New seed grants available to support diversity and inclusion efforts at the UW

Administrative and academic units can apply for Diversity and Inclusion Seed Grants to support projects that advance any of the goals of the UW's 2017-2021 Diversity Blueprint.

Office of Research launches enhanced website

The new website uses the MyResearch Project Lifecycle to guide users to information, resources, forms, policies and announcements that support activities through every stage of a research project.

Instant feedback using earbuds pays off big in teaching and learning

Two UW College of Education faculty piloted a method to give “in-the-moment” feedback to educators who work with children with developmental disabilities. They are featured in the latest Provost’s Innovators Among Us series.

How We Police in America: A Case for Reform

Come to Kane Hall on May 4 to discuss current policing practices, the need for reform, and why we need front-end accountability.

NEWS AND RESOURCES

IT CONNECT

Boost your know-how with two free Photoshop workshops

Sign up for the Fundamentals of Photoshop workshop on Friday, May 5 or the Advanced workshop on Thursday, May 4, both in the Odegaard Undergraduate Library, room 102.

Free iMovie workshop perfect for novice videographers

Learn how to use Apple's popular video editing software. Sign up for a free workshop 3:30-5:30 p.m. on May 5 in the Odegaard Undergraduate Library, room 102.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Explore new mentoring tools and resources

Enhance your development by accessing a mentoring toolkit filled with tips, checklists and worksheets, and watching a panel of UW leaders discuss mentoring and their career paths.

Improve your work/life balance with the 5 Buckets Principle

Attend this fun, interactive seminar on May 10 to help prioritize what is important to you. Learn how to find time for yourself, identify priorities, make choices and manage expectations.

How can you be happy in your personal and professional life?

Research shows that happy people feel better, do better and live better. While this is great news, it still begs the question: Why? And, more importantly, how? Learn more at this May 16 webinar.

THE WHOLE U

Kristi Straus asks students to live sustainably

Husky Green Award-winner and Lecturer in the UW's Program on the Environment Kristi Straus doesn't just teach students about sustainability, she asks them to live it.

Learn communication skills for traveling in China

Learn how to communicate while traveling in China with two eight-week language courses sponsored by the Confucius Institute of the State of Washington (CIWA).

Dharma and activism talk with Dr. Jan Willis

Join Jan Willis, one of the earliest American scholar-practitioners of Tibetan Buddhism, for a May 23 talk on dharma and activism.

COMMUNITY

Support homeless youth through UW Tower t-shirt sale

Youth artist-designed t-shirts will be available at the UW Tower May 10 and 11. Proceeds benefit Sanctuary Art Center, a nonprofit that provides homeless and street-involved youth the opportunity to create art, develop job skills and connect with their community.
