Position available: Service-Learning General Studies Assistant
Work Study Job Number: CLPS03

The Carlson Leadership & Public Service Center develops and supports programs designed to incorporate academic coursework with community-based learning and leadership. Through campus and community collaborations, the Carlson Center aims to cultivate knowledge, skills, and capacities that create an equitable and liberated world. The Carlson Center is accepting applications for a Service-Learning General Studies Assistant. Service-learning combines service in the community with structured preparation and reflection opportunities. Service opportunities are tied to academic coursework and address concerns that are identified and articulated by the community.

Hours: 12-19 hours per week, flexible with student's schedule
Compensation: $16 per hour

Objectives: The Service-Learning General Studies Assistant will work in close cooperation with service-learning staff in the Carlson Center to provide support on key components of the center's service-learning program, and will support administration of General Studies 350. The Service-Learning General Studies Assistant will contribute to the University of Washington's commitment to community engagement through supporting both community organizations and undergraduate students in the service-learning process.

Job Responsibilities:

- Under guidance of service-learning staff, participate in the development of undergraduate service-learning positions by communicating with contacts at community-based and non-profit organizations by phone, email, and in person.
- Provide peer advising to students engaged in service-learning and General Studies 350, managing student inquiries both in person and over email.
- Assist in in-class presentations to service-learning courses during the quarter.
- Support service-learning staff and Gen St 350 in quarterly database(s) management with processing forms, updates and documentation.
- Manage intake forms and communication to students, supervisors, and faculty for Gen St 350.
- Support Gen St 350 student experience through resource building for supervisors and faculty sponsors.
- Represent the Carlson Center at tabling and outreach functions on campus.
- Work a maximum of 2 hours per week at the front desk of the Center for Experiential Learning & Diversity, in which the Carlson Center is co-located.
Required Qualifications:
- Financial aid eligibility
- Excellent communication, interpersonal, and organizational skills
- Ability to work effectively with diverse populations of students, community partners, and staff
- Highly motivated and self-directed
- Genuine interest in community engagement and service
- Interest in personal and professional development

Preferred Qualifications:
- Experience with community engagement/service/volunteer work with local community organizations or non-profits in the greater Seattle community
- Practice with public speaking and/or presentations
- Comfort using Excel and mass email systems

Benefits:
- Valuable experience for students to gain professional and personal development through work experience and coaching
- Interesting/relevant work environment for students who are already involved or interested in student services, public service, and non-profit work.
