2017 4-H Professional Development Tour to South Korea

As part of our mission of creating global citizens and advocates of international exchange we are offering a unique opportunity to explore one of our partner countries, South Korea.

South Korea is well known for its technological innovation and economic presence but also hosts a growing population of high school and college students eager to both host overseas students and go abroad themselves. In the United States last year there were over 63,000 South Koreans studying abroad at U.S. universities, almost 7% of the total international student population. Many major universities offer programs to South Korea as part of their repertoire of study abroad programming.

South Korea also has one of the largest 4-H movements in the world with over 71,000 members and 4-H Student Study Groups at 60 different Korean universities.

Despite all of this potential, South Korea remains relatively unexplored beyond a basic understanding of its economic might. In addition, as a country that experienced rapid urbanization, rural development has become a key priority for the Korean government. 4-H in Korea has played an important role in providing a linkage for urban youth to Korea's agrarian foundations. Join us for this educational and transformative experience. The estimated cost of this tour is $1,800-$2,000 (twin share basis) plus airfare from the USA to Seoul.
