons dragged on as the Anteaters soon went from being one of the best programs in the nation to being one of the worst. The department's budget shrank while their opponents' budgets kept on growing. The crushing blow came four years ago when the once successful baseball team was cut due to the increasingly dwindling budget.

Amidst the problems though, emerged a new era starting the day Athletic Director Dan Guerrero and his team took over in 1992. Immediately the focus athletic program that would succeed rather than merely exist. Four years later the promise continues amid a string of successes that included a trip to the NCAA Tournament for the women's basketball team, a top 20 national ranking for the women's soccer team, a bright future for the men's basketball team, a Big West title for the women's cross country team and a return to prominence for the men's water polo team after a disappointing 1994-95 season.

In its 30th year, the legacy of UCI Athletics still rings in the memories of those who have brought it to this point, but the promise shines even brighter for UCI's next thirty years.

The women's soccer team enjoyed one of its finest seasons ever. Nationally ranked in the top 25 for most of the year, the season included victories against many powerful teams. The highlight of the season was an upset over then-ranked No. 4, University of Hartford.

Our Team has Done it Again!

When you think of cross-country, most people think you have to be crazy to run. The men and women's cross-country team led by Coach Vince O'Boyle are far from crazy. In fact these athletes are completely dedicated to the sport of running.

Imagine yourself stepping up to the starting line. Your heart is racing, anxiously awaiting the start of your race. You hear the crackle of the gun - your off, your race has begun.

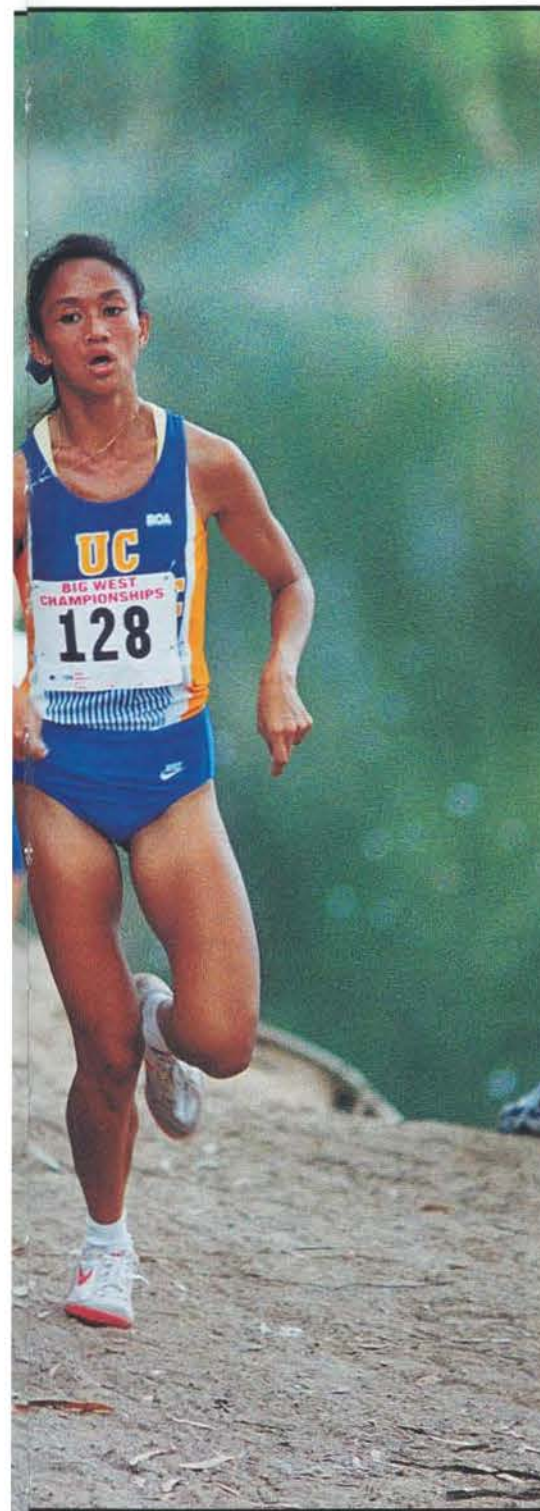

The women's team has been racing great all season, but on October 29, the Big West Conference, the exhausting training and months of sacrifice was brought into perspective. The team was led by Josephine Yaba who is ranked sixty second in the nation. With Josephine's first place finish, and with the help of team mates: Laura Monson and Kay Nekota the team experienced the ultimate high of winning conference.

The men's team ran strong with a tight lead pack led by senior Ryan Gauss. Ryan reflecting back on the season states, "The season started off disappointing and slow, but we all finished strong. I consider it an honor to be on this team, everyone gives a 100% everyday." Ryan with the help of his teammates Brian Contrarus, Jim Roldan and Michael Cherman have had an excellent season, ending the season at conference with a third place finish.

The entire cross-country season is very grueling, lives are placed on hold, you see how fast you can become. As we look into the eyes of these athletes, we see the pain and frustration they experience. Mostly one sees the want and desire from within that pushes them to become the best of the best - a distance runner.

UCI's Droppin' Bombz

UCI Hoops

The Big West Conference and UCI are not strangers. Anteaters Men's Basketball have consistently participated in the Big West Conference. Under the direction of Coach Baker the team has played in the Tournament three out of the last four years. With renewed enthusiasm and promise, Baker's '96 pre-season theme was "This year, the Big West Conference Tournament begins in October." Early in the season Anteaters realized their potential in their national up-set victory over St. John's in New York.

The 1995 - 96 season was an inspirational one as the team jockeyed for first place against Long Beach State for the Big West Conference title. Traveling to Reno for the March showdown, our team was defeated in the first round by San Jose State.

The strength of this year's team came from a blending of talents from strong returnees and promising newcomers. Returning starters, Senior Forward Michael Tate and Sophomore Guard Brian Keefe with the help of the dynamic duo, Sophomore Forward Kevin Simmons and Senior Guard Raimonds Miglinieks combined efforts to make this UCI's most memorable basketball season.

Tchaka made a long awaited return from a July 1994 auto accident. Coach Baker said, "the day that Tchaka came back on the floor again was really something extra. The fact that Tchaka walks around amongst us is so much more fulfilling and more of a wonderful situation than whether he plays again. The hardest thing for him will be patience."

Strength also came in the form of two front line returnees Senior Forward, Shaun Battle and Junior Center, Dan Augulis. The 6-6 Battle has endured nagging injuries throughout his career, but did average 8.5 points and 5.3 rebounds this past year.

