Name of Project: Turkey Hatching Egg Study

A 1947 study was not completed due primarily to lack of a sufficient number of cooperators.

Robert Adolph was assigned to poultry work in September, 1948. Due to the lack of interest and the shortage of time a 1948 study was not started. It was felt that a means for analyzing based primarily on inputs and outputs from which a standard could be developed for feed, labor, equipment and other requirements for turkey production in San Diego County would be more valuable.

The project on Turkey Hatching Egg Study is herewith terminated.
