PROFILE

• The University of Washington's three campuses offer more than 613 degree options across 312 programs.

• The UW's FY2019 budget is $7.84 billion, including $1.03 billion in the general operating fund, which supports the University's academic mission.

• Tuition revenue makes up 64 percent of the UW's general operating fund; the remainder comes from state funds. Fifteen years ago, the proportions were reversed — 34 percent came from tuition and 64 percent from the state. These amounts have changed due to the ongoing effects of state funding cuts during and after the Great Recession.

The UW's average time to degree is four years, and 81 percent of entering freshmen graduate within six years — the highest percentage of any public university in the state.

The UW educates Washington's most promising students:

• 73 percent of UW undergraduate students are residents of Washington.

• 1.9 percent increase this year in the number of freshman applications to all three campuses.

• All 39 Washington counties have students at the UW.

In fall 2018, 41 percent of UW students were pursuing at least one science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) major. In 2017–18, the UW awarded 6,507 STEM degrees, 4.9 percent more than in 2016–17. Overall, 42 percent of students who have declared STEM majors are women.

UW Continuum College (formerly Educational Outreach) educates more than 50,000 students annually through UW Professional & Continuing Education, International & English Language Programs, Summer Youth, Summer Quarter, UW in the High School, and the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute.
AFFORDABILITY AND ACCESS

• Since before the recession, the number and proportion of underrepresented-minority students at the UW have increased; underrepresented-minority students now make up 19.3 percent of the 2018–19 domestic freshman class.

• Over 32 percent of incoming freshman from the U.S. will be the first in their families to attain a bachelor’s degree. Half of UW Bothell students and 59 percent of UW Tacoma students are first generation.

• Approximately 60 percent of all UW undergraduates graduate with no known debt, and those who borrow still graduate with less debt than the national average.

• In 2018–19, 28 percent of undergraduates are eligible for Federal Pell Grant funding. As of the most recent data (2016–17), more than 11,000 UW undergraduates received Pell Grants — more than at all the Ivy League schools combined.

• In 2018–19, 32 percent of UW undergraduates from Washington (nearly 10,000) are eligible for the Husky Promise, which covers the tuition and fees* of students with financial need.

• Since the Husky Promise began in 2007, more than 40,000 students across the UW’s three campuses have received support from the program.

• In 2018–19, about 53 percent of UW undergraduates are receiving some form of financial aid, totaling more than $435 million.

• In 2018–19, the UW is awarding more than $102 million in institutional grants and scholarships to Washington residents.

• In 2018–19, approximately 9,500 UW students will receive funds from the Washington State Need Grant, 3,300 from the College Bound Scholarship and 2,000 from the Washington State Opportunity Scholarship.

*Through a combination of state, federal and UW local funds.