1996 UCI Women's Basketball.

On the heels of last year's NCAA win, UCI's Women's Basketball team were eager to repeat their success this year. Unfortunately, the Women's Basketball team finished the season at 5-8 in conference play. Coached by Colleen Matsuhara, the women "Eaters displayed talent but were not able to overcome a midseason four game losing streak. The loss of third leading scorer Senior Guard Tamera Thomas and Guard Davette Williams hindered their efforts.

Senior Center Allah-mi Basheer once again provided key leadership for the Women's Basketball team. She became only the eighth player to break the 100 point mark.

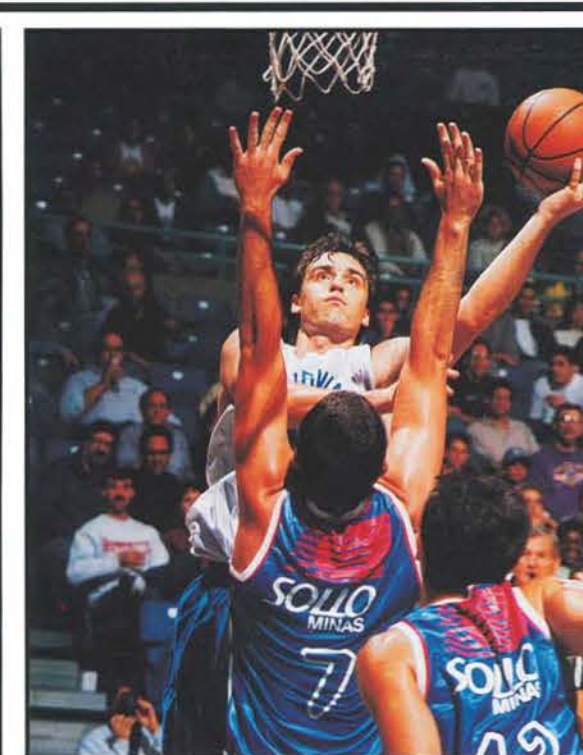

Also returning to the Anteater team is senior Fatima Warren and sophomores Leticia Oseguera and Sabrina Roberson. Warren has finished her second season since she redshirted, and is proving to maintain a very promising collegiate career. Sabrina Roberson has done more than her part in helping to carry the team forward.

The Legacy & The Promise

Office of the Chancellor

Chancellor

Laurel Wilkening

Compared to many great universities in the world, UCI at age 30 is an aspiring adolescent. All the more remarkable then is the legacy we have begun to build-- a legacy that already includes two Nobel Prizes, and a place among the top research universities in the country. As faculty, students and the university explore the foundation and the frontiers of knowledge, we are growing together into the 21st Century, at the same time fulfilling our promise for the future. The UCI promise ensures a quality educational experience whereby our graduates may enrich society, the professions, and the lives of generations to come.

Executive Vice Chancellor

EVC

Sidney Golub

This marks our 30th anniversary. We are a young institution and yet we have accomplished so much in a short time: external ranking that places us among the nation's leading research universities; the honor of being home to two Nobel Laureates; and a center that provides culture, technology, and medical service to our community. We have also faced some daunting challenges. The State faced its most severe budget crisis in several decades, which in turn significantly affected UCI's ability to meet our diverse missions. Our highest priorities this year have been to meet the educational needs of our undergraduate and graduate students and to create an environment conducive to supporting our faculty in the creation of new knowledge.

Great challenges remain ahead of us, but also the opportunities, even on a campus as young as this is one, to redefine our role as we move to invent the university of the 21st century. There has never been a more important time for all of us at UCI to reach out, and together faculty, staff, students, and the community can preserve and build UCI's position as a leader in teaching, research, and service.

"For the past 10 years, I have seen the growth of UCI measured not only by increasing numbers of students and buildings, but also by a greater commitment from the UCI community to academic excellence, to the integration of the humanities and the sciences, and to the goals of diversity. I am looking forward to a very positive future for UCI." —Caroline Ehrlich

Office of Academic Affairs

Faculty Ass't to EVC

Professor Lyman W. Porter

The activities of the Office of Academic Affairs are focused on faculty development, academic personnel issues, academic program planning, and institutional accreditation. The office provides leadership for the administration and development of new and continuing initiatives which serve to support the recruitment, retention, and advancement of an excellent and diverse faculty. A major activity of one part of the office is to coordinate the faculty personnel review process, including appointments and promotions. Additional responsibilities of the office include coordination of all search activities for deans and endowed chair positions and acting as a liaison to the systemwide Office of the President on university policy matters. Institutional accreditation reports and related matters also are handled by this office. In addition, each year this office coordinates and oversees a faculty orientation program during the fall quarter to welcome new faculty and constructs supplemental workshops for junior faculty on topics such as the promotion and tenure process, teaching, and grants and contracts.

Resource Management & Analysis

Ass't. EVC

Roy E. Dormaier

Resource Management & Analysis (RMA) includes the departments of Financial Planning, Academic Budget Management, Campus Asset Management, Analytical Studies and Information Management, and Capital Planning.

In the past several year, RMA helped the campus and UCI Medical Center to significantly reduce spending in the leasing of off-campus space. We have also assisted the campus in securing funding and approval for nearly one-half billion dollars of construction over the past decade. RMA has developed a standardized survey response which is used as a model by many other universities and the automated faculty workload system. We advise executive management on the allocation of campus resources. RMA has also helped the campus in dealing with a $5M budget reduction.

RMA sees a great future for UCI! We will continue to work diligently to assist campus management in achieving success and prestige for UCI. We will assist the campus in maximizing the income from its land to support the Bren Endowment and other academic programs. We will continue to secure funding and approval for additional buildings and research capabilities. RMA will be instrumental in upgrading World Wide Web capabilities that should enable students to apply for admission on-line and to disseminate research results.

"I have worked at UCI for 15 years and watched and helped it grow to an internationally known university. It almost seems impossible that UCI could have achieved so much growth and respect in such little time. But, when I think of UCI's future, I am reminded of a line from Lewis Carol's Through a Looking Glass, "Why sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast." UCI has just finished its breakfast and ready to accomplish hundreds of more impossible things."

Office of Financial Planning

Dir. Financial Planning

Sandi Campbell

The Office of Financial Planning, whose staff of 9 employees has over 125 years of UC experience, provides a wide range of financial services to campus departments in order to maximize the campus' ability to pursue its goals of teaching, research, and public service. Effective relationships are maintained with various personnel at the UC Office of the President and other campuses. We have assisted the campus in securing funding and approval for nearly one-half billion dollars of construction over the past ten years.

We have provided campus management with information and recommendations to address the $25M budget reduction over the last five years.

We look forward to increasing our creative approaches to financial analysis and presentation techniques in order to provide campus management with appropriate information and alternatives to make budgetary allocation, administrative policy, and other decisions of financial impact.

