

"The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field." Luke 10:2

King Road Church, if you have read this verse, or listened to a message on the passage above, I am sure you would agree that in the majority of cases, it is used in a somewhat pessimistic light: We don't have enough workers to keep up with God's harvest, so we need more.

While I wholeheartedly agree that more workers are always desired, I also think that at times, we miss out on celebrating when God does provide workers for his harvest. I want you to join me in the celebration of God's provision this year.

This past summer, I had the opportunity to disciple, mentor and lead six university students who were part of our staff. Here is the story of how God provided Cam as a worker for the summer harvest...

As we head into each summer, the task of building a staff team begins with prayer similar to that of Luke 10:2. As we entered into the month of February, our staff team was in need of one more male staff. At that time, I reached out to Cam, who is currently a student-athlete at the University of Alberta. I knew Cam from his participation on our High School Tour to Haiti in 2018 and sensed that he would be a great addition to our team.

We chatted over the phone and in that conversation, we came to the point where he would be willing to move out to BC for the summer to join our staff. About two weeks later, I received another phone call from Cam. He had just been personally invited to a Jr. National Team tryout in Quebec, if he made the team he would be gone for the summer and unable to coach. I affirmed his desire to tryout, while personally holding back some disappointment of the potential of him not being able to coach camps.

Fast forward to May. We were still without an additional male coach. After my morning devotions, I sensed that I should reach out to Cam once again, knowing that his tryouts had just happened. Not knowing the outcome of whether he made the team or not, I wanted to congratulate him in the event that he made the team, or offer the coaching position again if he did not. A short while after sending the text, he responded, asking if we could chat over the phone. Only later would I hear that just prior to me sending the text, he had been cut from the team and was praying and wondering whether coaching with AIA was still a possibility or not. The Lord of the harvest was also providing us with workers to help reap it.

It was amazing to be able to reconnect with four participants from our 2019 trip to Honduras as well as have Megan Cyr spend a morning with us at the Overnight Camp.

Getting to spend some family time at Chilliwack Lake as well as completing an overnight hike to Joffre Lake. Thankful for the chance to recharge from the summer.

Updates & Prayer:

We have officially entered a new season of life. Vanessa has returned to work as a Teacher on Call which means we are finding creative means for child care (thanks to loving grandparents). We are excited to see what this time will bring.

- Praise for 6 individuals who committed their lives to Christ over the summer. Pray for these individuals as well as our coaches as they intentionally follow up with these individuals.
- Praise for the provision of workers for our harvest this summer.
- Pray for the spiritual awakening, renewal and growth of the 11 athletes that I have the chance to work with for the next 8 months at CBC.

*We are so grateful for the ongoing support of people like you.
Serving Christ together with you,*