"My association with UCI began 22 years ago with a part time job checking out books at the Library, which grew into my present position within Resource Management and Analysis. Working at the University has offered me an opportunity for advancement as I developed new skills, as well as friendships with staff colleagues. However, UCI has also offered me an opportunity to interact with students and faculty that I would not have had elsewhere."

Office of Affirmative Action

Assistant Exec. V.C.

Marion E. Timm

The UCI Office of Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity (OAA/EO) provides consultation to the campus and UCI Medical Center on the interpretation and application of both UCI policy and federal and state laws regarding equal opportunity. The office investigates and provides assistance in the resolution of discrimination complaints, including sexual harassment, brought by students, faculty, and staff.

In addition, the OAA/EO provides campuswide training in areas of multiculturalism and diversity. The OAA/EO consists of a team committed to serving the University community as advocates for equality, fairness, and respect for all. They believe in valuing and honoring each other and, by example, all others. They strive to be honest and forthright, and to uphold the principles of dignity, integrity, confidentiality, and understanding.

To uphold the office's "vision statement," they pledge to:

- Be catalysts for equality
- Be responsive
- Be proactive

Everyone is invited to visit the office, located at 524 Administration Building. Telephone is 824-5594.

Office of the Ombudsman

University Ombudsman

Ron Wilson

With the combined faculty, staff, and student population of over 22,000, UCI inevitably encounters its share of problems and conflicts. Under the direction of Assistant Executive Vice Chancellor-University Ombudsman Ron Wilson, the Ombudsman Office responds to concerns presented by individuals and group members of the UCI campus.

The Ombudsman Office provides a confidential, impartial, and informal setting for conflict negotiation and dispute resolution by clarifying issues; making appropriate on-and-off campus referral for students, faculty, and staff; and, attempting to prevent the escalation of group hostilities.

With the invaluable assistance of Associate Ombudsman Janis Schonauer, Assistant Ombudsman Donna Fraser, Peer Ombudsman Carol Kim, FSAP Manager, Shannon E. Williams, and Administrative Assistant Shirley Crawford, the Ombudsman Office successfully meets the changing needs of the campus.

Office of Research and Graduate Studies

Dean & V.C. for R&GS

Frederic Y. M. Wan

You may have heard that UCI is a "research university" but have you ever thought about who keeps track of the details of conducting more than $100 million a year in research? Four of the five areas in Research and Graduate Studies are devoted to advancing research on campus and at the Medical Center: Office of Research Administration, University/Industry Research and Technology, University Laboratory Animal Resources, and Office of the Vice Chancellor for Research. Members of these offices enjoy helping faculty members find research funding, apply for grants, get their contracts and grants processed, and follow government policy. Our fifth area, the Office of Graduate Studies, helps ride herd on one of UCI's most precious resources, our graduate students. It's a lot of work but we are looking forward to even more. After all, the Chancellor has asked us to help put UCI among the top 50 research universities by the year 2000!

Student Services

Vice Chancellor

Manuel Gomez

As UCI grows into a mature university, we will continue to build on our strength as a richly diverse campus. The contributions of a dynamic matrix of cultures will enable us to break from the limitations of our youthful past and reinvigorate the values of innovation and change. Students remain our most vital resource in the growth of this University towards its potential as one of the premier educational institutions in the country. The creation of a vital and supportive campus community which continues to evolve to meet the changing needs of our students is the mission of this organization. Our goal is the development of a well structured web of interdependent resources to allow students an uninterrupted focus on academic progress. An important step towards this end is the dismantling of a habitually developed pattern of divided domains and a new emphasis on collaboration, both inside and outside the campus community. An administrative structure based on the cooperative efforts of a variety of focus groups will infuse the University with a newly diverse pool of talents and energy.

The evolution of a strong campus community sustains the vitality of the University from matriculation to alumni participation. We will continue to encourage active partnerships between UCI and its alumni. As UCI moves into the 21st century, we will be presented with a diversity of new challenges. As the campus community expands to embrace these opportunities, Student Services will provide innovative and cooperative leadership for the University.

Office Manager

Beverley Pirtle

"For many years, I have envisioned myself working at UCI. As a former teacher, I sustain my own connection to learning through helping students and by contributing to the forward-thinking work of the campus. Over the past seven years I have worked in several offices, including EOP and now Student Services, and have learned a great deal through a myriad of opportunities for both personal and professional growth. The beauty of the campus, energy of the students and staff, and the intellectual stimulation UCI provides have made my tenure here consistently uplifting, challenging, and exciting."

Center for Educational Partnerships

Regional Director

Juan Lara

The Center for Educational Partnerships pursues a sustained commitment to the quality of public education at all levels. Our goals directly align with the UC's commitment to California to enable all citizens to read, write, think creatively and critically, appreciate art and culture, and understand science and technology. The Center's mission is to stimulate and advance cooperative educational relationships among UCI and California schools and colleges. Through established programs and community outreach it seeks to foster community links to improve the preparation of all students, particularly those from underserved groups, for success in higher education.

Office of the Dean of Students

Dean of Students

Sally Peterson

The occasion of UCI's 30th Anniversary provides us with the opportunity to take a nostalgic glance at "the way we were." In 1965, UCI was a very different place from the campus we know today. In 30 years, we have seen a distinguished university emerge from what was once rolling fields with grazing cattle. At every level, the promise that was UCI has become a part of our legacy.

This is particularly true in the area of student life. The charter class of 1,589 students who enrolled in 1965 would be duly impressed with the diversity of programs and services now provided by the Office of the Dean of Students: Over 275 student organizations - An active fraternity and sorority program - A Community Service program with over 20 different service groups - Leadership Development Programs - Orientation Programs - Special Events AND the outstanding services provided by our five resource centers.

UCI has made its mark! Although change has been incredible, one thing has remained constant - students. Students give UCI its personality and help shape its character. We must celebrate the thousands of students who have contributed so much to making UCI what it is today. The entire staff from the Office of the Dean of Students salute the UCI student body.

Ass't. Dean of Students

Randy Lewis

"When I was hired at UCI in 1970, the campus was young, innovative and full of promise. Even in the early years, no one ever doubted that UCI had a rendezvous with destiny. Today, we can all take pride in our incredible achievements and the legacy that is UCI!"

Cross-Cultural Center

Director

Corrina Espinoza

The Cross-Cultural Center (CCC) was founded on October 16, 1974, by a group of concerned UCI faculty, staff, and students who recognized the need for a support system for underrepresented students. These students were recognized at that time as American Indian, African American, Chicano/Latino, Filipino, Asian/Pacific American. The center embarked upon a series of programs, activities, and services to assist the university in addressing the personal, social, cultural, and academic needs of its increasingly diverse student body.

Over the course of the last 20 years, in concert with the changes in the size of the campus and the make up of the student body, the CCC has evolved and expanded programming to address issues and topics relative to its ethnic and culturally diverse campus community. The CCC has celebrated 10 years of the Rainbow Festival & Conference, the Asian Pacific Awareness Conference and the Martin Luther King, Jr. Symposium--educational programs centered on providing the campus with awareness and exposure. Cultural observances such as Cinco de Mayo and Asian Heritage Week have grown to a month long. Black History Month is now African Consciousness Quarter, a quarter-long observance of the achievements and contributions of African Americans. The CCC has also nurtured and developed UCI student leadership by providing avenues such as the CCC Presidents' Retreat, Leadership Development Course and CCC Advisory Board.

As UCI has grown and built its legacy, so has the Cross-Cultural Center. As UCI strives to maintain its excellence and diversity for the future, so will the Cross-Cultural Center endeavor to promote the education and development of a multi-ethnic, multicultural campus community and continue its promise.

Campus Calendar

Director

Carolyn Hunt

The Campus Calendar Office, the hub of facilities reservations and event information on the UCI campus, is on the move! With approximately 180 facilities scheduled by the department, the staff usually finds itself involved in nearly every event on the campus.

In addition to scheduling and planning events, the Scheduling Center is also responsible for academic class and final exam scheduling, the production of the UCI Master Calendar of events, and the posting of event information on the campus marquees. Our complimentary efforts will serve students, staff, and faculty with all the new, innovative resources available as we head into UCI's fourth decade.

Campus Calendar Staff: Scheduling Coordinator Maria Gillespie, Asst. Director Sheila Hayden, Director Carolyn Hunt, Program Assistant Gwen Donaldson.

Student Center

Director

Marc Tuchman

The musical beat of the Student Center Terrace noon concerts reflects the constant energy that permeates the entire facility. During the '95-'96 academic year, the Student Center Board and the Center's professional staff devoted their energies towards rejuvenating the "traffic areas". After six years of constant use, the Blue and Gold Lounge, the Conference Lobby and the P.V.Cue Courtyard needed a bit of a lift.

Undoubtedly the best news of the year came in the form of technological advancement. The Student Center, in cooperation with the Library, Office of Academic Computing and Student Services, brought 20 public use terminals to the Center. These terminals will provide students with easy access to research information and on-campus world wide web usage.

The Student Center Board is comprised of 14 students, 3 staff members, 1 faculty member, 1 Alumnus, and the Director of the Student Center. The Board recently recommended the relocations of the Dean of Students, Health Education and Campus Calendar to improve services for the students. This year the board has concentrated on improving the information booth lobby, integrating the new internet terminals into the Center, and increasing programming sponsored by the Board.

Tutorial Assistance Program

Director

Craig Longuevan

A legacy presents itself as something vital, something worthwhile, something that links together experiences and accomplishments of the past with those of the present. A legacy is an inheritance and, like all such gifts, must be respected, put to use, and developed. A legacy always implies those who fashioned it, those who transmit and transform it, and those who receive it. A promise presents itself as something hoped for, something trusted in, something that ties together experiences and accomplishments of the present with those of the future. A promise is what we wish to carry into the future, what we give to the future, what we may indeed hope will become a legacy. Promises, like legacies, always tie together individuals and groups in actions and mutual respect.

The Tutorial Assistance Program believes that the legacy it has developed over the years at UCI, helping students become successful in their academic undertakings, is vital, worthwhile, and part of what we promise to provide to future UCI undergraduates. We promise, that is, to continue our legacy. We promise that we shall continue to develop and transform our legacy as we move into UCI's fourth decade.

Student Academic Advancement Services

Director

Joe Maestas

Student Academic Advancement Services (SAAS), an integral part of the Division of Undergraduate Education, has existed at UCI since the mid-1970s, and the program has evolved with the campus. The purpose of the program has remained constant: to promote the retention and graduation rates of first-generation college, low-income, and disabled students. SAAS reflects a partnership between the U.S. Education Department (USED) and UCI. Over the past twenty years, SAAS has helped thousands of students earn their undergraduate degrees. In 1993, SAAS was cited by the USED as a "model program" for the nation.

SAAS is committed to continuing this tradition of excellence through program services which include: one-to-one counseling, academic advising, skills workshops, the Summer Bridge and ECSEL programs, peer advising, new student orientations, graduate studies preparation, graduate exam reviews, and general assistance in obtaining campus services for academic achievement. SAAS is proud to be part of UCI's thirty year legacy, and we look forward to playing a key role in the University's continuing commitment to student success.

"I've had the privilege of spending the past sixteen years here at UCI. During that time, I've witnessed tremendous development on the campus, and I'm confident that we are well prepared to address the educational challenges that we will face in the coming years."

Office of Financial Aid

Asst. Vice Chancellor

Otto W. Reyer

The Office of Financial Aid and Educational Financing congratulates all of the graduates in the Class of 1996.

In our quest to assist each student in achieving their educational goals we have had the opportunity to share in your pursuits. Few campus offices have the unique and wonderful chance to assist students in all aspects of their educational career. This continued relationship provides us with the advantage to share in your growth.

Your accomplishments and achievements are our greatest rewards and it is with great pride that we celebrate with you your completion of this phase of your university career. Again, congratulations.

Financial Advisor Mariana Iliescu is one of the financial aid advisors who makes the first public contact with the students. Advisors assist students with the procedures and applications needed to apply for aid.

Federal Programs Coordinator Cheryl Hardison and Counselor Daisy Ross display the cooperative camaraderie that exists among the staff.

Assistant Director of Counselors Dean Kulju coordinates the efforts of a seven member staff of counselors. The counselors are responsible for the awarding of financial aid, grants, loans and scholarships.

School of Social Ecology

Dean

Daniel Stokols

The Program in Social Ecology was established in 1970 by Professor Arnold Binder, and a handful of faculty colleagues and students, as an academic unit spanning the environmental, legal, behavioral, and health sciences. It began as a bold experiment in higher education. The broad scope and academic mission of Social Ecology were unprecedented, and the eventual fate of this experimental unit was unclear. Over the years, the Program has attracted a group of risk takers who shared a strong desire to establish something new and unusual in academia: Namely, an academic unit devoted to interdisciplinary instruction and research, and to the application of basic theory and research to community problem-solving. Although the Program in Social Ecology was not a part of UCI's initial academic plan, it has, over the past 25 years, established a unique intellectual niche on the Irvine Campus, and within the University of California as a whole.

For the School of Social Ecology, what are some of the challenges we face for the future? First, it is incumbent on us to make good on the rather substantial investment that the state and the University of California have made in our unique and non-traditional unit. We must continue to strive to become exemplar at national and international levels for excellence in interdisciplinary research and teaching, and to be a force in the nation for the development of scientific innovations that can be effectively applied toward the resolution of societal and environmental problems.

School of Social Ecology Staff: Front Row: Roxy Silver, Paul Jesilow, Tom Crawford, Sal Maddi, Dele Ogunseitan, Chuansheng Chen, Larry Jamner, Danching Ruan, Linda Levine, Ellen Greenberger, Lois Takahashi, Carol Whalen, JoAnn Prause, Ray Novaco, Henry Pontell Back Row: Karen Rook, Dave Dooley, Randy Crane, Sanjoy Mazumdar, Ross Conner, Jim Meeker, Bryan Vila, Dick McCleary, Mark Baldassare, Dan Stokols, Kris Day, Scott Bollens, Jon Ericson, John Whiteley, John Dombrink.

"Social Ecology has evolved from program to school, leaving a legacy of scholarship offering both promise and inspiration. I feel very fortunate to be part of this on-going process called education."

School of Medicine

Dean

Thomas Cesario, M.D.

The UCI College of Medicine (COM) began in 1896 as a private Southern California college of osteopathy and medicine. Formerly the California College of Medicine, it became part of the University of California in 1967, and graduated its first class in 1968. Since then, UCI College of Medicine has established itself as a major medical research institution and academic medical center dedicated to education and public service. The COM has engaged in a comprehensive project, known as the Center for the Health Sciences. This is a collaborative program of strategic alliances between the university and business in health care services. The first building for the Center, the William Gillespie Neurosciences Research is scheduled to open in 1997. The College of Medicine also boasts as having an officially designated cancer center by the National Cancer Institute, making it one of the 54 NCI cancer centers in the U.S. and the only one in Orange County. UCI students pursue both primary care training and in state residencies at rates in the top 10% of all medical schools nationwide. The UCI Medical Center (UCIMC), is located in Orange, 13 miles from campus.

School of Engineering

Dean

Allen R. Stubberud

UCI's School of Engineering is dedicated to the philosophy of meeting tomorrow's technological challenges by providing the highest quality engineering education and research today. The school is highly respected for its educational and research programs as evidenced by a composite of rankings by the National Research Council where in three programs were ranked in the top tier.

Students can choose to study from a wide range of engineering disciplines: aerospace engineering, chemical engineering, civil engineering, computer engineering, electrical engineering, environmental engineering, and mechanical engineering. Engineering education has a dual role, one is to provide a foundation for professional careers and the other to prepare students for graduate studies.

While the faculty of the School of Engineering is highly regarded evidenced by their recognition by professional organizations, the student body also is of high quality. Entering students' math SAT scores normally rank among the highest on the campus and their verbal scores are competitive with other disciplines on campus. The faculty and staff of the School are proud of the contributions they are making to enhance the education and quality of life for the intelligent, hard working, and enthusiastic engineering student body.

"During the short life of UCI, the world population is beginning to recognize the conflict between the earth's environment and man. While UCI is today attracting international attention for pioneering key scientific discoveries in both energy and environmental science, the next thirty years will require dynamic leadership to transcend traditional university structure... and promote the interdisciplinary research and education needed to effectively address and understand this conflict and its ramifications."

Information & Computer Science

ICS Chair

Prof. Michael J. Pazzani

As ICS celebrates its 30th anniversary, computer science leads the way as UCI's promise for the 21st Century. And believing that the best technologies in the world are only as good as the professional and technical people who apply it, ICS has created an environment of academic excellence where the best and brightest students are educated to meet the major challenges and opportunities of the next century. Today, as never before, the future rests more heavily on our university and you, the students we graduate.

As we stand at the doorstep of the 21st Century, this year's computer science graduates are uniquely positioned. Knowing that technology is rapidly changing and that only the most agile will succeed, ICS has provided you with an innovative and demanding curriculum demonstrating the faculty's commitment to academic excellence and flexibility. Knowing that you have succeeded in completing this extremely demanding program should give you a great sense of pride and satisfaction. As Information and Computer Science graduates, you are exceptionally well prepared to enter leadership roles.

From the faculty and staff of ICS, we wish you only the best. You've earned it!

"As an ICS graduate student during the late 1970's, and as a faculty member since, I have had the good fortune to be part of the pioneering efforts that have made UCI, in just 30 short but remarkable years, one of the nations leading research universities. This success is both the legacy and the promise that is UCI today."

Graduate School of Management

Dean

Dennis J. Aigner

GSM recently established the following Mission Statement:

"The Graduate School of Management serves managers, professionals and educators through innovation in research and teaching, and provides internationally recognized leadership in Information Technology Management, Management in a Global Environment, and Health Care Management."

GSM has gained national recognition for its success within the Information Technology focus. Computerworld magazine ranked GSM 23rd in the category of "Best Technological MBA Program." A new IT-track will be added to the full-time MBA program in Fall 1996. This program will utilize information technology cases and examples within all the core courses. Electronic classrooms are designed with network connections for each student. The address of the GSM home page is <http://www.gsm.uci.edu>.

Within each program, several health care management electives are offered. But the creation of a new Health Care Executive MBA program in January, 1996, is the most significant accomplishment within this area of focus. In addition to several specific health care electives, this program also incorporates health care throughout the core courses. No other graduate school offers anything truly comparable.

GSM probably has the most diverse faculty in the west. Two-thirds of the professors speak a foreign language or are from a foreign country and 20 percent of the student body is from a foreign country. GSM is involved in an exchange program with several foreign universities, welcomes foreign students, and allows GSM students the option of spending a quarter abroad.

Office of Advancement

Vice Chancellor

Jerry E. Mandel

Private support from individuals, corporations and foundations plays an increasingly important role to UCI as state and federal sources of funding decline.

Continuing UCI Advancement's successful legacy in the private support arena is Jerry Mandel, who became Vice Chancellor of Advancement in May 1995. Pledging to double private support in five years, Mandel has embarked on an ambitious fund-raising program. Mandel's efforts include increasing the involvement of UCI alumni in advancement plans and programs, recruiting development officers to represent each of UCI's schools and programs in fund-raising efforts, and strategically integrating the functions of development, communications, alumni relations and governmental relations within University Advancement.

"The quality of UCI's students, the strengths of our academic programs and the talents of our faculty provide an outstanding basis from which to launch a strong, successful fund-raising effort," Mandel says. "University Advancement will play an integral role in UCI's efforts to create a university for the students of the 21st century."

Office of University Advancement:

Andrea Taylor, Valerie Lorenz, Jim Asp, Linda White-Peters, Sally Baldwin, Jerry Mandel, Clyda Brenner, Shani Brasier, Marion De Risio

"University Advancement includes Development, Alumni Relations, Communications, Governmental Relations, University Relations and Finance and Administration. Last Year the Campus raised $21 million and our goal is to double private support by the year 2000. With declining state resources, increases in private support will be critical if UCI is to achieve its goal to become a top research university."

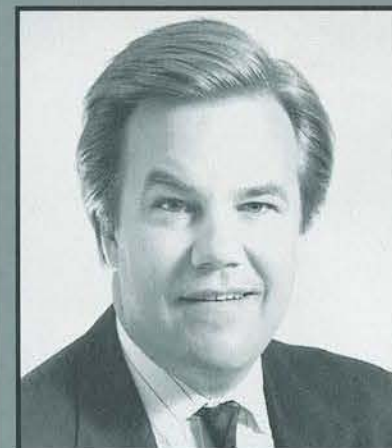

Asst. Vice Chancellor

Kathleen Koonz

UCI Alumni Association

President UCIAA

Greg Mickelson

The UCI Alumni Association provides a link to the campus for over 60,000 alumni. Since its founding in 1969 the Association's mission has been "to organize the alumni of, and to advance and assist the general interests of the University of California, Irvine."

As part of its mission the Association prioritizes the recruitment and recognition of students, provides financial and moral support to the University, as well as a medium for dissemination of information concerning the University and its objectives. It also provides the alumni with a lasting bond to the University.

The UCI Alumni Association, its staff, and its Board of Directors are proud to be a part of the 30th Anniversary UCI Yearbook. We look forward to meeting you at the Phineas Banning Alumni House.

Associated Students UCI

Director

Dennis Hampton

The office of the Associated Students is a dynamic environment where budding leaders are experiencing their first exposure of influential power; where egos and emotions are stressed to their limit and time, time to study, time to sleep, time for friends, any time is treasured; where career aspirations are merging with practical experience; where the metamorphosis from student to professional is taking place.

Being a part of this unique process, seeing and experiencing the maturation of the student leaders creates a feeling of joy and pride in the career staff. The career staff members work with and for the student leaders to assist in maintaining excellence in advocacy, programming and services to compliment the academic mission of the institution.

ASUCI programs and services include representation in campus governance, advocacy programs both campus and systemwide, publications, entertainment, leadership development, transportation, financial and retail services, the promotion of campus spirit and the enrichment of student life.

Health Education

Director

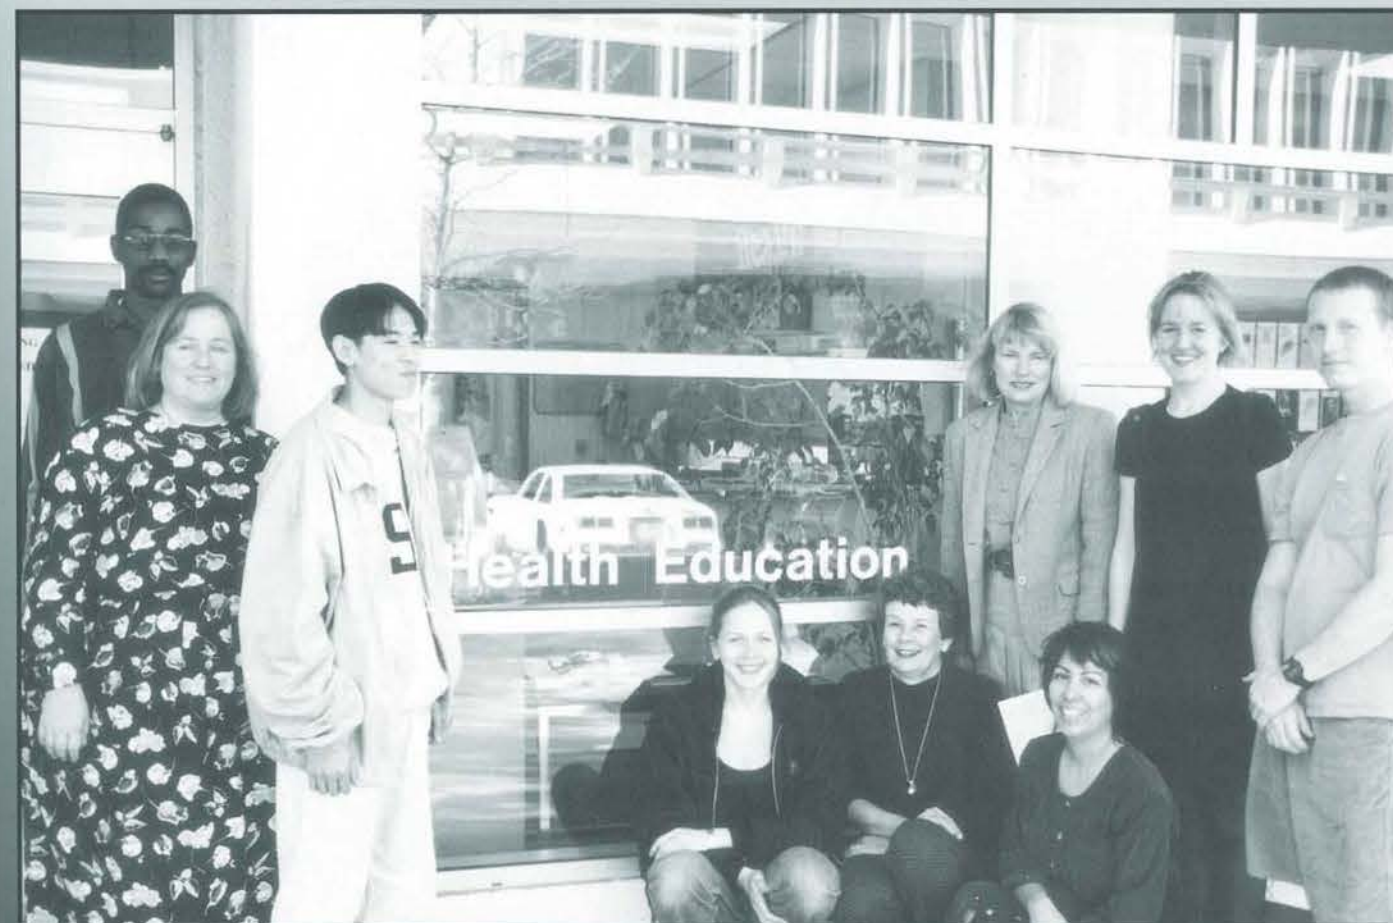

Ellen Thomas

The Student Health Center's legacy stems from 1965 when one wing of Crawford Hall was devoted to a health clinic whose limited staff also made house calls in the dorms. Hours of service were 8 to 5 with doctors in attendance from 12 to 2 only. The current Student Health Center is comprised of clinicians, specialists, a mental health clinic, a dental clinic, a pharmacy, an x-ray facility, a clinical lab, and daily optometry services. Student Health's mission always has been to deliver quality medical care, in an atmosphere assuring confidentiality and understanding, to keep UCI's students healthy and able to meet their academic endeavors. The Health Education Department complements the clinic's efforts by focusing on such issues as stress management, nutrition, sexual health, and general wellness and fitness techniques to help students to better manage their campus lives and to encourage behaviors to enhance a healthy life after graduation.

Our promise is to continue to assure thoughtful, professional, and thorough attention and care for the health and well being of our students.

Health Education Staff: Khevin Curry, Director Ellen Thomas, Robert Nguyen, Chrissy Gearen, Betty Newcomb, Christine Leon, Marilyn Mendenhall, Amy Young, Andrew Hill.

Cornerstone Cafe

Proprietor

Bart Charles

Entering its sixth year on campus, Cornerstone Cafe continues to maintain an excellent reputation for great food and friendly service. The UCI community took full advantage of the Cafe's expanded seating area to enjoy some of the Cafe's newest offerings.

The breakfast and lunch menu was expanded to include innovative satellite shaped sandwiches called "Roundabouts". These delicious toasted sandwiches could be made with anyone of an assortment of fillings, including tuna, chicken, or turkey salad. For that "sweet something", the Cafe's Mrs. Field's cookie bar and it's Baskin Robbins' ice cream counter offered up the perfect dessert options. As a late year addition, the Naked Juice Bar introduced a complete line of refreshing and tasty vegetable and fruit juice smoothies.

The food and the ambience of the Cornerstone Cafe combined, makes it the perfect campus "hang-out".

Outroads Travel

Director

Maureen Alfano

What can you do when round trips from Administration to Physical Sciences don't fill your quest for adventure? It's simple, just make a slight detour to Outroads Travel located in the Student Center to encounter some exciting travel alternatives.

Outroads' resources and capabilities enable you to find just what you're looking for. And whether it's a weekend up North, Spring Break in sunny South-of-the Border Mexico or a summer abroad in exciting Europe, Outroads is your experienced travel source.

Our services are provided free to your customers. As a nonprofit agency, all of our proceeds are directed back into ASUCI student programs. By utilizing Outroads Travel, YOU are actively supporting the Associated Students of UCI.

With the world of travel being as complicated as it is, the expertise of Outroads Travel student staff is an advantage precisely because student travel is our speciality-so let the Outroads experts work for you!

The Legacy & The Promise

Focus

A talent for seeing, hearing, moving, for imitating the world around us lies perhaps in our genetic heritage, but it is the legacy of culture—of our mothers, fathers, grandparents, and of the society around us—that shapes our talents, that makes us develop or discard parts of it, that provides the tensions and the motivations that turn us from imitators as children into creative artists as adolescents. For no one begins in the arts in college; rather, these years have served to discipline, inform, and free your talents and ideas, so that you—now and from this moment—can and must help to keep and keep creating the arts in a world changing so rapidly it has little patience for the practice, the experimentation, and the self-knowledge that our varieties of perfection require. The promise is yours to keep; the forms it will take are yours to invent.

*Look to this day,
For it is the very life of life.
In its brief course lies all the verities and realities of your existence;
The glory of action,
The bliss of growth,
The splendor of beauty-
For yesterday is but a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well-lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day.

Focus

When I came to UCI, the university was but one year old. My first biochemistry class had 38 students. There were more Irvine Ranch cattle on campus than students. The campus was indelicately referred to as "UC Bovine." The School of Biological Sciences has grown to be one of the most outstanding programs in the country. My research in the area of protein biosynthesis provided me with some of my most exciting times. I also take great pride and pleasure in having served the School of Biological Sciences as its Associate Dean for Undergraduate Affairs for the past fifteen years. I can only hope that the students who have passed through the School of Biological Sciences will take pride in their degree and continue a legacy of meaningful contribution to the growing knowledge in the field of biology.

*Art happens when one captures the soul of a thing.
The work of your life,

when synonymous,
are a reflection of your soul.
Follow them and you will have lived as a form of art.

School of Engineering

Focus

Retirement from the business world and conversion to college teaching has created an exciting new life for me. Helping extremely bright young engineers acquire communication skills is fulfillment at its highest.

The world's engineers have probably contributed more to the shaping of civilization than any other profession. In every society, engineers' roles are to develop, from the knowledge of their time, technological applications that meet practical needs. Over the centuries, the engineer has changed from an ingenious improviser who worked by trial and error, to a skilled and systematic specialist who brings a wealth of scientific knowledge to solve the increasingly complex problems of today.

School of Humanities

Focus

I've always been happy that Humanities has been, since the founding of the campus, one of the biggest and strongest schools. Studying the Humanities is one of the ways we are able to take the legacy of the past into our futures, learning from it and building on it to make them better. I'm not quite "founding faculty," but since I arrived here, UCI has grown from a promising but unknown ("where is er-veen, anyway?) green spot in Orange County to a full-size campus which is nationally known and which has shaped the county around it in important ways. I hope our graduates will remember and use that legacy.

Focus

Over the last 30 years, computers have revolutionized our society and culture. Vast computer networks now allows us to move money, exchange information, and gives us a totally new way to communicate. The legacy of computers has enabled us to efficiently calculate, put forth and retrieve vast amounts of information, manipulate text, images and sounds, and control devices from pacemakers to missiles. Computers are a potent technology that have both enriched and darkened our lives. The challenge for us is to maintain a positive direction in both the development of new computer technologies and their applications.

Focus

Letting Nature talk to you is one of the privileges of studying physics. By listening carefully, one learns the values of analytic thinking, the simplicity and complexity of our natural world, a sense of natural beauty, and the role technology plays in improving humanity. Perhaps Nature's loudest message today is that we are leaving the mechanical era and entering the electrical era. Everywhere electrical devices can replace mechanical contraptions, one sees the new age unfolding. Computers replace typewriters, the web provides info., lasers check out groceries, film in cameras is nearly history, coins and dollars play an increasingly subservient role to electronic funds transfers, etc. Physics provides the basis of this great change for humanity. We humans are lucky indeed to possess the faculties which allow analytical thinking, acute observation, and application of physics to our lives.

YOU KNOW YOU'VE BEEN IN COLLEGE TOO LONG WHEN...

You consider McDonald's "real food".

You actually like doing laundry at home.

4:00 AM is still early on the weekends.

Two miles is not too far to walk for a party.

You'd rather clean than study.

"Oh, how did it get so late!" comes out of your mouth at least once a night.

Computer Solitaire is more than a game it's a way of life.

You schedule your classes around sleep habits and soaps.

You know the pizza boy by name.

You go to sleep when it's light and get up when it's dark.

You live for getting mail (E-mail included).

Looking out the window is a form of entertainment.

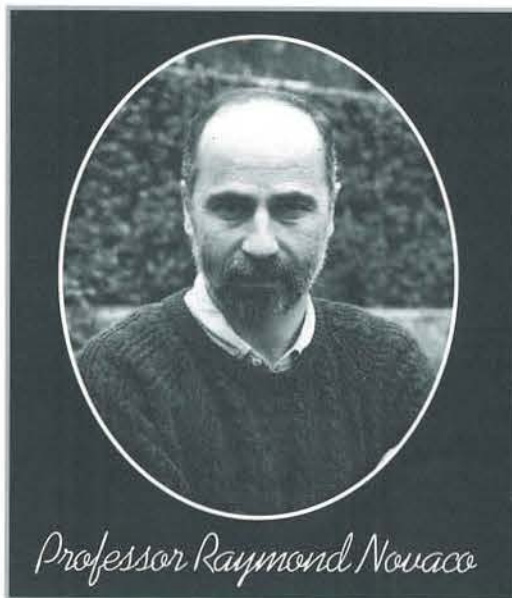

World War III could take place and you'd be clueless.

You start thinking and sounding like your roommate.

Rearranging your room is your favorite pastime.

Focus

The School of Social Ecology has been distinguished for its focus on the study of social problems. The ecological perspective that has stimulated the social and environmental sciences to understand the interdependencies of socio-physical conditions and the behavior of their occupants also provides knowledge for promoting individual and community well-being. Our nation is challenged to remedy some very urgent social problems. We have too often relied on the government for solutions. Alternatively we might consider that there is sufficient knowledge in supply to develop prudent policy; what we lack is collective resolve and determination.

Focus

Twenty-five years ago, universities established the first Asian American and Ethnic Studies Programs to document and articulate the experience of racialized minorities in the U. S. The effort in creating a new field reflected more than an anger at being omitted from political discourse or treated socially as nonentities. It was our desire to broaden the understanding of all Americans of the diverse experiences and perspectives that have always existed in our society. Recognizing the need for multicultural sensitivity in the critical societal issues of the moment is ethnic studies' legacy. The promise is that the field will continue to contribute in our striving towards a "more perfect union."

"BEFORE I CAME TO COLLEGE I WISH I HAD KNOWN ..."

- that it didn't matter how late I scheduled my first class,
I'd sleep right through it.
- that I could change so much and barely realize it.
- that you can love a lot of people in a lot of different ways.
- that college kids throw airplanes too.
- that if you wear polyester everyone will ask you why you're so dressed up.
- that every clock on campus shows a different time.
- that if you were smart in high school -- so what?
- that I would go to a party the night before a final.
- that chem labs require more time than all my classes put together.
- that you can know everything and fail a test.
- that you can know nothing and ace a test.
- that I could get used to almost anything I found out about my roommate.
- that home is a great place to visit.
- that most of my education would be obtained outside of my classes.
- that I would be one of those people my parents warned me about.
- that free food served until 10:00 is gone by 9:50.
- that Sunday is a figment of the world's imagination.
- that my parents would become so much smarter in the last few years.
- that it's possible to be alone even when you are surrounded by friends.
- that friends are what makes this place worthwhile!!!

Don't be dismayed at goodbyes.
A farewell is necessary before we can meet again,
and meeting again, after moments or a lifetime,
is certain for those who are friends.

Radio Shack®

an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

Think of us as a grad school for the technically gifted.

Exciting conversations where ideas are freely exchanged. An environment with ample resources and support where something new is learned everyday. Peers who can help you pass the test. This may sound like the best of what you have in college but it is also what you have to look forward to if you join Cheyenne Software, Inc.

Much like an academic think tank, our competitive advantage in leading-edge LAN solutions is the direct result of cultivating a corporate culture where technological and professional expertise are shared and the entrepreneurial spirit of the individual thrives. If you'd like to be a part of advancing technology and services, consider the following roles:

Product Developers

Develop various products using multiple technologies including C, NLN, SCSI, Windows, NT, Oracle and Sybase.

Technical Support Representatives

Provide front-line telephone, Internet & Compuserve support utilizing Novell NetWare, DOS and Windows.

We offer a highly supportive environment, ample opportunity for professional advancement as well as a solid salary and benefits package. For consideration, fax / mail your resumé to: Cheyenne Software, Inc., 3 Expressway Plaza, Roslyn Heights, NY 11577. ATTN: Manager, Human Resources Dept. UCI. EOE M/F/D/V.

FAX: 516-484-7106

Technical Writers

Write and edit software end-user manuals, internal engineering documents and flow charts.

Quality Assurance Engineers

Develop test plans and environments in accordance with new releases of software.

GET RECOGNITION ON CAMPUS.

(WITHOUT WAITING UNTIL SENIOR YEAR.)

Start a Greek chapter.

Why submit to housecleaning and the elephant walk when you can be a founder?

Champion a cause.

Focus on something most people take for granted like field mice or saturated fats.

Dress unusually.

Recent retro styles are too obvious. Try genie shoes and a fez, instead.

Enter poetry competitions.

Sonnets about lost love, sunflowers and the space under staircases tend to win.

Get a Citibank Photocard.

With your picture on your card, you'll be recognized everywhere. As will fraudulent users.

WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.™

To apply, call 1-800-CITIBANK.

To the staff: Thanks for all the hard work and many hours you dedicated to producing the book. We've made good friends and strengthened our relationships over the course of the year.
To Ellen: You've been by our side for several years, but this year has meant the most. Thank you for your caring, generosity and perserverance in both the business and personal aspects of yearbook. You are an inspiration to many. — Tatian Greenleaf & Alice Mack

The Legacy & The Promise

The pages of this year's edition of the UCI Yearbook, "The Legacy and The Promise", reflects not only the evolution of a maturing University, but represents student achievement. As the Yearbook celebrates its tenth year as a student based program, it leaves behind a legacy of award winning publications, special friendships, and a campus with an enriched sense of tradition.

Over 600 students, 3,500 printed pages, and 12,000 photographs later, the publication has gained a loyal following and a stable financial base. The "bottom line" of the UCI Yearbook cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but rather in the wonderful Anteaters who have donated so much time and talent to the program.

Co-editors Alice Mack and Tatian Greenleaf provided not only professional leadership but a wonderful "sense of humanity" to the 1996 staff and book. No words can express my personal gratitude to the editors and this year's amazing staff. I am truly in your debt.

The UCI Yearbook is a Labor of Love!
